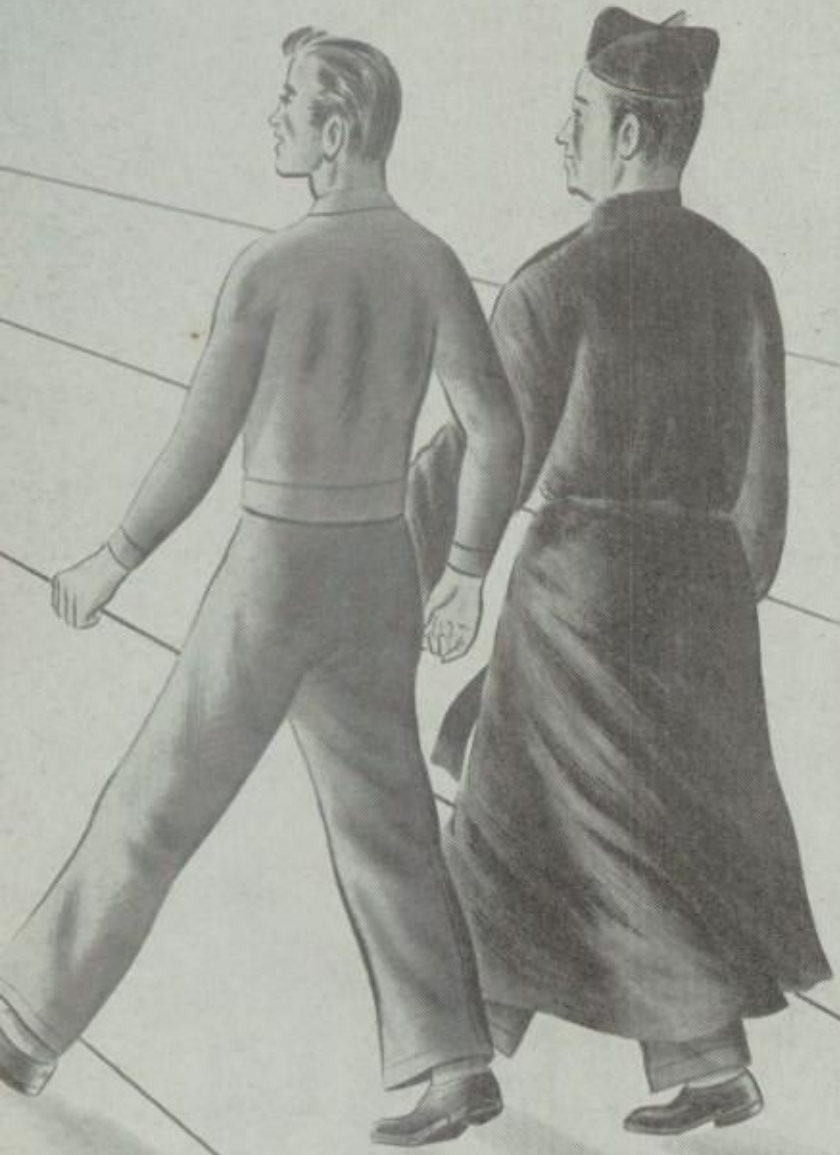
THE HOPE OF PEACE
1947 CUB
UNIVERSITY OF DETROIT
HIGH SCHOOL

THESE youths are tomorrow's leaders. The peace which our country has bought at so dear a price will be their responsibility. At the University of Detroit High School they have been trained to shoulder that responsibility. They have learned, according to the tradition of Ignatius Loyola, to value all things in the light of their final destiny, to conform their actions through Christ, with Christ, and in Christ to that norm, to respect the rights of others in selfless cooperation and forbearance, and to lead and influence others to that same glorious end. Therein—in A.M.D.G.—is the formula of peace.



dedication

FATHER JOHN NASH, S. J.

Fifty years of A.M.D.G., "For the greater glory of God," is the achievement of the priest to whom we happily dedicate the 1947 Cub Annual. Since his ordination, Father Nash has continuously taught here at U. of D. High School. During this time more than 1500 young men have passed through his experienced hands. Many of his former students have become most successful in life, some have even followed him into the service of Ignatius. Each reflects the Christ-like teaching and example of Father Nash whose life has been and continues to be our inspiration as we students prepare to take our place in peaceful society. In our joyful exultation, then, we humbly join with Christ and His Blessed Mother in extending to Father Nash sincerest, heartfelt felicitations on the Golden Anniversary of his entrance into the Society of Jesus.

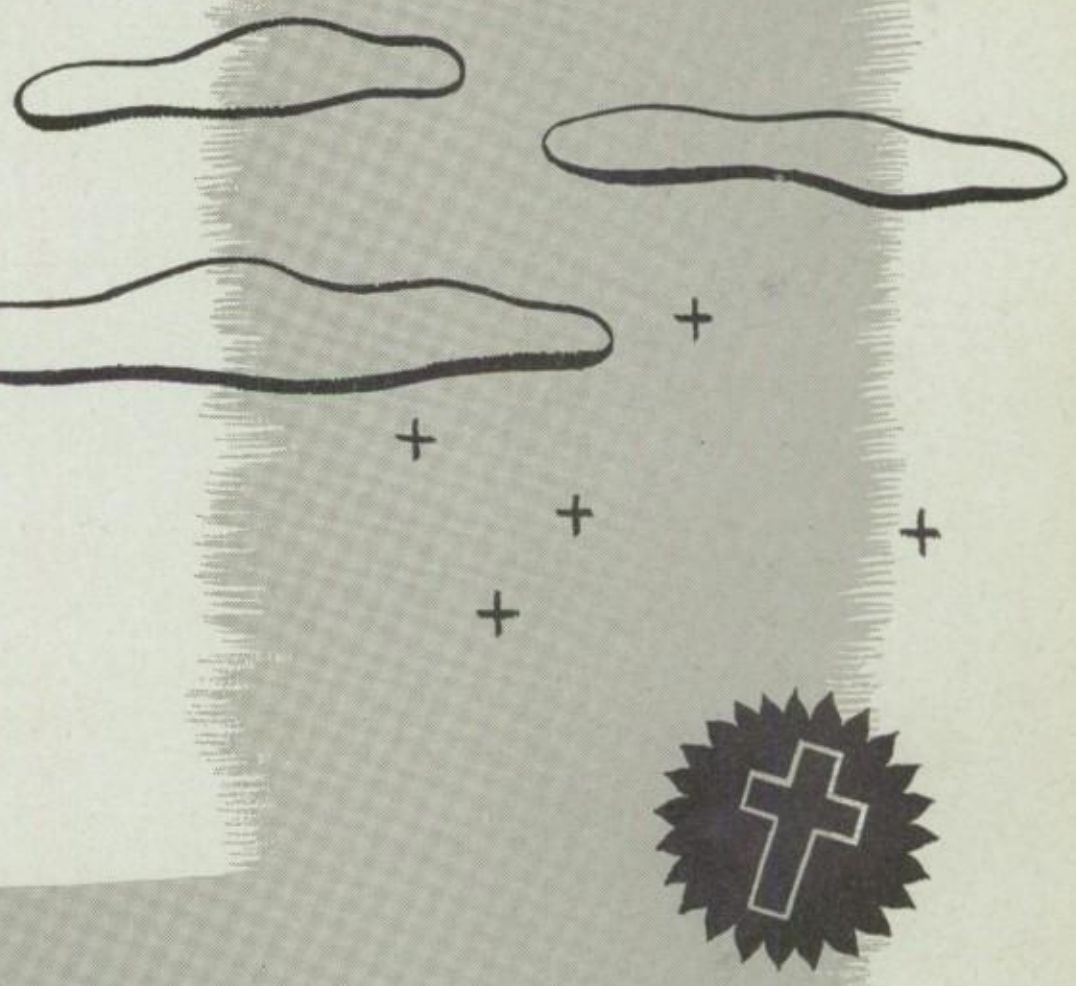
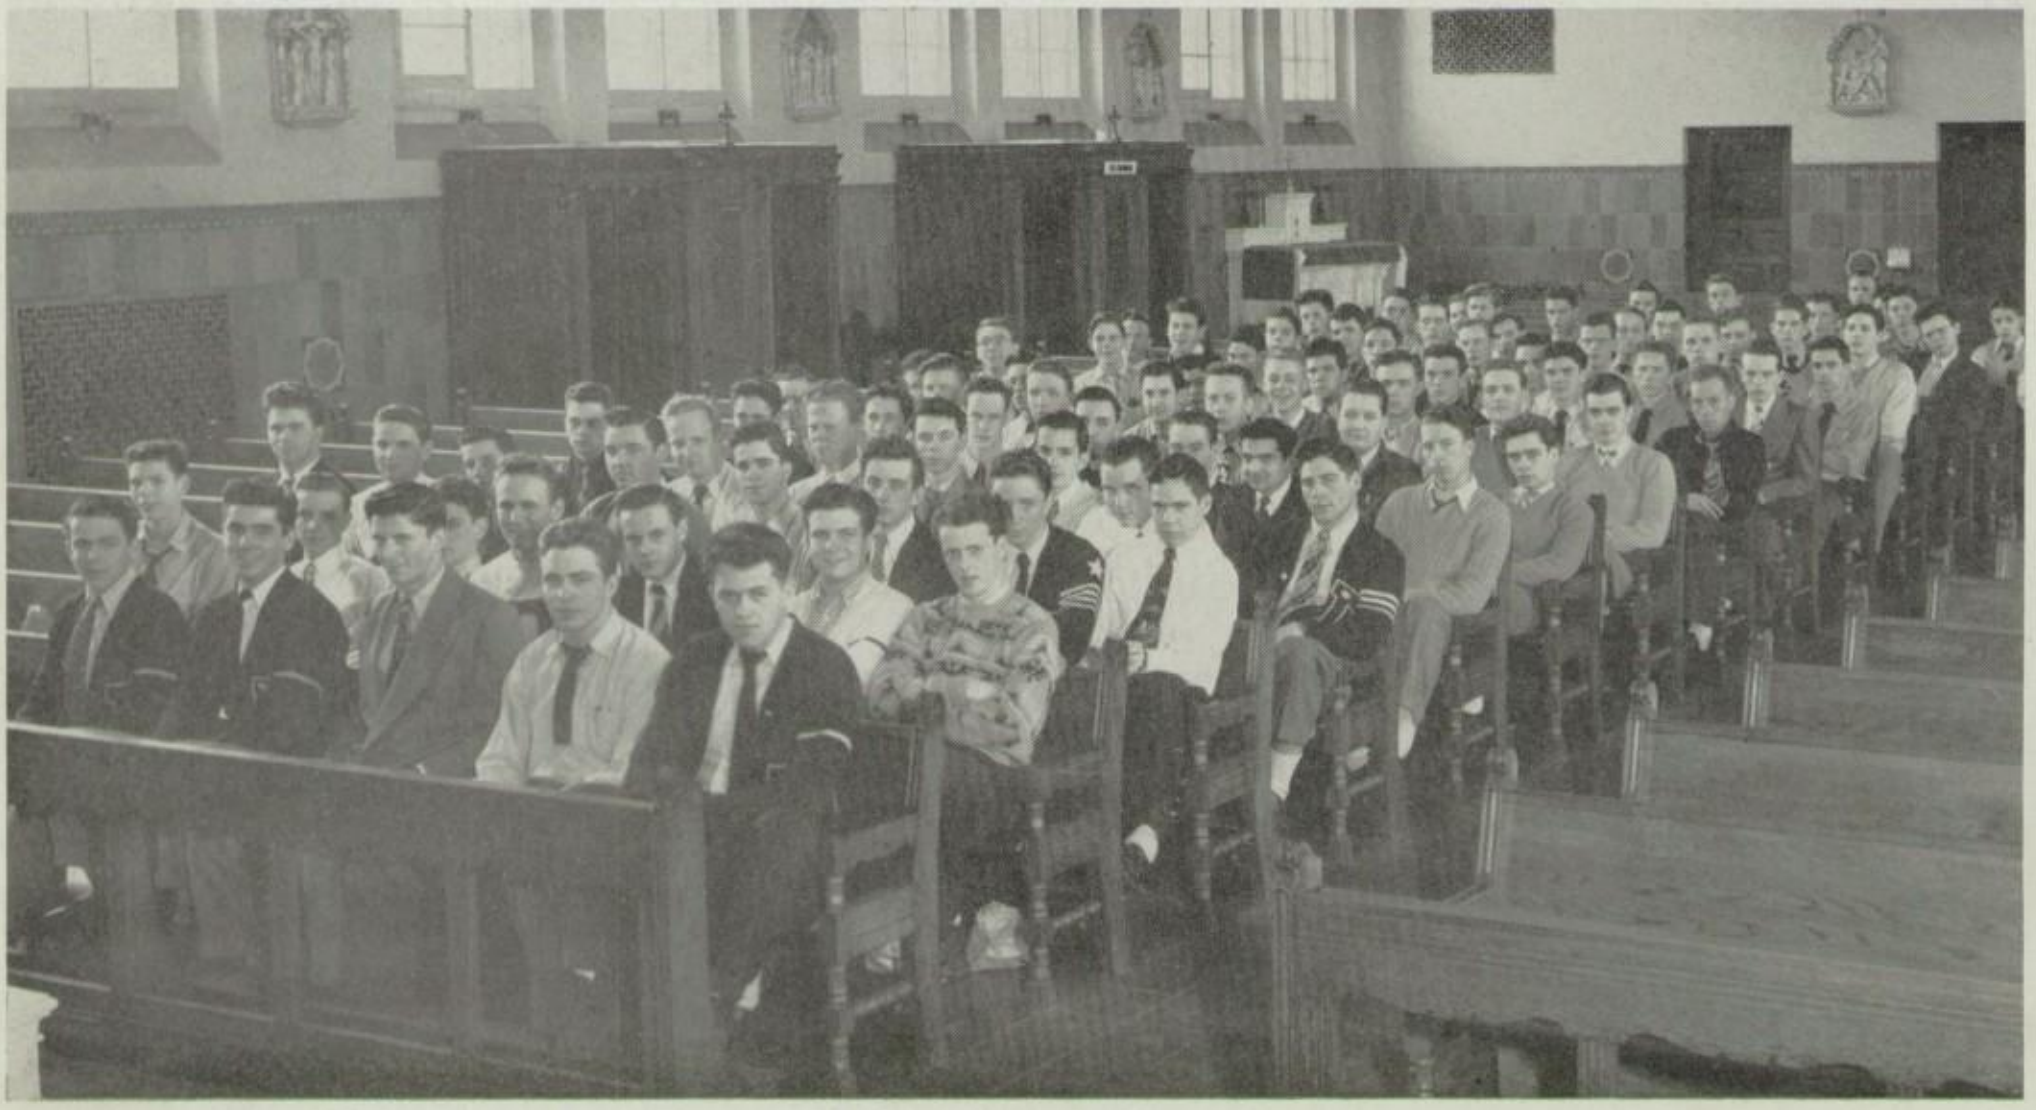
"Peaceful society . . . is maintained by the power of the conscientious assent of men, of their intellectual convictions and readiness to take the initiative or assume responsibility."—Pope Pius XII.



For Our Lady

If the world is ever to be led back to God and the joys of peace, it will be through the intercession of Mary, Queen of Peace. Because of this it has been one of the long standing traditions of the Society of Jesus to establish Sodalities of Our Lady in the Schools it fosters. This organization presents to the student a greater opportunity to employ the lessons in Christian virtue which he has been taught in the classroom, and also a broader field in which to practice a firm, unceasing devotion to the Queen of Peace.

THE SENIOR SODALITY was divided into five committees this year, namely: the Committee of Our Lady, the Committee of Literature, the Committee of the Holy Eucharist, the Apostolic Committee and the Catholic Action Club. Led by Father Condon, S. J., moderator, George Roskopp, prefect, Frank McGann, vice-prefect; Tom Moorman, treasurer, and Bill Wise, secretary, the Senior Sodality sponsored the annual Thanksgiving Eve Dance, one of the school's leading social events.



THE JUNIOR SODALITY, under the guidance of Mr. Felten S. J., enjoyed a very successful year. This organization set high ideals for itself early in the year and then worked diligently and consistently to attain them. In order that the task might be performed more efficiently, each member was assigned to one of the five committees of the combined Senior, Junior, and Sophomore Sodalities. The Officers for the past year were: prefect, Melvin Anderson; assistant prefects, Marty Scanlon and Chas. Gehringer; secretary, Bill Kopp; treasurer,Bill Goering.

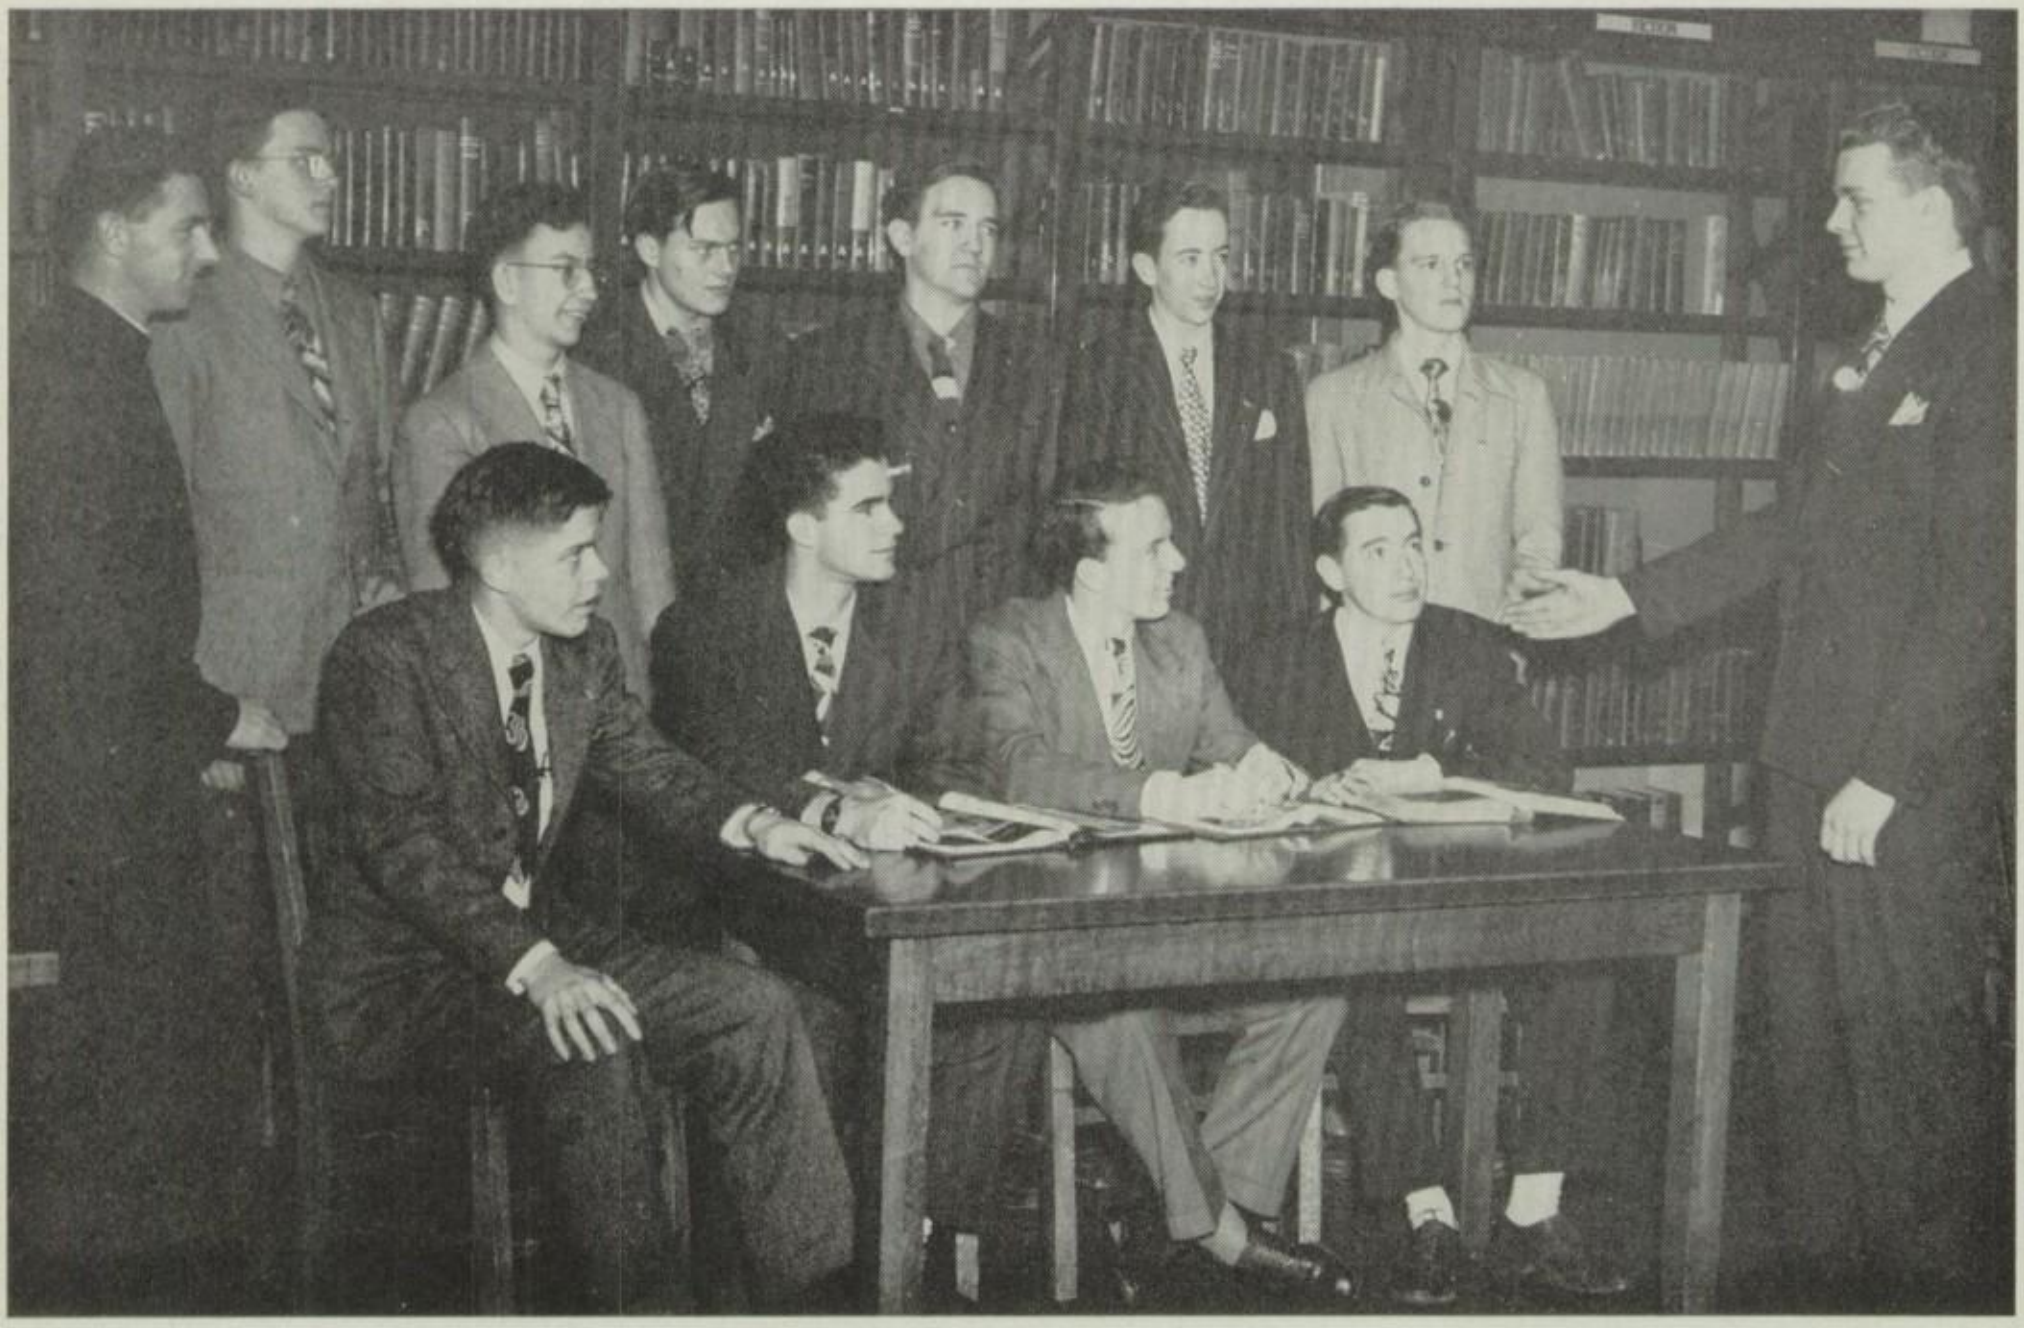
SOPHOMORE SODALITY can be largely recommended for its hard earned accomplishments in the field of Catholic Action. The sodalists meet weekly to discuss methods of increasing religious fervor among themselves and the Sophomore class as a whole. Fr. Wallenhorst, S. J., acted as moderator, and the officers were Jerry Evens, prefect; Howard West, vice-prefect; Walter Cliff, secretary; and, Jack Ellis, treasurer. The Sophomore Sodality has indeed done much to bring the student body closer to Christ through Mary.

HOLY COMMUNION is a must in the life of a sodalist. The scene at the left was reenacted daily at the 8:20 Communion Mass.

THE FRESHMAN SODALITY has for its purpose the introduction of first year men into the ranks of Mary. This year the Sodality, under the direction of Fr. Huttinger, S. J., ably fulfilled this purpose by receiving a large number of freshmen. The new sodalists elected Donald Ressie, prefect; Richard Peck, first assistant prefect; William Walton, second assistant prefect; Edward Devine, secretary; Edmund Skrzypcyak, treasurer.

ACOLYTES. As acolytes assisting the priest at Mass, the students have the privilege of being very close to Christ in the Blessed Sacrament. During the school year there is a great demand for the services of the U. of D. High boys. The daily schedule of Masses requires about ten servers and three of these must begin their school day about five thirty. These early servers are pictured below from left to right: front row: Deck, Collins, Pelke, O'Connor, Brennan, Prentis. second row: Parent, Mayer, Pfau, Schreiner, Johnson, O'Brien.

CATHOLIC ACTION CLUB. "To restore all things to Christ," is the motto of the Catholic Action Club. To bring His principles into the lives of all men is the end toward which the members of the club work. The club discusses what attitudes must be taken on pertinent Catholic topics, and spreads the principles of Catholic Action through open forums conducted at various schools. To solidify and formulate Christian ideas, the club attends performances of the Catholic Theater and lectures of the Christians Culture Series. The members pictured here are from left to right: standing: Abajay, Romer, Komives, Mr. Mulhern, S. J., seated: Russel, Schlacks, Gnau, O'Brien, Brusstar, O'Donnell.



THE SENIOR DEBATORS, with Mr. Mulhern, S. J., as their moderator, participated in numerous tournament debates, exhibition debates, and discussions during the year. In their quest for state honors the team won three and lost five against such schools as Hamtramck, De La Salle, Ann Arbor, and Dominican. Besides these, exhibition debates were held within the club and with Lansing Sexton, Dominican, Lansing Eastern, and Hamtramck High Schools. The topic of the debates was Socialized Medicine. The officers of the club were: James Beall, president; James O'Neill, vice-president; and Thomas Charbeneau, secretary. These officers, along with John Arbogast, formed the "first-team" with John Burns and David Jenkins as the leading alternates. The members of the club pictured above are: seated—John Arbogast, John Burns, Thomas Charbeaneau, and James O'Neill; standing—Mr. Mulhern, S. J., Thomas Feaheny, David Jenkins, James Schouman, William Brusstar, James Brennan, and Philip Mohan. Standing at the right is James Beall.

THE SENIOR ORATORICAL CONTEST was declared to be a very exceptional performance by all three judges. Each contestant spoke on the subject, "The North American Martyrs." Shown below are the seven finalists: (left to right) R. Carron, J. Beall, J. Burns, T. Charbeneau, R. Roskopp, B. Dalessandro, and J. Stone.

Speakers

One of the chief ingredients of a lasting peace is confidence in expressing our ideas and opinions to the rest of the world. Laying the corner-stone of this confidence has been the work of the speaking organizations and contests of this school. The debating clubs, the elocution contest, and the oratorical contest have provided tomorrow's lawyers and statesmen an excellent opportunity for displaying their speaking abilities.

The Cub Newspaper

To obtain and maintain peace it is necessary that the people of the world know what is going on. It is the job of newspapers to supply this knowledge. Newspapers, therefore, are the guardians of peace. Here at U. of D. High a school newspaper, the CUB, is published every month and presents to the students an account of school events together with the views and opinions of many of the students on various topics. The CUB has provided a training ground for embryonic journalists as well as an outlet for the literary talents of our students.

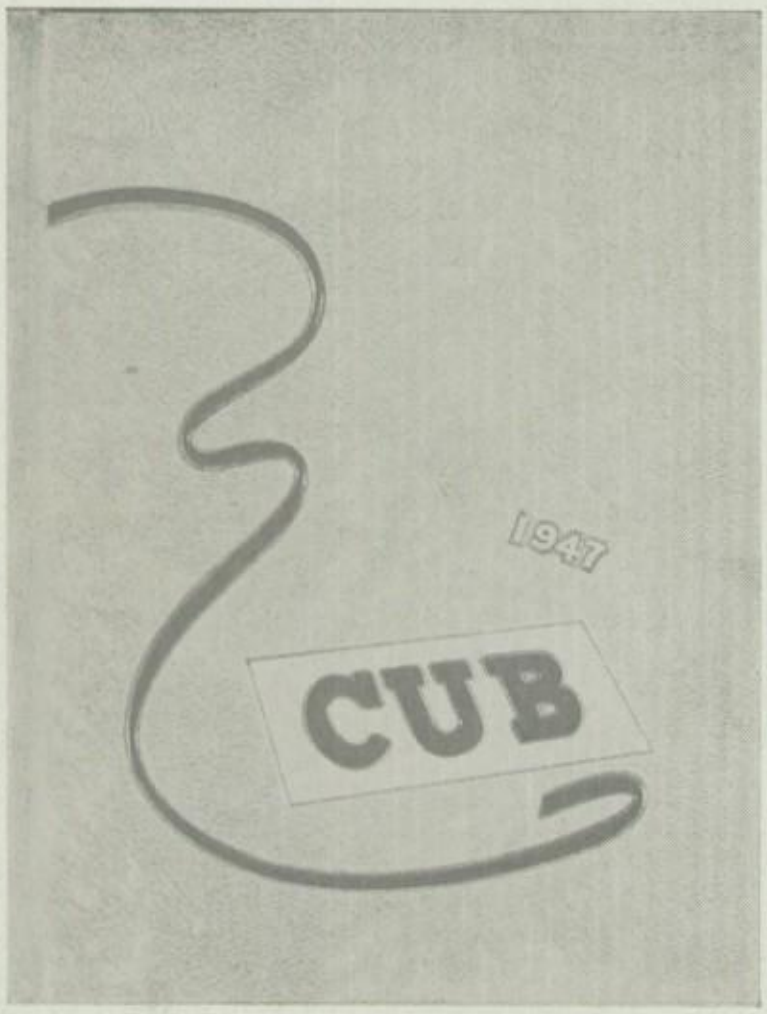
The Cub Annual



In this volume recording the past year at U. of D. High, the yearbook staff has endeavored to show how the various functions and organizations of the school are working for peace. We have constantly tried to capture the spirit of peace in each activity and to present it as an example of young America's efforts to prevent another Pearl Harbor or Hiroshima. Our role speaks for itself.

ACTIVITIES EDITOR, Terry Hynes, undertook the job of making the activities section of the book a success. Some of those who helped in this work are shown below: (seated) Joe Martin, Jim O'Neill, Terry Hynes, Tom Mayer; (standing) Larry Martin, and Jack Arbogast.

FATHER ARTHUR LINZ, S. J., moderator and originator of the Glee Club, directed and produced the comic operetta, "The Pirates of Penzance." Aside from directing the singing, he also conducted the Concert Orchestra.

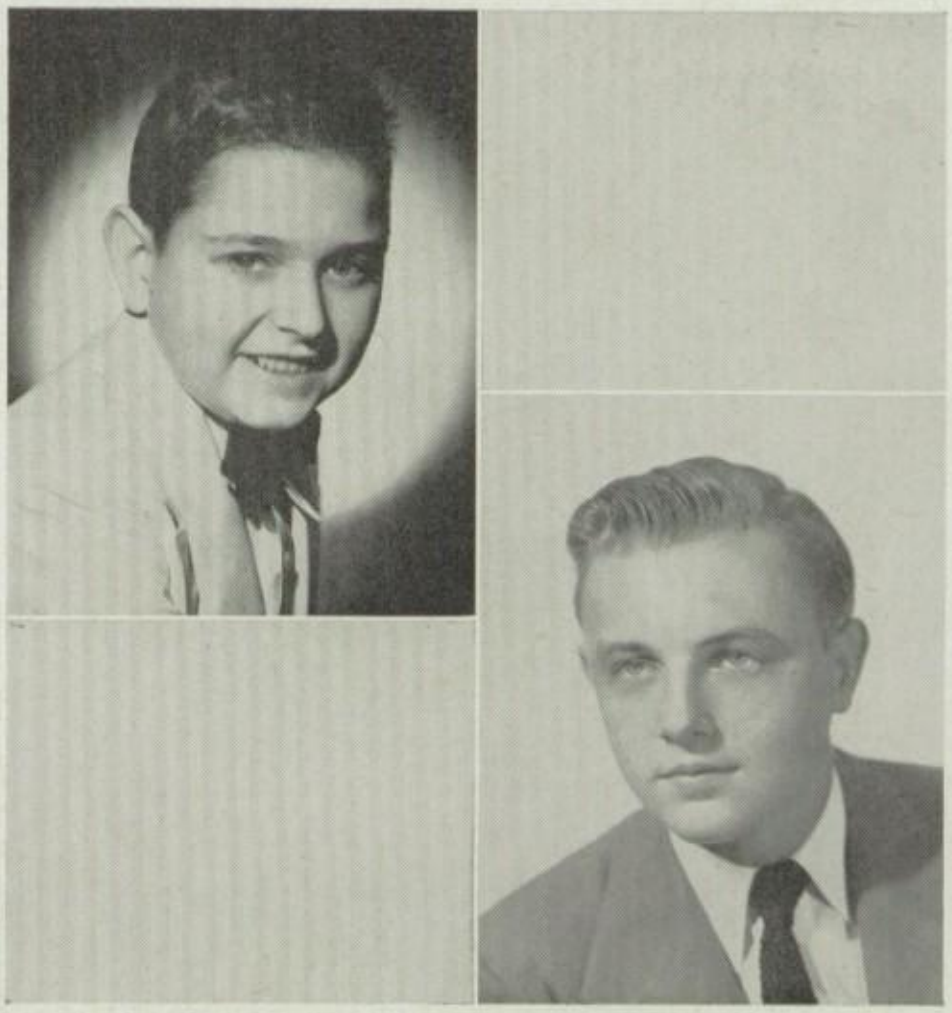
The Pirates of Penzance

This year the Glee Club presented its first musical comedy: Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pirates of Penzance." A spontaneous success, it ran for two nights at the Detroit Institute of Arts. The principals were Ronnie Gallegher, Jim Hauck, Paul Meloche, Bob Rogez, who were supported by a large "pirate band," and a "policemen's chorus." A group of club's alumni appeared in the cast, together with the new orchestra. The entire production was under the direction of Father Linz, S.J., the Glee Club's originator.

PRESIDENT OF THE GLEE CLUB. Jack Shields (top) was afflicted by illness soon after school began in September. His place was taken by Ronnie Gallegher (bottom), who served as acting president for the remainder of the year.



MANY HOURS after school were voluntarily spent by Glee Club singers in preparation for their production, "The Pirates of Penzance."

Glee Club

This year the Glee Club undertook the task of performing a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta and realized an undeniable success. The musical arrangements were difficult to master but the Glee Club was more than equal to the task. Only three years in existence, this club has become the most spirited organization in the school.

ASSISTANT MODERATORS OF THE GLEE CLUB, Mr. Smith, S. J., Dramatic Director, Mr. Felten, S. J., Publicity and Stage Director, and Mr. Dunne, S. J., (seated) Business Moderator, gave Fr. Linz much valuable assistance in making the "Pirates of Penzance" an outstanding success.

THE PIANISTS OF THE GLEE CLUB, Ralph Diethelm, Joe Henk, and William Tenerowicz practiced long hours to master the music of Gilbert and Sullivan.

THE ACCORDIONISTS OF THE GLEE CLUB Don Koslowski, Dick Cyrul, and Joe Serra thrilled many audiences with their excellent accordion renditions.

Music Makers

Two of the several new organizations which took their places among the activities of this year were the High School and the Prep Orchestras. Organized by Father Linz, both were an immediate success. The High School Orchestra, with Jim Lane as band leader, improved so rapidly that it was called upon to play for the Gala Nite Dance held in February. The moderator and members can be justly proud of the fine work they have done in making both organizations among the most popular in school.

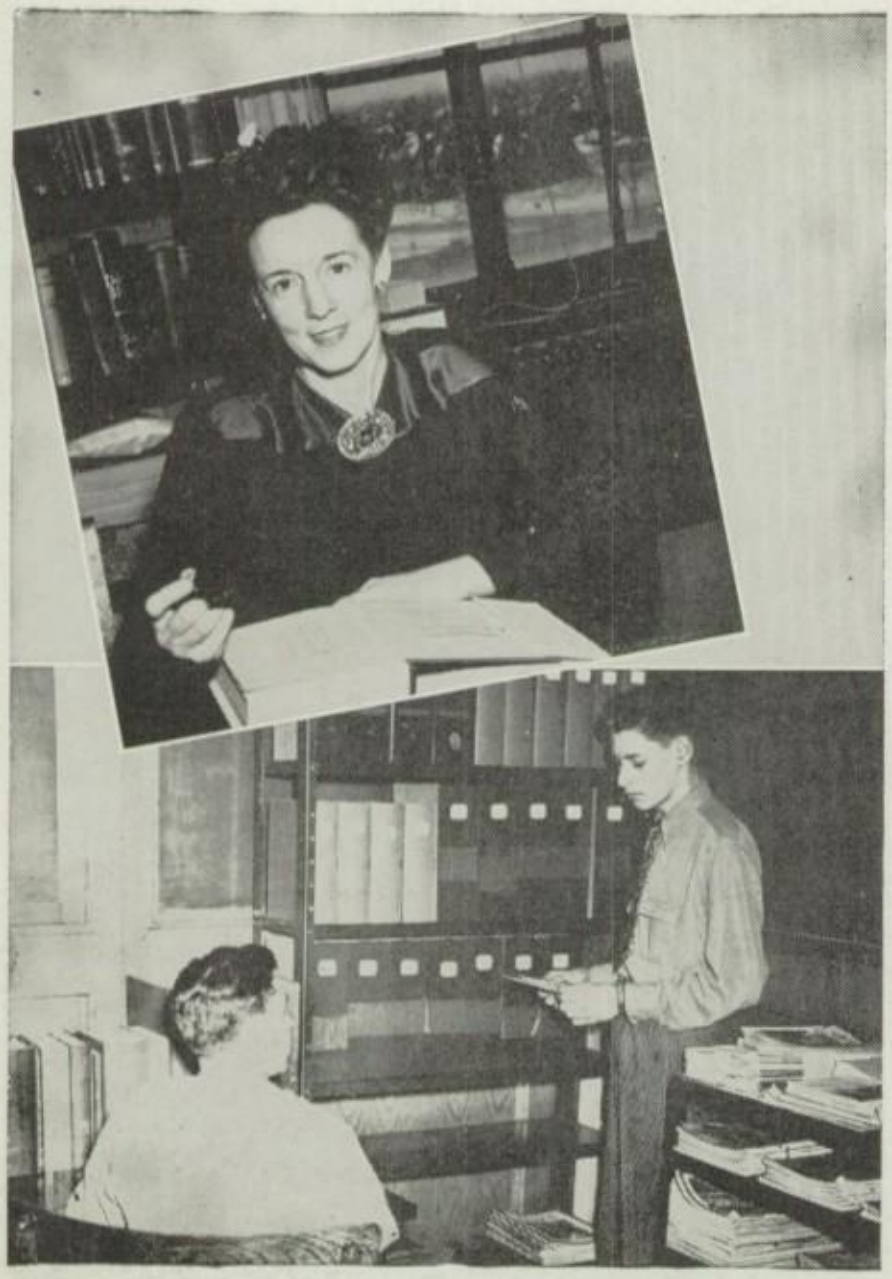
The Library

The importance of good literature in the maintenance of peace can never be too greatly stressed in the development of Catholic youth. For this reason the students have at their disposal a library of some eight thousand volumes. Each year four-hundred or more volumes are added to the collection, thus making the library one of the largest in the city's high schools. The library staff features displays of current interest to various groups in the school, and classes are conducted to instruct students in the use of the library.



THE LIBRARIAN. Mrs. R. Tiernan, in the top picture, quite capably executed the various duties involved in administration of the library. Helping her throughout the year were Simon O'Shea (seated) and Tom Johnson.

THE LIBRARY provided an excellent place for studying aside from its literary value. Many times during the school year the scene below was enacted by the students.

Language Clubs

THE FRENCH CLUB began the year under the direction of Mr. Michael J. Rutti. Names of foreign "pen pals" were made available to members who wished to correspond with language students in foreign countries. Officers for the year were Conrad Heyner, president, and George Abajay, secretary.

third row: Kopp, Wholihan, Abajay, Krause, Heyner, Hynes, Prentice, Klein.

THE SPANISH CLUB also had for its moderator, Mr. Michael J. Rutti. During the year the life and customs of the Spanish and South American countries were studied, and the use of conversational Spanish was encouraged. The officers of the club were: James Kearney, president, and Ronald Ingram, secretary. Pictured below are:

seated: Best, Maniaci, Lenane, Taylor, Carolin, Depp, Schafer, Bachle, Ulrich.

standing: Mularoni, Kearney, Ingram, Schott, Carey, Staub, Oliver, Rochon, Lock, Ferro, Fettig, Schramm, O'Hara, Ortman, Mularone.

Chess

(seated): Payne, Mayotte, Hatfield.

In the fall of 1946 a new club was inaugurated and took its place among the many organizations of the school. The purpose of the club was to encourage the students to take up the study of the royal game of chess, and give chess enthusiasts an opportunity to match their skill against one another in a pastime which sharpens the minds of all its participants.

CLUB MEMBERS.

seated: Ingram, Pikielek, Klein, Rooney, Brennan, Payne, O'Brien, Cooper.

Art and Camera Clubs

One of the oldest extra-curricula activities in the school is the Art Club. This year the members of the Club gave valuable assistance to the Glee Club, Sodality, and many other activities with their colorful and artistic posters.

The purpose of the Camera Club is to increase each member's interest and skill in the field of photography. The club develops its own pictures in a modernly-equipped dark room located on the third floor.

ART CLUB. kneeling: McComb, Coplin, Metevia.

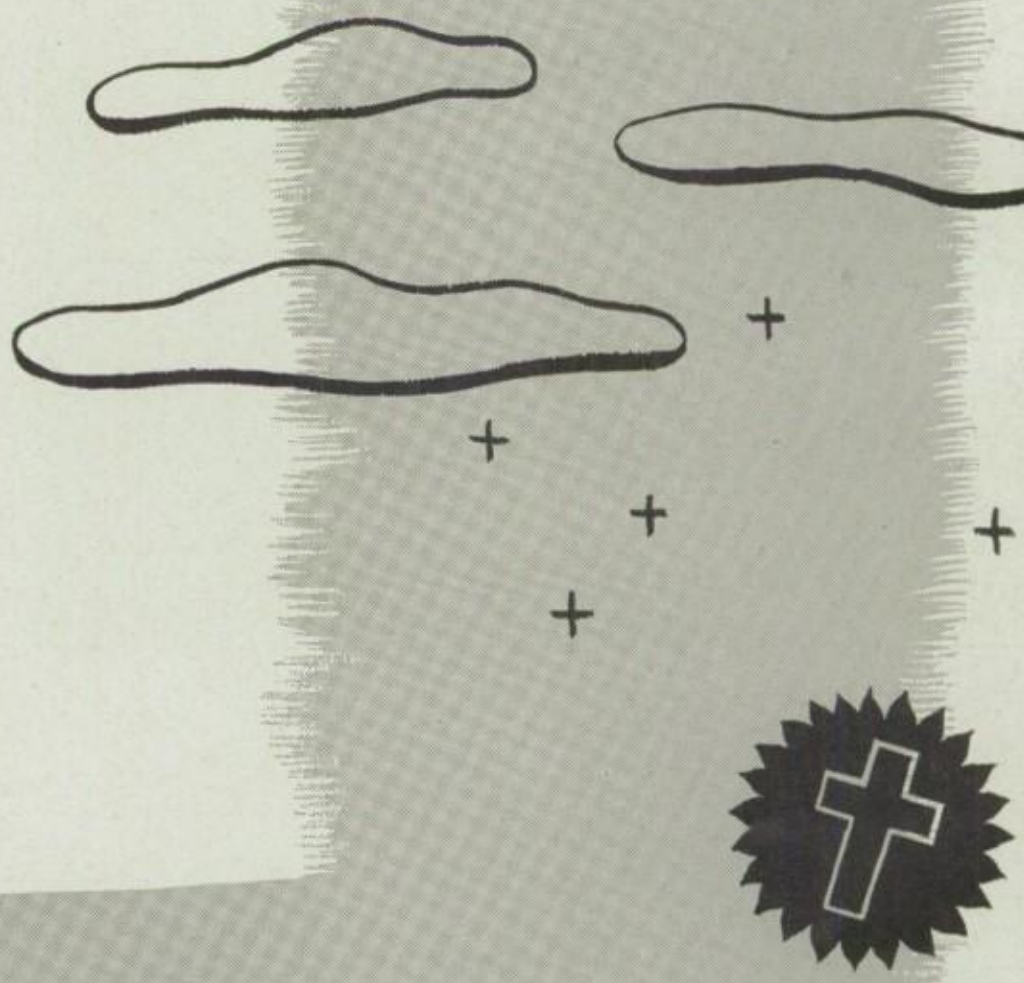
Inspiration

"Only the Church can bring man back from these shadows to the light; she alone can make him conscious of the vigorous past, master of the present and source for the future." — Pope Pius XII. The Church and her teachings are our inspiration in our efforts for peace.



Faculty

Fr. Gilbert F. Stein, S.J.
President and Principal

Fr. Gilbert F. Stein, S.J., came to the University of Detroit High School as principal in 1942. In that capacity he administered the school affairs for four years before becoming President in 1946. In an office requiring a great deal of delicacy and diplomacy he has maintained the high academic standards of the school in accordance with the ideals of the Society of Jesus.

Fr. John F. Sullivan, S.J.
Assistant Principal

Fr. John F. Sullivan, S.J., became the Assistant Principal of the University of Detroit High School in 1943. His job is an unenviable one for it is he who must mete out punishments for infractions of the school rules.

ONCE A MONTH many of the mothers gather together at the school to discuss their son's problems with the faculty members. Pictured above is one phase of a typical meeting.

It is altogether fitting that a section of the U. of D. High annual be devoted to the generous and beneficial activities of the Parent-Teacher's Association. At monthly meetings the mothers make arrangements for their various functions and seek to attain a closer relationship between the school and the home. All proceeds from their many enterprises, such as the Fall Festival dinner in October and Gala Nite in February, are directed towards the improvement of the school building and the surrounding campus.

THE P. T. A. OFFICERS guided the club to one of its most successful years. They spent much of their extra time planning and carrying out their many activities.

seated are: Mrs. Charles Culhane—president, Mrs. Edward Rothermel, Mrs. Ambrose Crusoe, Mrs. James Chamberlain.

standing: Mrs. Henry Maurer, Mrs. Clarence Brinkman, Mrs. William Brusstar.

THE OFFICERS OF THE DADS' CLUB came a step closer in their efforts to raise funds for the new gymnasium and swimming pool.

seated are: Mr. John Rooney, Mr. Frank Donohue, president, Fr. Stein, S. J., Mr. John Burns, Mr. Michael McManus.

standing: Mr. Ray Pfau, Mr. Dale Prentice, Mr. William Linow, Mr. John Schreiner, Mr. Howard West, M. Larry Brennan, Mr. Richard Heinlein, Mr. Henry Maurer.

absent: Mr. William Ulrich, Mr. John Hopkins, Mr. James Mog, Mr. Patrick Quinn.

Dads' Club

The primary purpose of this organization is well expressed in its original constitution, which reads: ". . . the better to acquaint the members of the faculty and the fathers of the students with one another that both parent and teacher . . . may the more successfully educate the boy spiritually, socially, intellectually, and physically." There is no doubt concerning the success of the club in achieving its aim. Annually this club undertakes a Fall Festival to raise a fund for the new gymnasium and swimming pool, to be dedicated to the alumni who lost their lives in World War II.

Preparation

"From these schools there comes forth a host of citizens, strong in heart and mind, who, by reason of their reverence for divine and human laws, are justly considered to be the strength and the flower of peace"—Pope Pius XII.

Seniors . . .

John A. Baltz

finding a fast game to his liking, could invariably be found on the handball court. He satisfied his athletic inclination by playing Varsity and intramural football. In the classroom he was very popular with his fellow students because of his winning personality and quick wit.

Robert J. Bayer

survived four years on the Grosse Pointe Bus (quite an accomplishment). He could probably make a patch-quilt with all those First Honor and Class Honor ribbons he has merited. Bob has a lofty ambition, to become head of the General Motors Research Department.

James E. Beall

Co-editor of this annual, received Class Honors at every quarter for four years. Besides these, Jim was a debater, the president of the Senior Debating Society. He was also a finalist in the Senior Oratorical Contest and Valedictorian of his graduating class.

Joseph A. Boell

can definitely be called the quietest member of the Senior class. His calm good nature overcame the reoccurring jests of Joe's classmates. Joe received honors in his first two years. He took the Classical course in order to join his father in the medical profession.

John F. Boes

was a fervent Sodalist and acolyte during his entire High School career. He led the school cheering section for one season and devoted most of his lunch period to intramural athletics. Never one to boast, he was content to remain quietly in the background.

Robert H. Bowman

spent his high school years very profitably. He was a member of the Sodality and received honors for two years. In the field of athletics Bob played intramural football and baseball and won a place in the Monogram Club by acting as manager.

. . . Class of 1947

Stephen Boyajian

appeared on the honor roll all through his high school career. His interest in the things about him led him to actively participate in many school activities, among them the French and Chess Clubs. Steve aspires to be a member of the foreign service.

James J. Brady

survives his four horrible years of commuting on the Grosse Pointe special with an unbeatable record. Whenever the bus left school he was aboard. Jim always deserted school for his beloved ride at the expense of everything else but the Sodality and honors.

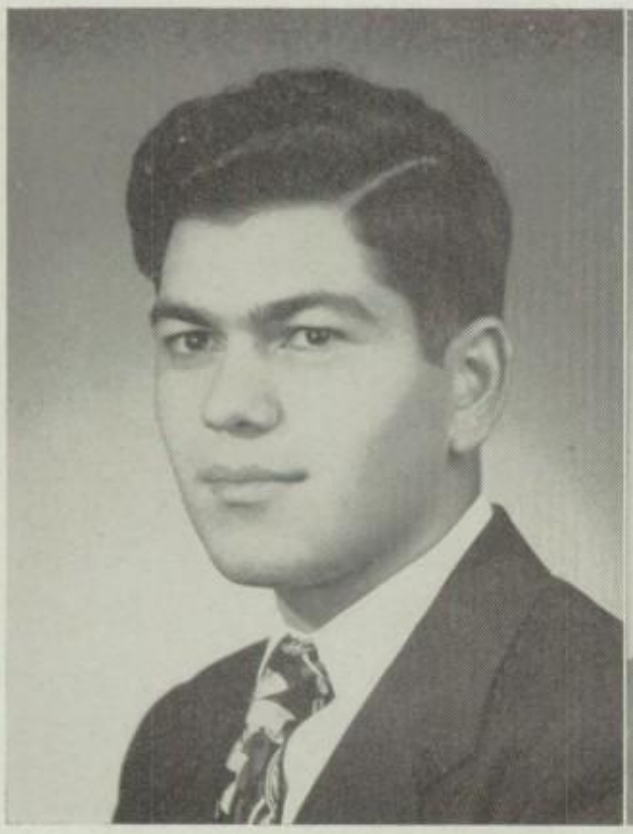
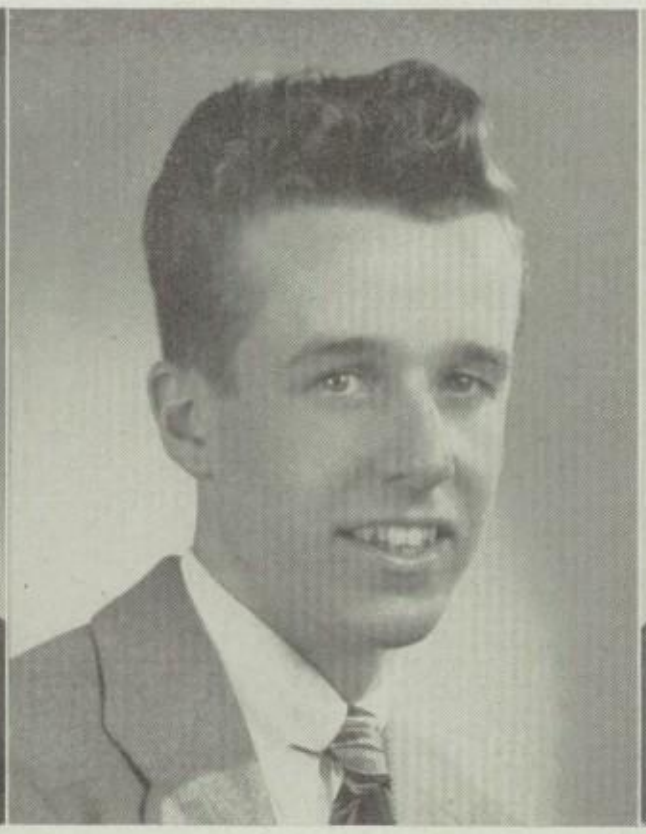
Paul C. Brandmier was a welcome man on any intramural team: football, basketball or baseball. Paul, a hard worker for the yearbook, held a class office in his freshman year and completed his school life as a member of the leading organization in our school, the Senior Sodality.





Francis J. Brennan

is one of the many Brennans that inhabit this school. This honor man came in time for roll-call, worked diligently, and when classes ended left immediately. Perhaps the presence of so many other Brennans disturbed him. Frank aspires to be a doctor.

Lawrence B. Brennan

joined the Navy in June, 1945, after completing his junior year at U. of D. High. He spent fifteen months in the service, mostly in the Pacific. Returning home last August with an honorable discharge, he once more started to complete his education. Larry's ambition is to be an engineer.

Patrick J. Brennan

is the Glen Davis of U. of D. High. His speed and deception helped to bring about a successful football season and placed him on several All-City second teams. Besides his duties as a Sodalist Pat made history by being president of the first Chess Club.

Seniors . . .

Vincent J. Brennan

seldom missed a Sodality meeting in his four years here. Athletics held a commanding place in his interests, since he was an intramuralist of high caliber and a member of the Bantam foot ball team in his junior year. In the future Vince plans to become an attorney-at-law.

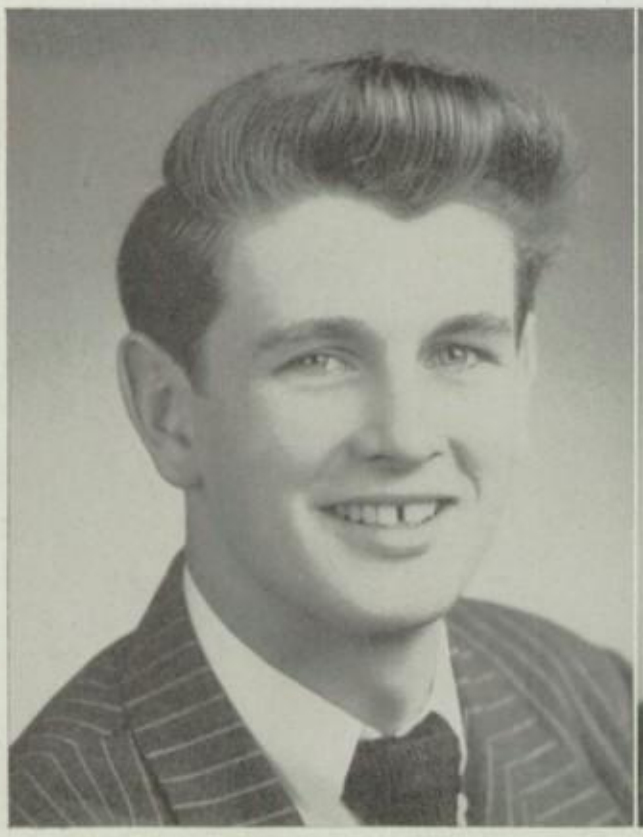
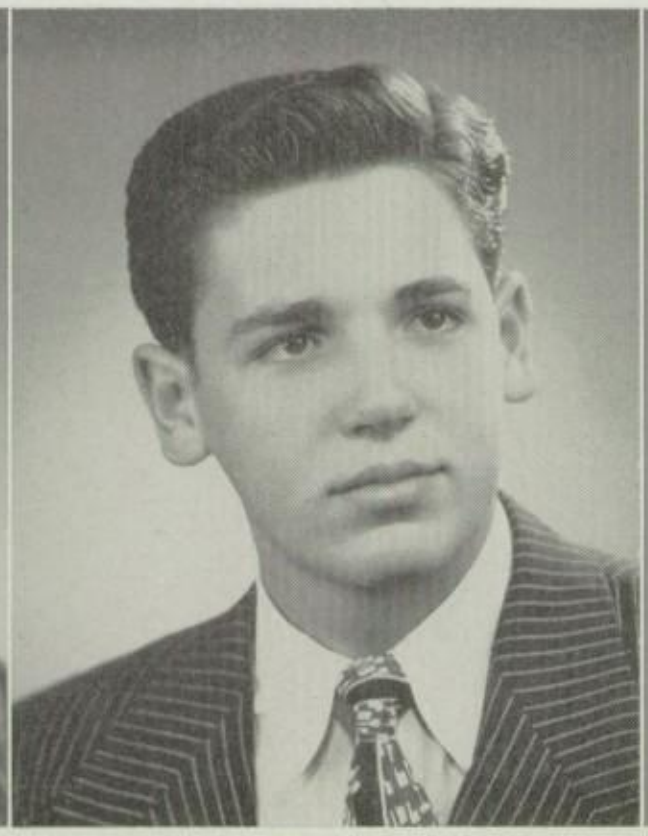
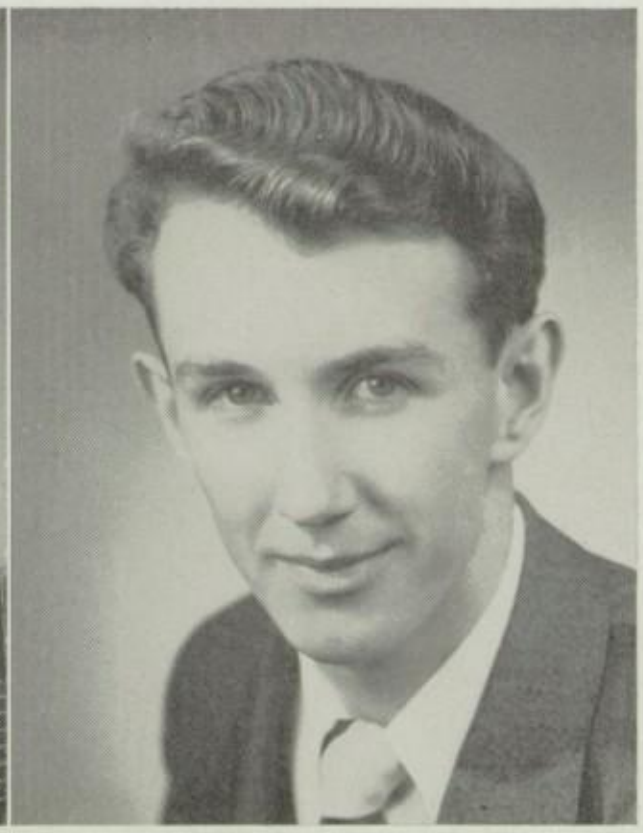
Clarence A. Brinkman was Mr. Stepaniak's favorite student. His questions were gems! Jack (a mysterious nickname for Clarence Arthur) is physically one of the mightiest of the Seniors. Much of his time was spent with the Sodality, the Chess and Catholic Action Clubs, and in meriting honors.

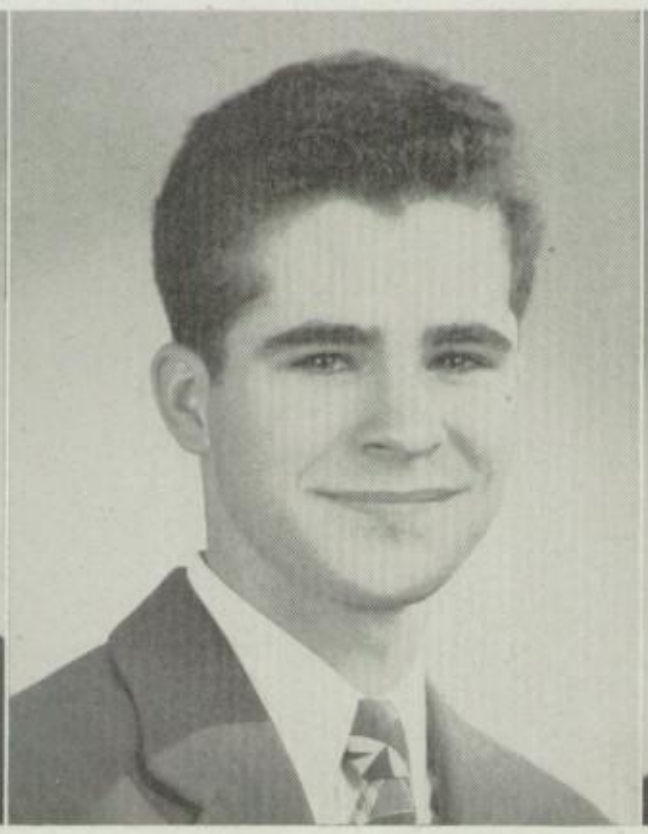
Mitchell M. Bristol

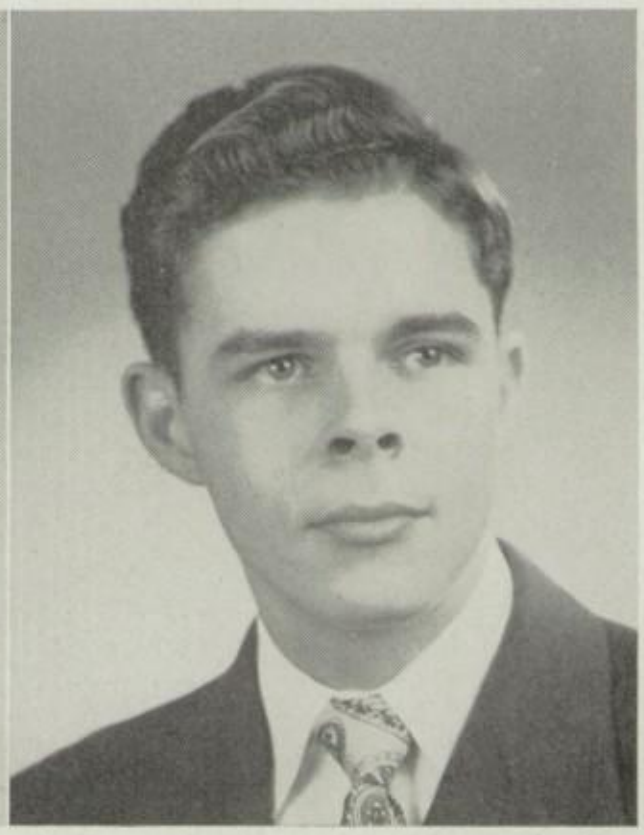
took French in his Junior year, but decided that this was insufficient. By joining the French Club he surely must have increased his knowledge of the language. He also took part in many a gruelling intramural baseball game. In the future Mitchell hopes to prosper as a dentist.











Anthony J. Buffa

was truly sports-minded. He took part in four years of intramural competition, besides boosting our track team while it lasted. In his third year "Tony" received honors and joined the Spanish Club. He plans to attend College and then proceed into the construction business.

John E. Burns

will be remembered as one of the best orators in the senior class and as the Managing Editor of the school newspaper. Jack received honors often in his studies and even found time for the Sodality, the Loyalty Club, the Debating Society, and the Chess Club.

Allan G. Campbell

took a very active part in the activities of the Sodality to the extent of heading the Mission Group of the Apostolic Committee. Allan also was an intramuralist of note, taking part in football, basketball, and baseball. He also played Reserve football and baseball and Freshman basketball.

. . . Class of 1947

Norbert A. Capoccia

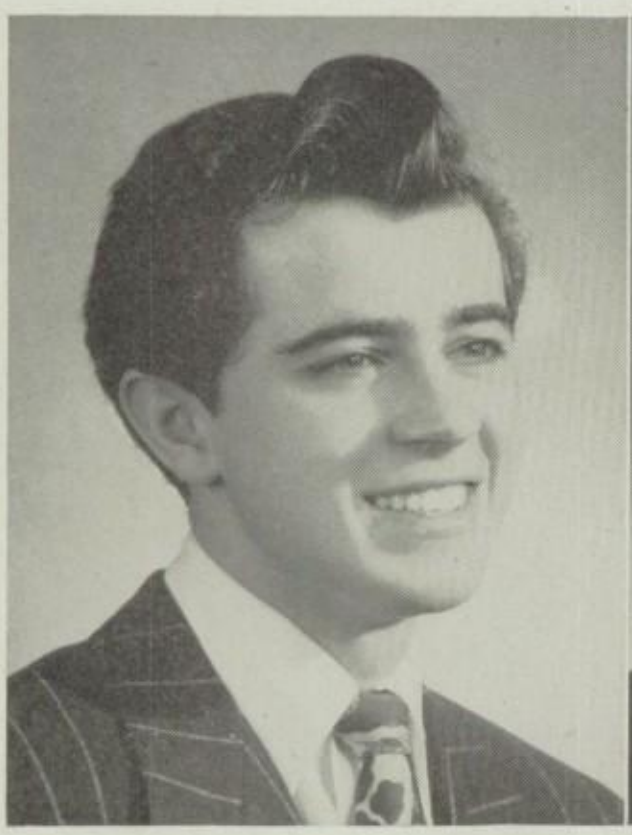
devoted the greater part of his time by far to intramural football and baseball, while chalking up an impressively long list of friends at school. From his first year he has been an ambitious member of the Sodality, although by nature he is inconspicuous and unassuming.

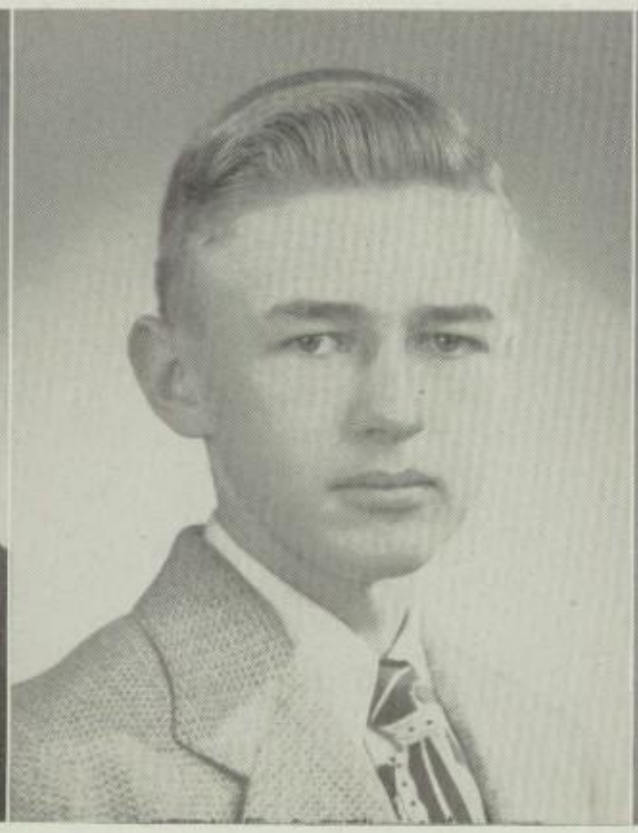
Edward B. Carew

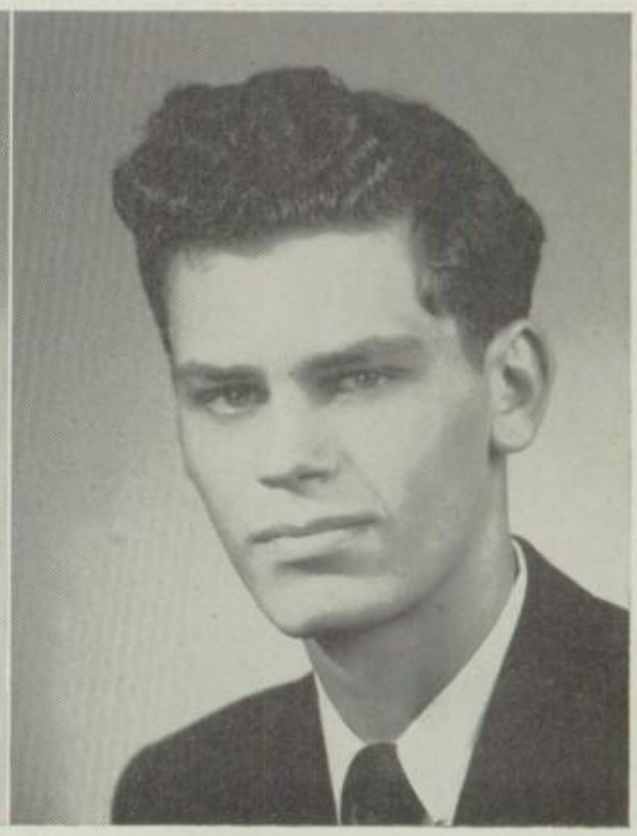
was a valuable man on the Varsity Basketball Squad, for his long reach and towering height dominated the back boards. He did well for himself in the classroom also, gaining honors during his first three years. Ed also gave much of his time to the advancement of the Sodality.

James J. Carey

is one of the few students at U. of D. who played intramural football, basketball, and baseball during all four years. Each year Joe was a member of the Sodality and helped generously in that organization. He was also in the Spanish Club. Joe's life ambition is to be a dentist.







James P. Carmody,

a natural athletic, actively participated in every intramural sport. During his high school days he devoted his leisure time to Freshman football and basketball, Bantam football, Reserve baseball, and Varsity tennis. In addition to these, he belonged to the Sodality and French Club.

James J. Carney

has taken home many white honor ribbons during his stay here. Aside from being a top student in the classroom, he has also served faithfully on the altar. With the motto, "Laugh and the world laughs with you," Jim will strive to find success in life.

Richard L. Carron

was well-known as an elocutionist and orator. He played Freshman basketball and Bantam football. He was a faithful member of the Sodiality and for three years he lent his rich tenor voice to the Glee Club. As a Freshman, Dick was an acolyte and received second honors.

Seniors . . .

James S. Chamberlain

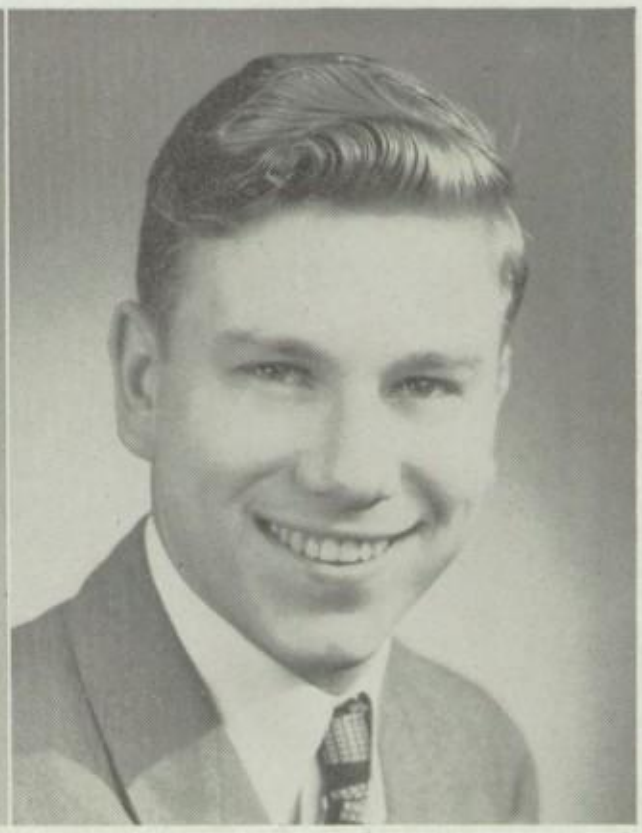
gave his time almost solely to basketball. He started out with the Freshman team, advanced to the Reserves, and finally reached his peak in his senior year as a member of the Varsity basketball squad. He also made a reputation as an excellent ping-pong player.

Thomas W. Charbeneau

merited at least a First Honor ribbon at every quarter and was Co-editor of this yearbook. He was a sodalist, a debater, and spent two years in the Glee Club. A talented speaker, Tom won the Elocution Contest three times, the Senior Oratorical Contest and was Salutorian.

Donald B. Chartier

was associated with the Sodality for three years and lent his talents to the Choir and French Club. He has a quiet friendly manner about him. His school career was interrupted by a year in Uncle Sam's Navy. Don aspires to become an accountant.



Michael E. Christopher

a consistent honor man, took an active part in the Sodality for three years at U. of D. He participated in both Reserve and intramural baseball, and lent his athletic ability to intramural football and basketball. He is noted for his love for argumentation.

Thomas H. Clauss

received honors in his first year, and was a strong Sodalist through his four years. Those of the Spanish and Chess Clubs knew him as a faithful and cooperative member. Tom also played intramural football in his first two years and was treasurer of his Junior class.

William C. Codde

was noted for his quiet personality here at U. of D. High. Hardly enough can be said for his spirited play which brought many a victory for his intramural teams in football, basketball, and baseball. Bill also was an ardent devotee of the Sodality and Spanish Club.

. . . Class of 1947

David E. Comeau

was one of the finest guards U. of D. has seen. An energetic sportlover, Dave showed exceptional ability on the Freshman team, and then for the next three years, was an invaluable man on the Varsity. Class-president in his last three years, he belonged to the Sodality, Monogram and Chess Clubs.

D'Arcy T. Conway

spent a great deal of his time taking pictures. In fact he did so well that he was elected President of the Camera Club. Besides taking part in Intramurals, he was a member of the French Club, and for a year, worked on the newspaper staff.

Bernard P. Costello

is the treasurer of his Senior class. A real activity man, he was a member of the Sodality and of the Spanish Club in his last two years. Besides his participation in intramural football and baseball, Pat played on the Reserve basketball team in his second year.

Jerry M. Crowley

captained one of the winningest teams ever known in bantam football history. He sparked them to thirteen victories and one defeat, suffered at the hands of a heavier team. This is the ideal U. of D. spirit. Jerry played intramurals also, took home honors occasionally, and was a Sodalist.

Charles P. Culhane

devoted himself to many activities here at school. The Sodality and the Catholic Action Club claimed his membership, and he sang as a bass in the Glee Club. He also offered his services to the Cub newspaper. In the future "Chuck" intends to enter the medical profession.

Richard E. Cyrul

is the treasurer of his senior class. more baseball and intramurals. He was a loyal member of the Senior Sodality and a main cog in the Glee Club. Dick slept through many a lively class, dreaming of his renditions on the accordion. His ambition is to shoot professional pool.

Seniors . . .

Ben. Dalessandro

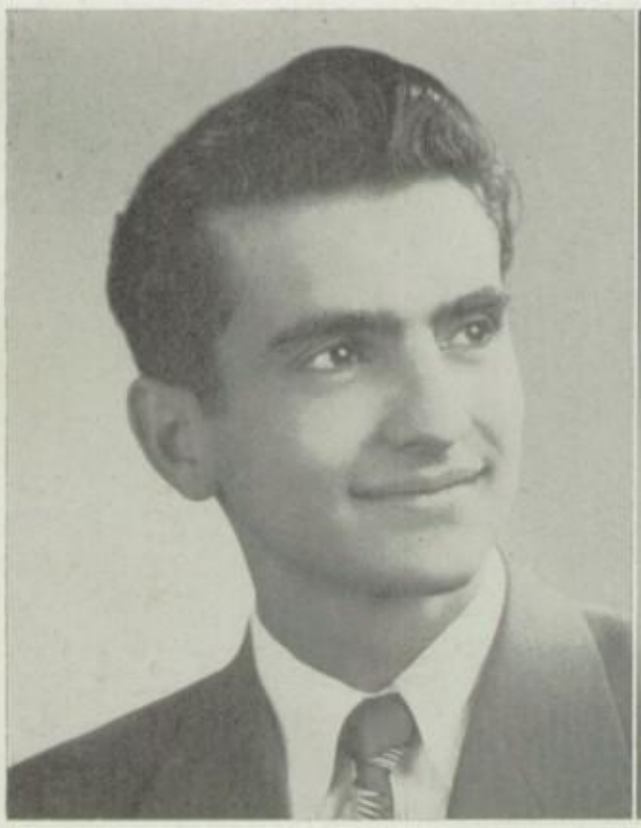
had a promising athletic career temporarily halted by a bad shoulder, even though he did play Freshman and Bantam football, and four years of intramural football, basketball, and baseball. Ben was also an active Sodalist and an Acolyte during his stay here.

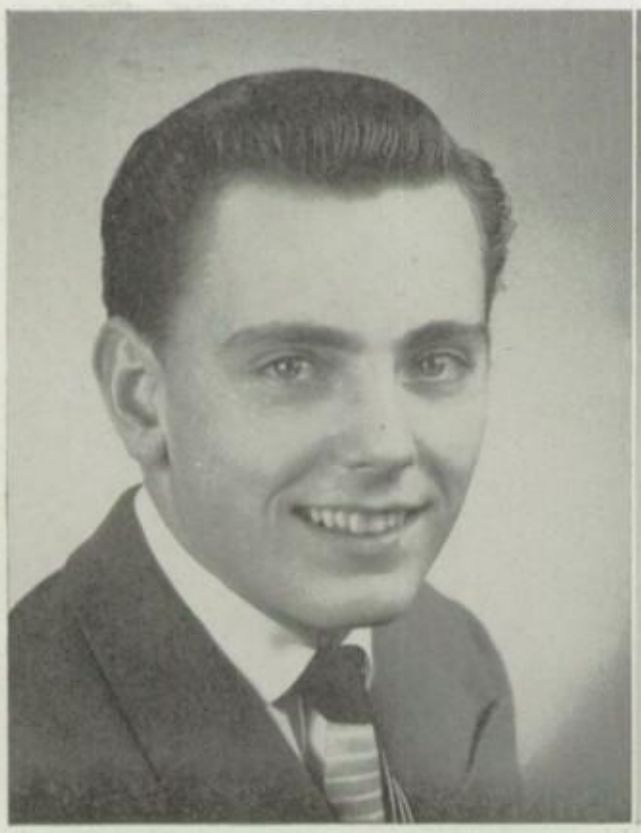
William C. Daley

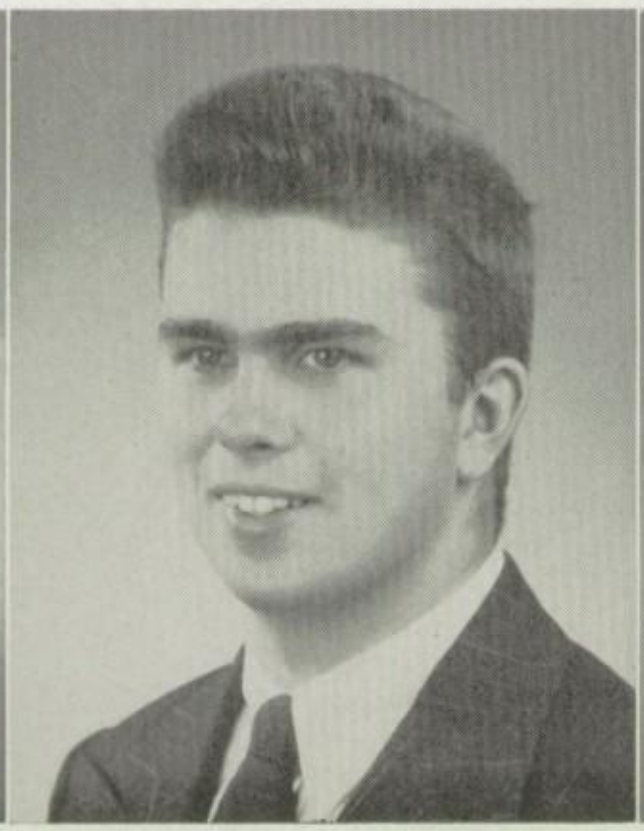
captured honors a few times and was in the Sodality and Glee Club for two years. "Biff" played on the Bantams in his junior year and played intramural football and baseball for four years. He was well-known for his quick responses.

Charles P. Depp

must have thoroughly enjoyed his unenviable job at a well-known funeral home, to hear him tell of it. His eye-witness accounts of the happenings during his working hours would jell the hearts of the bravest. Despite his after-school job, Charlie found time to study hard and merit honors.







Joseph P. Devereux

played intramural football, basketball, and baseball. Joe held the post of Treasurer in his senior class, and studied sufficiently to merit honors when he was a Freshman. He will be remembered by many as one of the best dressed men at U. of D. High.

Alan R. Devine

filled quite capably the position of tackle on the Varsity football team. During his four years, he alternated between First and Second honors in his studies. In third year he was elected president of his class. Alan plans to study law at Colgate University.

Norman B. Dilworth

the school's best bowler, took part in all intramurals. He received First Honors throughout his stay and was runner-up in the ping-pong contest. He was a member of the "Pirates" staff and labored extensively for its success. (Needless to say he wrote his own write-up.)

. . . Class of 1947

Gerald R. Dingler

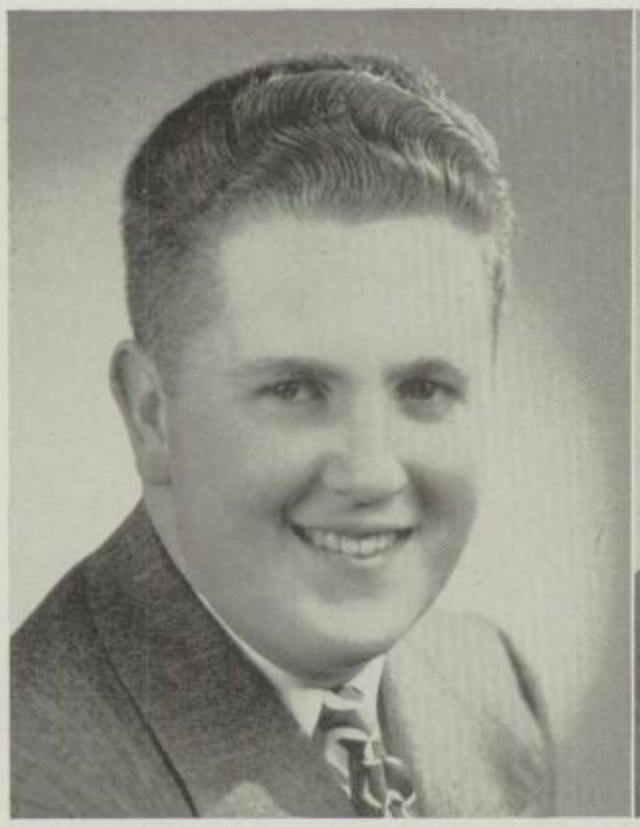
gained everyone's friendship while at U. of D. High. Always modest, Jerry grew as red as a beet when forced to explain some theory to the teachers. He was a four year member of the Sodality and a consistent member of his classes' intramural teams.

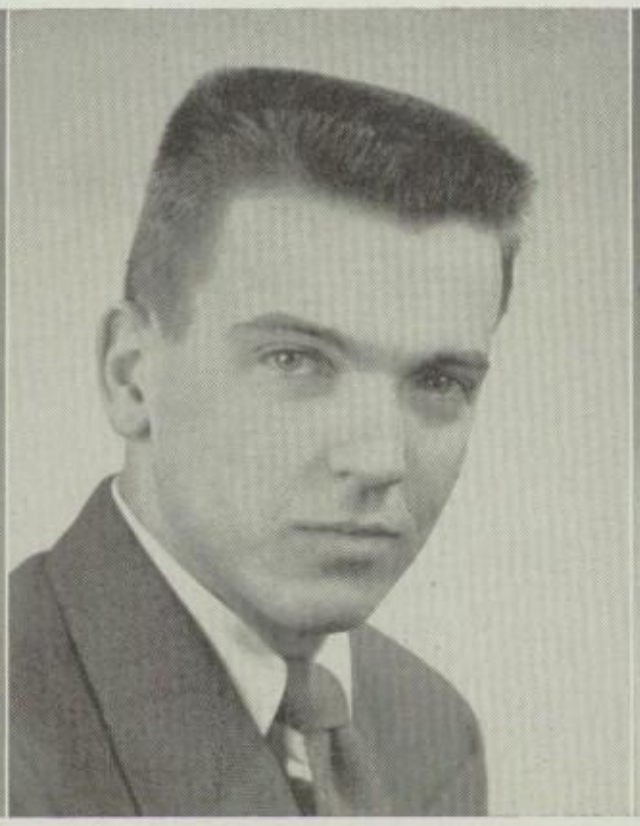
Joseph C. Dwyer

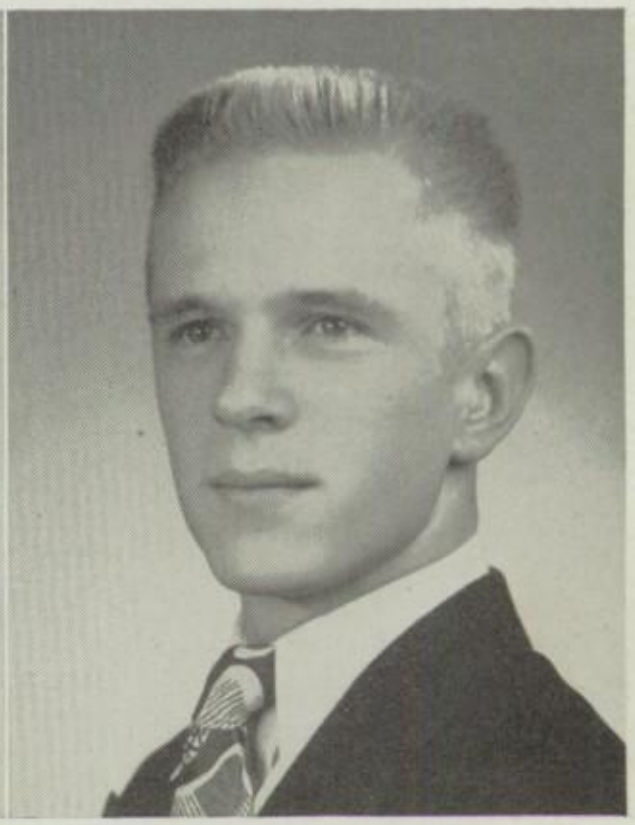
was renowned for his feats on the Varsity basketball floor. Joe played reserve basketball and intramurals, and was a member of the Sodality and an acolyte. He left U. of D. High for Loyola Academy, Chicago, for his Sophomore year but returned and has been with us ever since.

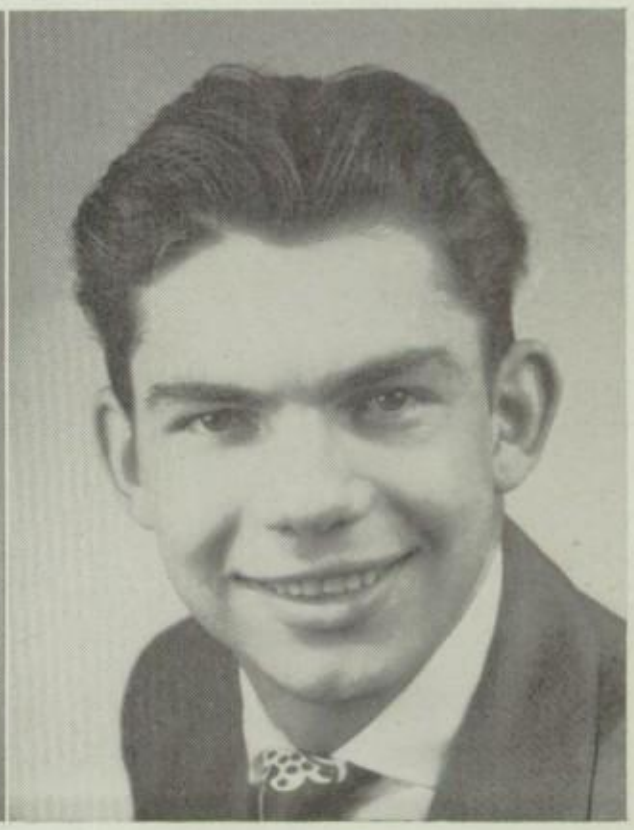
John A. Edwards

received honors every quarter. He took part in intramurals for four years, chalking up a fine record. John also spent some time in the Freshman Sodality and as a reporter of the Cub. His mathematical accuracy will equip him for engineering college.









John J. Farrell

worked on this Yearbook, and was Exchange Editor for the Cub newspaper. Jack worked for the Cub for four years. A four-year sodalist, he was also an acolyte in his first and third year. Other activities include Intramural football, the Camera Club, and the Chess Club.

Joseph J. Ferro

frequently received honor marks in his studies. Outside of the classroom he found time for several activities: the Sodality, in his first year, and the Spanish and Chess Clubs in his last year. Several years from now Joe plans to have an M.D. after his name.

Arthur J. Fettig

who was voted the most jugged student in his Freshman year, spent four years proving that he was worthy of that position. Cub newspaper readers are well acquainted with his versifying pen. Art was a member of the Sodality and an acolyte for three years.

Seniors . . .

Patrick E. Finney

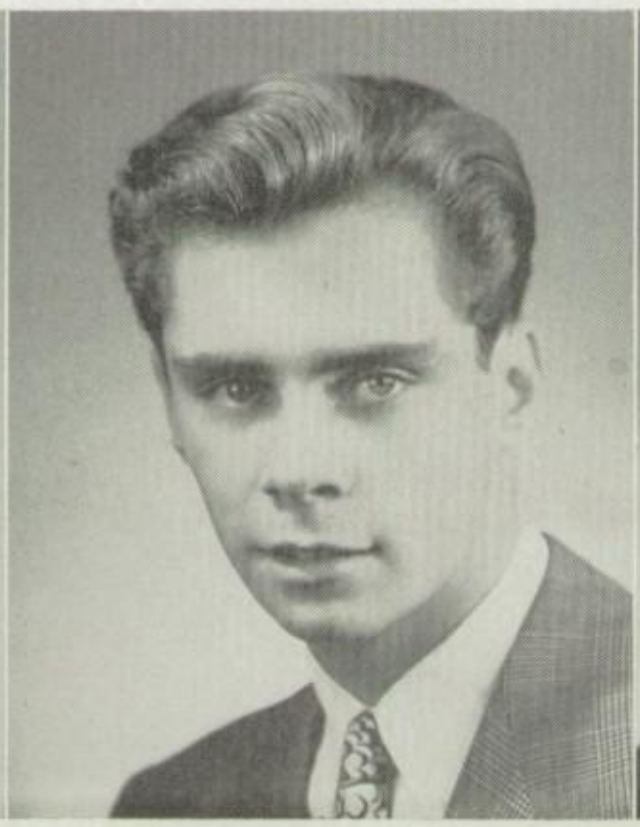
as a Varsity player, has conquered many an opponent on the tennis courts. He was held the office of Secretary in the French Club, and has associated himself with the Sodality. Pat, all agree, was surprisingly superb as "Samuel" in the "Pirates of Penzance."

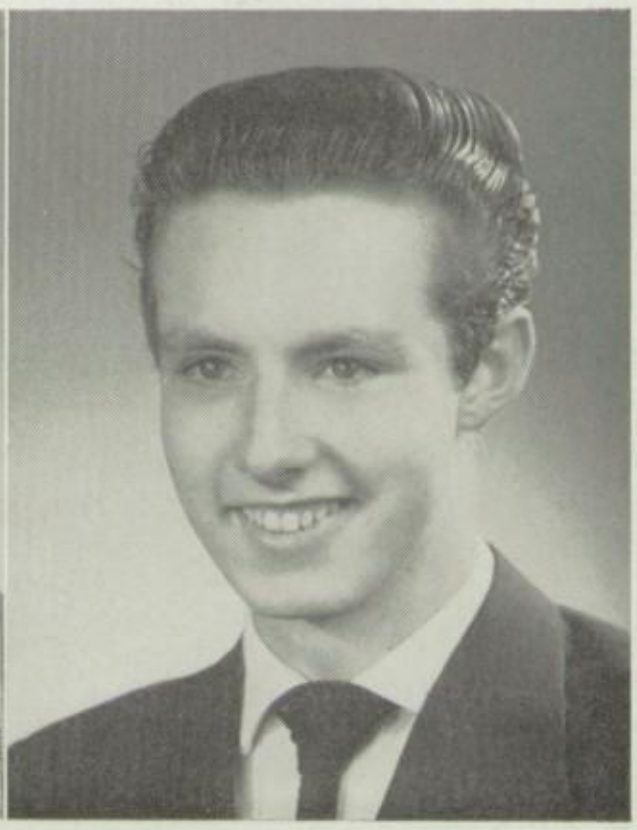
Thomas J. Fisher

was a manager on the Varsity basketball team for two years. He took active part in the French Club and rendered efficient service with his camera on behalf of the library. When asked about his future Tom stated that he wished to go into the merchandizing business.

James M. Fleming

has the unequalled distinction of being the only member of his class to merit honors. A local card-shark, he devoted himself to his art every noon in the Senior Lounge. He played football and basketball, and was the envy of his class-mates because of his facility in speaking German.





Carl E. Fletcher

a fairly consistent honor man, had his record broken only once and as a Sophomore he even received first honors. Carl was kept from active participation in athletics by ill health but spent his time very capably with the French Club and the Sodality.

Thomas F. Fogelsong

was made business manager of the Glee Club and worked hard to make the "Pirates of Penzance" a success. He played freshman basketball, and took part in intramural baseball and football. Active in the Glee Club and Sodality. Tom commended that U. of D. is "one fine school."

Harold G. Ford

a most notable "bad timer," spent his four year "term" (as he called it) ripping shirts. The "cork boy" was an active intramuralist and occasionally jaunted up for honors. His casual "I like it" was his instantaneous reply for any question irrespective of its nature.

. . . Class of 1947

Martin E. Galvin

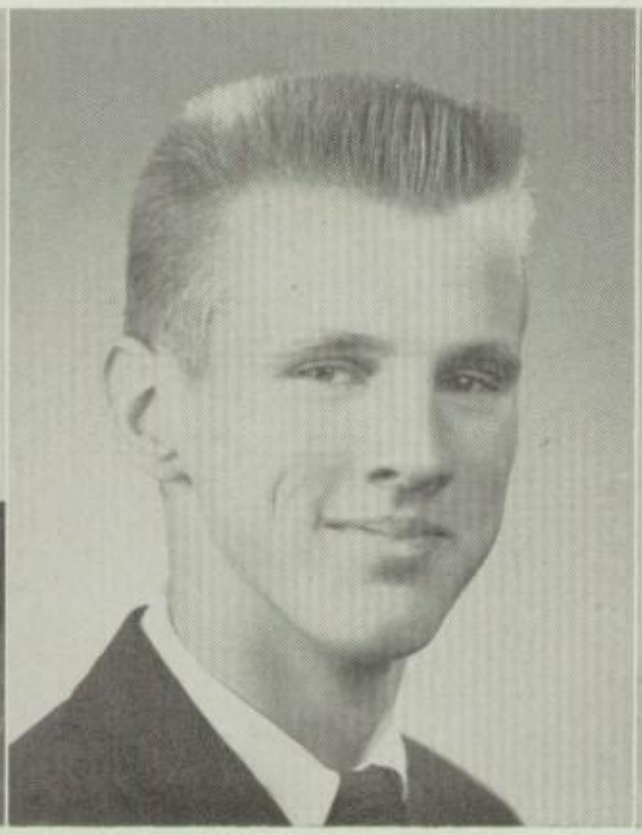
was a member of the Varsity football team for three years and was co-captain in his senior year. He was a member of the French Club and the Monogram Club, was a regular honor man, and acted as a class officer in both his freshman and sophomore years.

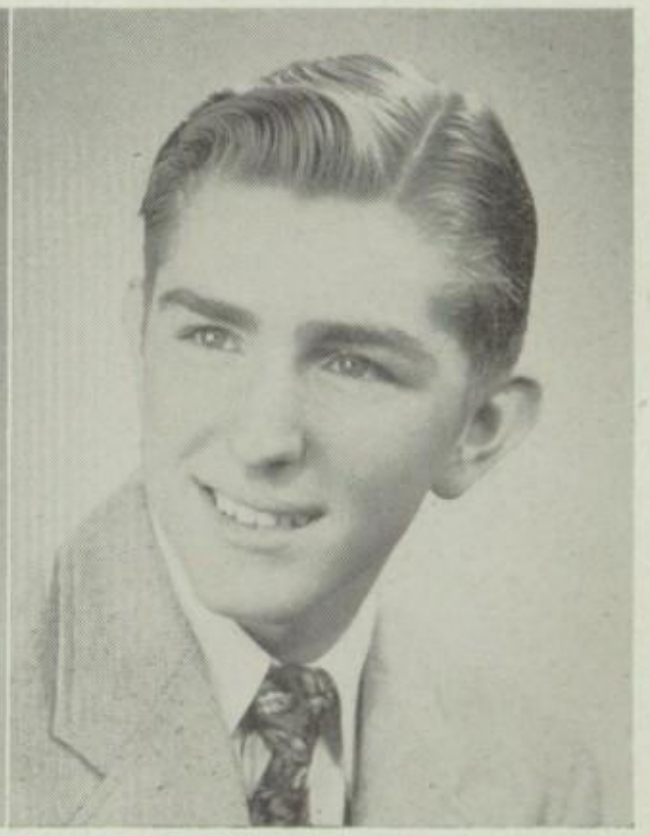
Donald J. Garry

was well-known as a star hurler on the Varsity baseball team and as a talented intramuralist. By joining the French Club and the Sodality he attended to his intellectual and spiritual life. If his plans materialize Don will some day become a successful engineer.

John A. Gehringer

was on the Freshman basketball team and, as a Sophomore, played Reserve baseball. He has been known to receive honors and has taken an active part in all intramurals. John, who was a Sodalist, was elected president of his class. His ambition is to be a successful business man.





Thomas V. Glover

during his stay at U. of D. has nourished a natural talent for mechanics. He plans to go into the Automotive Industry, and hopes to attend the General Motors Institute. No doubt, this ambition curtailed any prominent part in extra-curricular activities.

Robert L. Gutowski

has spent so much time in the Physics Lab that he has practically become part of the furnishings. No doubt he has gained valuable experience amidst the test tubes and falling bodies. As an honor man, a Sodalist, and an intramuralist, he leaves behind a modest yet impressive record.

Arthur P. Hanlon

will always be remembered for that detailed story he and Norm McKendrick made up about his inherited mansion, this and a few other of those gems pulled in class. Art played all intramural sports and claims to be the No. 1 bowler of the school.

Seniors . . .

Robert A. Heinlein

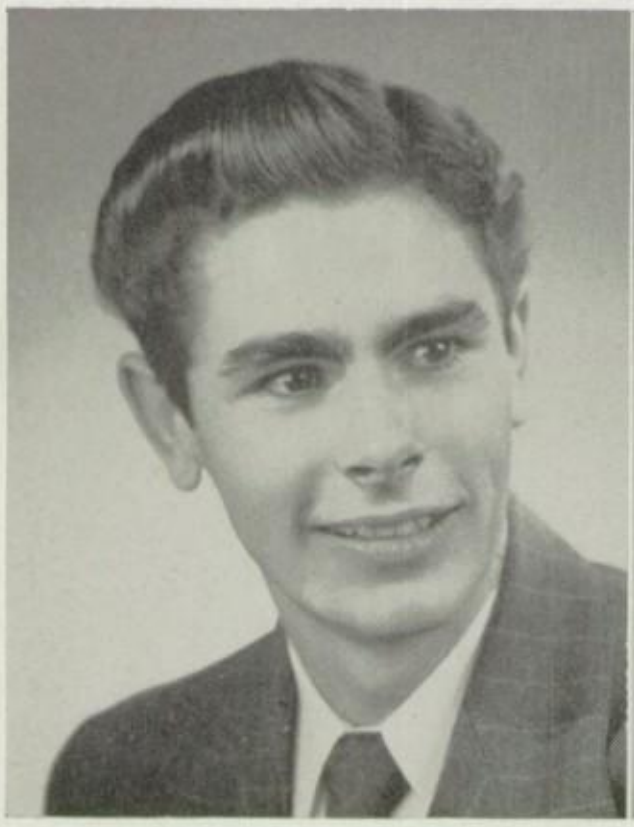
was for two years a star outfielder on the Varsity baseball team and thereby gained a place in the Monogram Club. Bob also took an active part in all intramurals and was an acolyte. He is looking forward to a promising and pleasant career as a dentist.

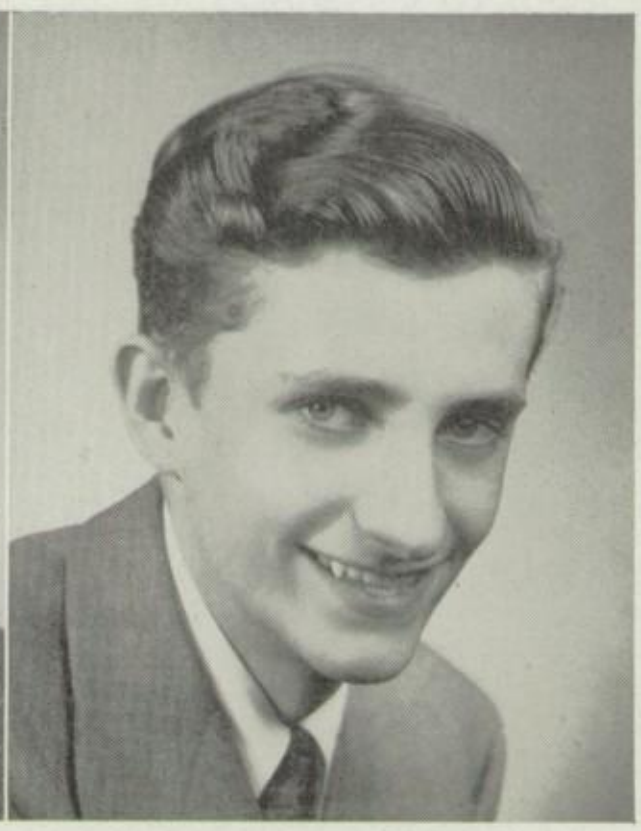
Joseph L. Heuser

was an invaluable line-man on the Varsity football squad in his third and fourth years. Many saw him on the Reserve baseball and basketball teams. An honor student as a Senior, he was a member of the Monogram Club, an acolyte, and a regular Sodalist.

Conrad S. Heyner

was a frequent recipient of the red and white Class Honor ribbon. In his third year he became so fascinated with the study of French, that he spent all his extra time with the French Club. It is rumored that Conrad intends to be a doctor.





Robert J. Hill

participated in all intramurals, was a faithful Sodalist, and made the reserve basketball and baseball teams. His aggressive manner was especially appreciated by Mr. Stepaniak. Bob, a future tooth puller, was known for his ability as a bowler. Some say he is a connoisseur of femininity.

William D. Hinsberg

can be described as a combination of brains and brawn, for he obtained honors, and participated in Freshman basketball, Bantam football and all intramural sports. Bill was also an active member of the Sodality and a class officer in his first, third and fourth years. (by B. Hinsberg.)

John T. Hoey

the poor man's Einstein, kept Fr. Eckman constantly alert with his dubious explanations. He lent his support to the Sodality and acolytes besides participating on the Freshman football team and the Debating Club. It is said that John saved enough money collecting mission funds to buy himself that beautiful car.

. . . Class of 1947

William E. Hogan

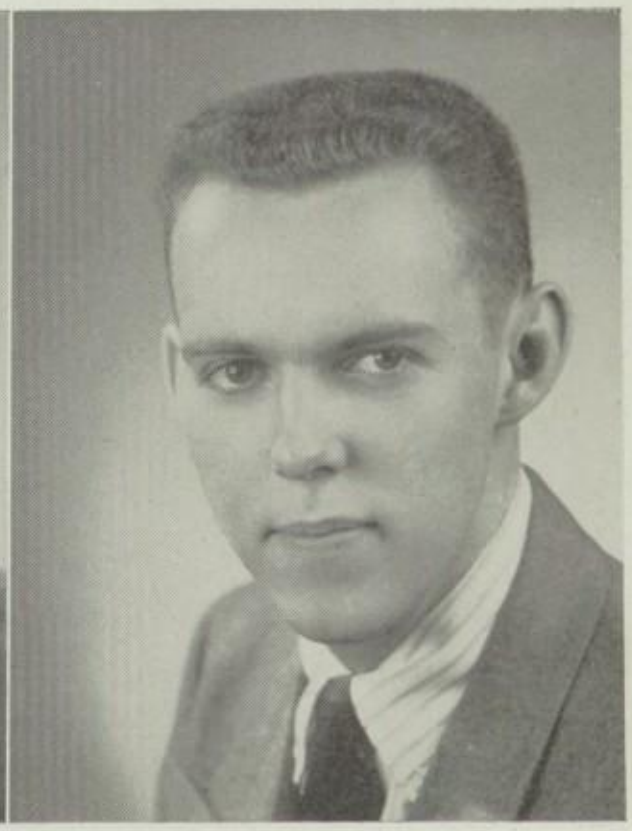
must have listened attentively to the lecture on dentistry last November because he has decided to become a tooth-extractor. In his four years of high school Bill has merited honors, and belonged to the Sodality, the Glee Club, and the Camera Club.

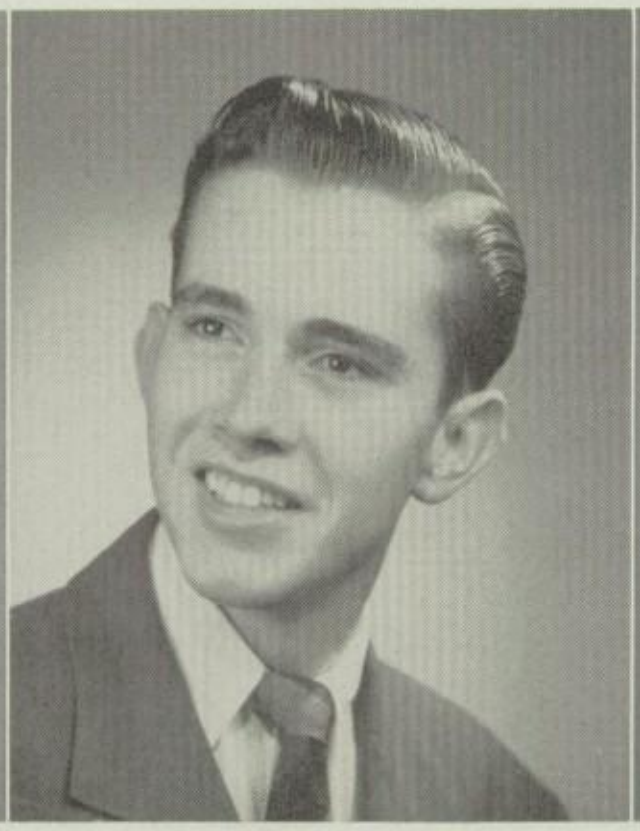
Charles J. Hoomaian

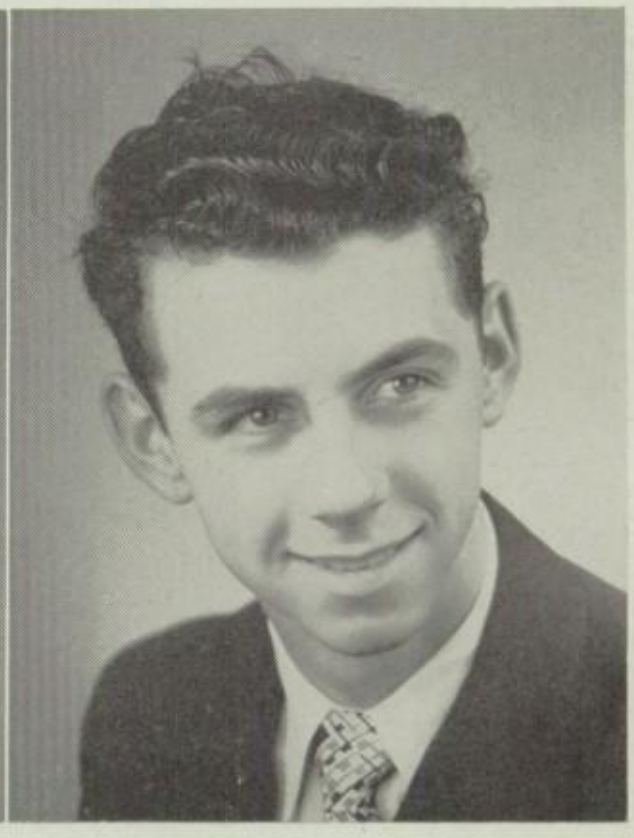
if he had his way, would spend the rest of his life in the boxing ring. It was a common sight to see him sporting a black eye, received from some unknown adversary, but this never discouraged him. "Charley" fought equally hard for his classmates in intramural sports.

Charles A. Houff

made the golf team in his senior year, played intramurals, was elected president of his junior class, and spent two long years out on the Varsity football field, running around at Mr. Tiernan's directions and training himself to take all kinds of guff as he earned one varsity and one reserve letter.







Earl W. Hudak

sparked the intramural football and baseball teams with his bone-crushing and line-bucking talents; his enthusiastic gym antics caused alarm for his fellow 4Cer's. If all Physicists were as precise as Earl was, there would never be a need to repeat an experiment in the Laboratory.

Terrence C. Hynes

seldom received a mark below ninety in his studies. As a member of the Sodality and the French Club he embellished this record, but his crowning effort came as the Activities' editor of this yearbook. Terry leaves the school well prepared to advance in the field of medicine.

Ronald R. Ingram

attended the Spanish Club meetings and pushed the ivory chessmen over the boards with other members of Mr. Rutti's Chess Club. He ran with the first of our track team, received honors, played intramural football, basketball, and baseball, and was a Sodalist.

Seniors . . .

Mitchell W. Jabczenski

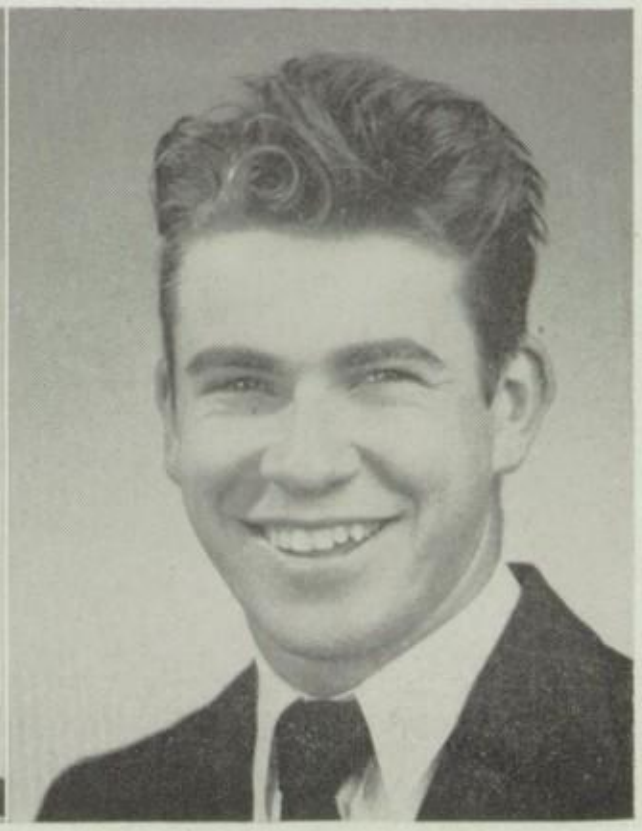
came to these hallowed halls in his third year. He soon became a fervent Sodalist and a talented intramuralist. In his last year he joined the Catholic Action Club and was elected secretary of his class. Mitchell hopes to become a chiropractor in future years.

John J. Jentgen

has placed a high goal at the top of his ladder of ambition—lawyer, politician, Senator. He was a member of the Junior Debating Society and for four years was an honor man. In athletics John played intramural football, basketball, and baseball.

William K. Joyce

co-authored the fraudulent farce, "Sport Shorts" column for the Cub besides singing in the Glee Club, meriting honors, and going to Monogram Club and Sodality meetings. Bill was slated for a big senior year at varsity football and basketball until he received his famous "24 stitches."



Victor C. Kalthoff

made a dashing appearance with his wavy hair and blue eyes, but even so he failed to elude the snares of the jug room. However, he survived his four years, finding time for intramural sports and the Sodality. Vic hopes to find success as a doctor.

Paul M. Kaniut

came to our school for the first time last September. Formerly, he had attended a military academy in Minnesota, Paul contributed a year of efficient service to the Cub newspaper in his Senior year, and hopes to attain a doctorate in medicine in the future.

John J. Karabees

was always ready to give his class the benefit of his athletic talents. These included intramural basketball, football, and baseball. Although he will be remembered mostly for the latter activities, Jack was also a Sodalist and a recipient of the red honor ribbons.

. . . Class of 1947

Jerome P. Kelly

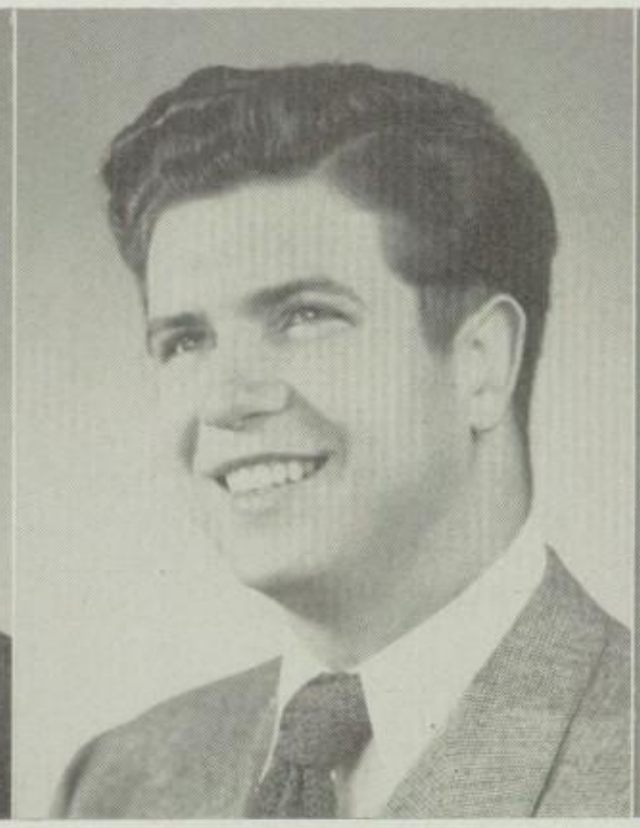
a sturdy man on the gridiron, was proficient in both football and tennis. His hardy nature and massive muscles have played no little part in his four years of football and as captain of the tennis team. Pat reigned as president of his class in third year and as secretary in fourth.

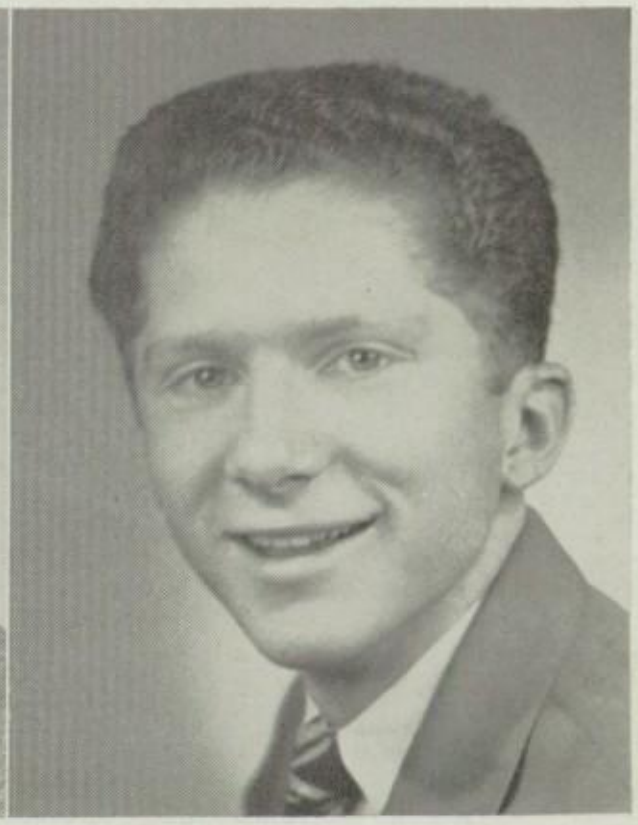
James M. Kennary

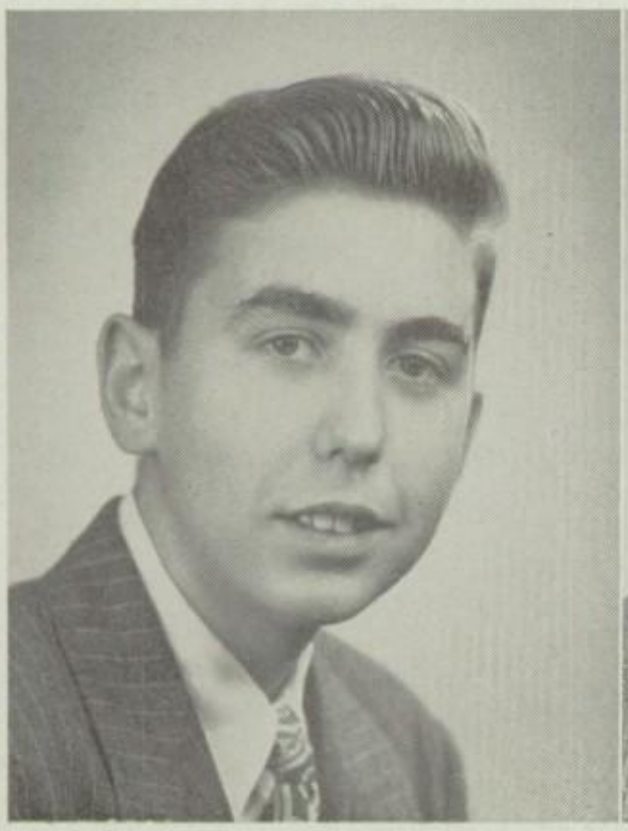
proudly wears a Varsity letter for his fine performance on the gridiron and on the baseball diamond this year. Scholastic honors have always been his, and the Sodality and French Club have felt his presence. Jim will follow his father in the medical profession.

James J. Kilsdonk

was a member of the Bantam football team, Glee Club and Debate team. Not only did Jim keep his average above 90% and serve faithfully as an acolyte for four years but also devoted much time and effort as News Editor on the Cub newspaper and Associate Editor on the yearbook.







James G. Klein

better known as "Gil," was and is a virtuoso of the musical keyboard. His rendition of "Shantytown" has been acclaimed by all. He also displayed great powers on the tennis courts and without him, there would have been no advertising in this yearbook.

Edward H. Klersy

has amassed an impressive collection of First Honor ribbons in his four years here. Aside from scholastic endeavor, he has given much of his time to the Sodality and the Cub newspaper. His athletic abilities made him a valuable player on any of the intramural teams.

Edward A. Korte

spent three years as "a constant patron to the Freshman, Sophomore, and Junior 'private' smokers." He also played three years of intramural baseball and received honors as a freshman. Ed wants to become a turf magnate and breed the finest race horses in the country.

Seniors . . .

Robert Z. Kowalski

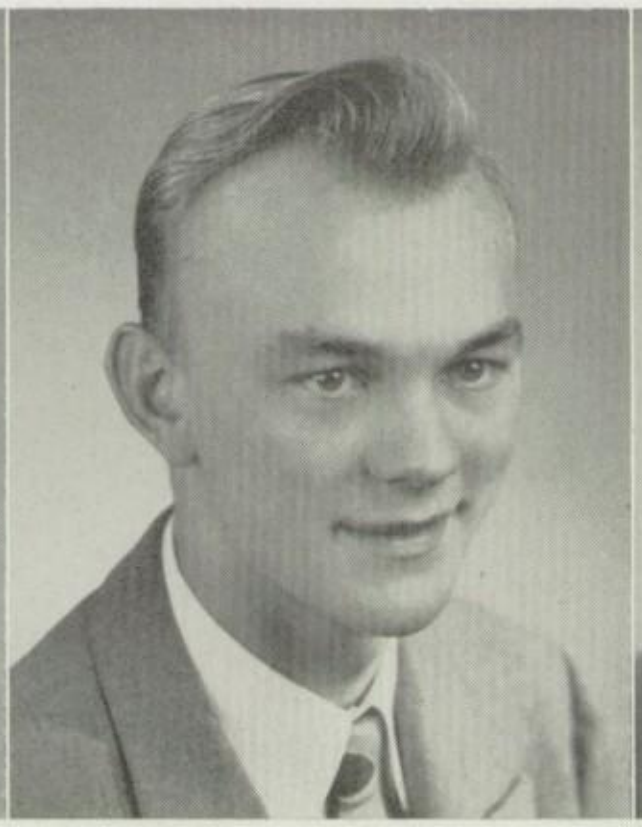
has always been a top student in his class, receiving first honors at every quarter. He often served on the altar and took part in every intramural sport. Bob will go on to college, knowing that he has become an accomplished debater.

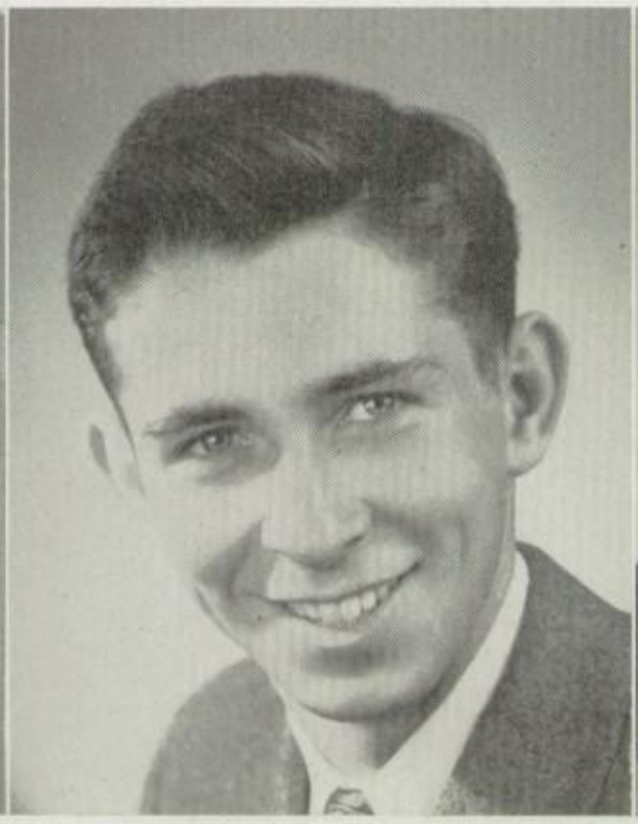
George W. Kramer

built up a noteworthy reputation for his prowess on the gridiron. In his Senior year his letter sweater was the envy of many students, especially that All-City stripe. "Doc" was also a member of the French Club and as a four year honorman, he had an enviable scholastic record.

William H. Krieg

attended Sodality meetings with great regularity throughout his high school years. He merited honors several times during his four years at U. of D. Bill took the Classical Course and no doubt this influenced him in his decision to continue his education in college.





James P. Lane

as student leader of the orchestra, sent forth melodious tones from his unerring saxophone. Aside form this the Sodality, the French and Glee Clubs, and athletic competition have taken up much of his time. An honor man, Jim is interested in Foreign Commerce as a future.

James R. Leinweber

captured honors in his Freshman year, they escaped in his next two years, but he recaptured them as a senior. Jim was also a fervent Sodalist, an intramuralist, and a veteran of many campaigns on the Grosse Pointe bus.

William H. Linow

has had very little leisure time during his school career. As a Sodalist, Feature Editor of the Cub newspaper, manager of the Varsity football team, and a consistent Class or First Honor man, Bill entrenched himself firmly in the school's activities. Bill hopes to become a brain surgeon.

. . . Class of 1947

Leo J. Linsenmeyer

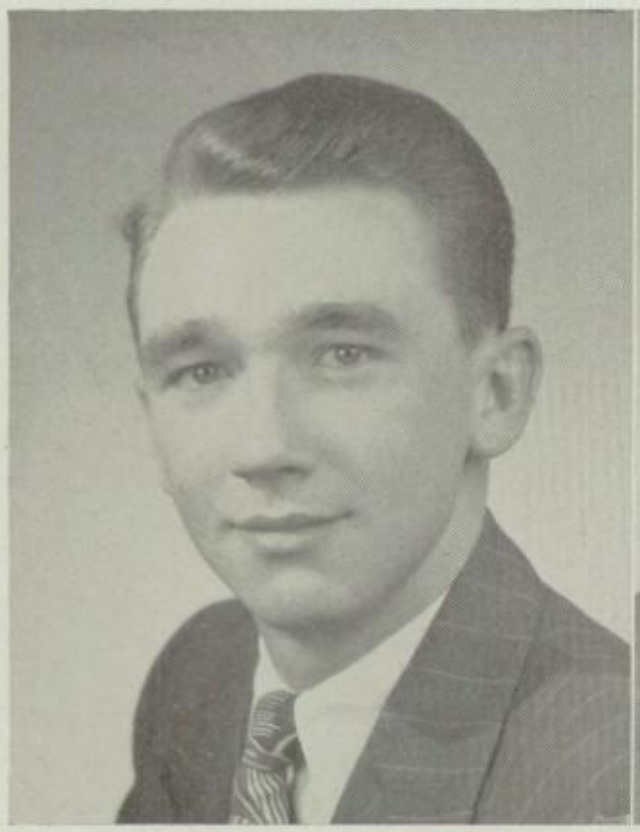
in his four years here, has never missed getting first honors. He was an active member of the Sodality and of the Glee and French Clubs, and played intramural football. Leo has a double ambition in life: to pass French and to become an engineer.

Joseph W. Lock

was always ready to defend the honor of his class in intramural competition, lending his talents to the basketball and baseball teams. He received honors in his Freshman year. Joe plans on becoming a salesman, perhaps, in South America, as he was an avid member of the Spanish Club.

Brian J. Loftus

gave his all to the baseball team and played Frosh football and Reserve basketball. He was always present when honors were given out and was a loyal supporter of the Sodality, acolytes, and Glee Club. In addition to this he worked on the Cub newspaper.



David W. Logan

is one of the school's war veterans. He left in June of 1943 for three years of Naval service and returned in September of 1946. Dave plans to take up Mechanical Engineering in College and then he will perhaps follow a sales career.

Henry P. Lynch

came to our school in his Senior year. Henry believes in doing first things first and therefore upon his arrival he immediately joined the Sodality. He confined his remaining interests to the classroom and decided that his future lay in the legal profession.

William R. McBrearty received honors in his first year at U. of D. Although Bill left us for a semester in his third year, he deserves to be known and remembered as a loyal U. of D. man. When he returned to the school, he rejoined the Sodality and took an active part in that activity.

Seniors . . .

James H. McCormick

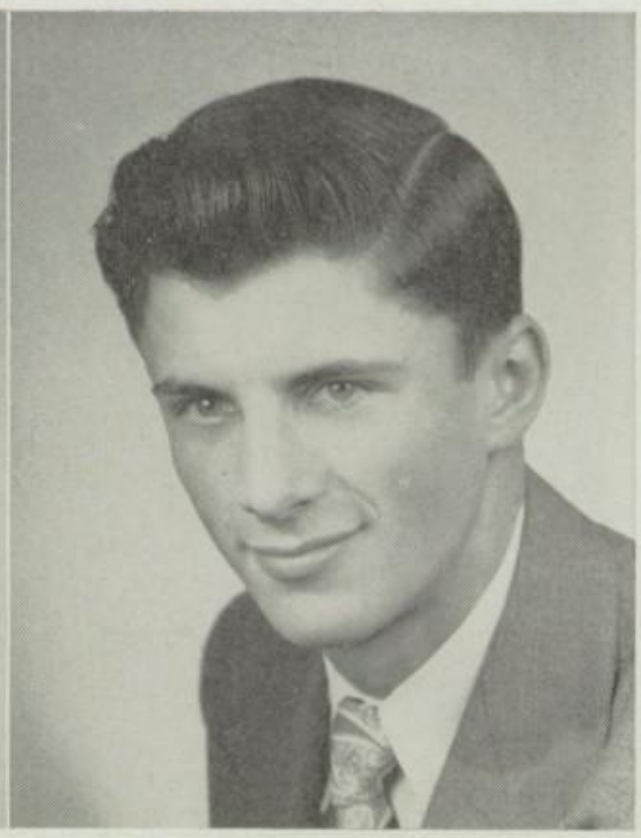
is well-known by the close followers of intramural basketball as a great team player. He was satisfied to remain in the background and our only complaint is that he didn't shoot enough. Much of his extra time was devoted to this year's Cub Annual.

Robert R. McDonald

spent much of his time working for a diploma but even more time praying for one. If credits were given for time spent in the Senior lounge, Bob would now have no worries. After graduating, he will work for a degree in engineering.

Frank T. McGann

would make quite a politician since he was elected as an officer in almost every class or activity of which he was a member. A consistent worker he merited honors at every quarter. Frank developed his athletic talents by participating in Reserve basketball and baseball.



John J. McGowan

was born with a smile on his face and brown hair on his head. He was another one of those stylish dressers of the Class of '47! Jack spent much time keeping up with the latest fads but did not participate in school activities or athletics.

Dennis A. McInerney

took the part of a big man on the campus, played fullback on the varsity grid squad, caught on the Varsity baseball diamond, and received honors occasionally. Dennie was a Sodalist, a solid member of the Monogram Club, and intramuralist.

Norman G. McKendrick has red hair and freckles, spent four rollicking years at the high. He was known for his authorative talks on most any subject. The only trouble was that his oratory was endless. Norm sang in the Glee Club and kept Fr. Linz's records of the second basses, as well as being a Sodalist.

. . . Class of 1947

William A. McNally

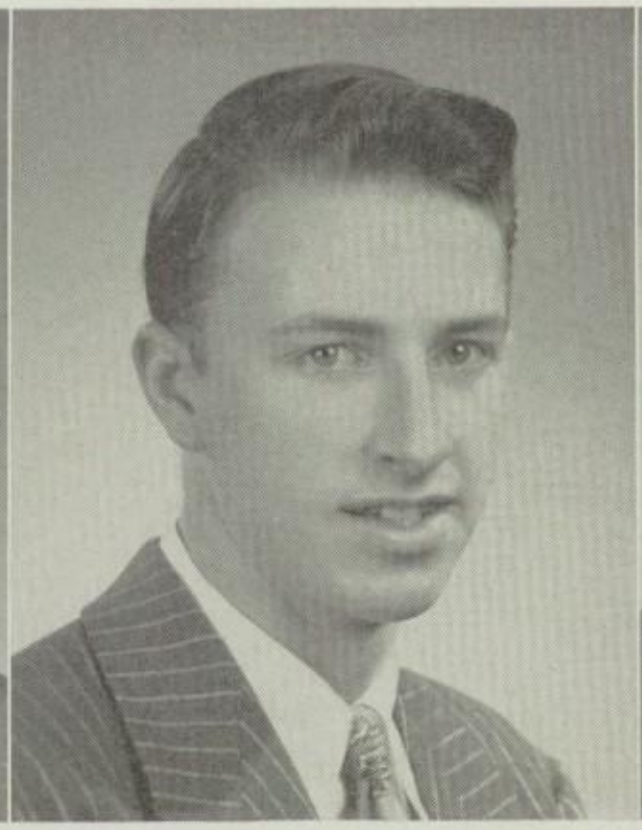
was very well satisfied to sit in the back of the room and show up the teachers. Besides that, he played intramural basketball and football and merited honors during his entire high school career. Bill was a Sodalist an acolyte, and acted as a class officer.

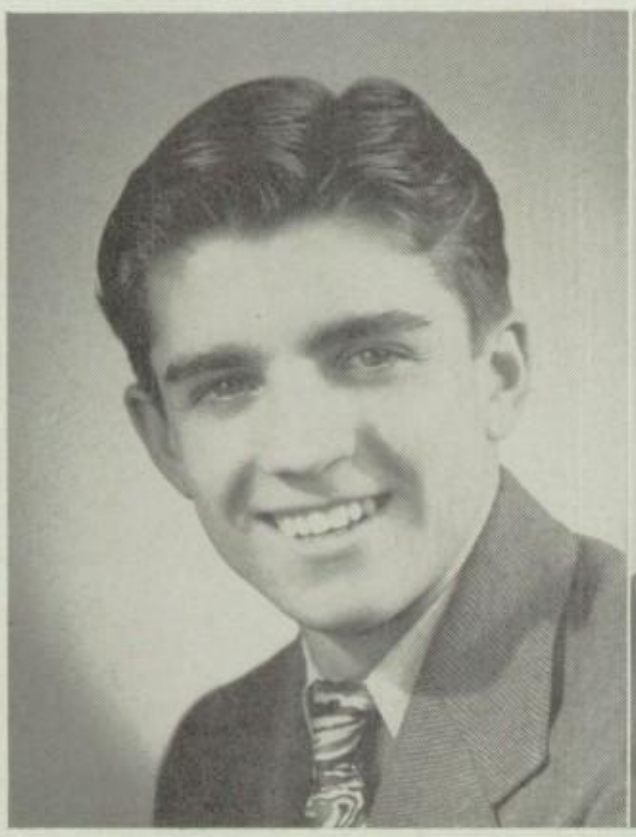
Lee F. Maloney

secretary of his graduating class, spent a generous part of his extra-curricular time with the Sodality. All will remember his enthusiasm for intramural sports, especially for football and basketball and his stellar performance on the Varsity baseball squad.

Harry J. Manuel

dubbed "Legs," was an extraordinary man with a basketball, winning a place on the Varsity in his Sophomore year. He was a member of the Sodality and a natural for the Glee Club. Harry has a room in the fire house, and is likely to own his very own red terror some day.





John P. Martin

played intramural football and basketball in his earlier years at U. of D. High but passed up a good thing in neglecting other activities, clubs, and sports. John inhabited the lounge every noon when he had attained the status of a senior. His life ambition is to study to become a doctor.

Joseph G. Martin

was a star photographer for the Cub newspaper, an honor student, a Sodalist, a member of the school orchestra, and an acolyte. Since he also took a very active part in intramurals we can safely say that Joe's four years were well spent.

Ronald E. Mayotte

since he came here four years ago, has been an ardent Sodalist. He received honors intermittently. Ron was vice-president of the Art Club as a Junior and was president during his first term as a Senior. An able artist, he was also a Chess Clubber and intends to be an architect.

Seniors . . .

James P. Meloche

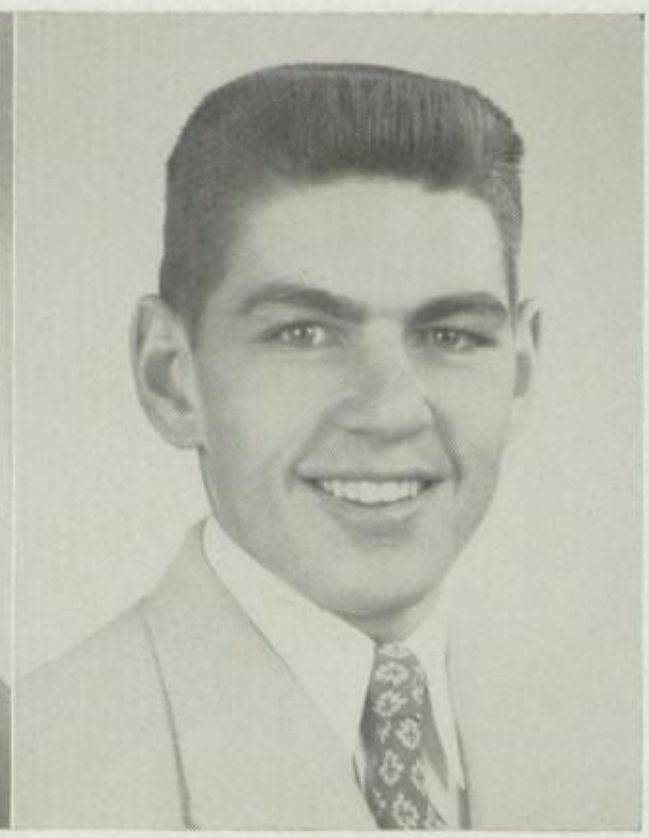
can surely be dubbed "John L. Sullivan II." That right uppercut really hurts! In the classroom Jim was always ready to dispute anything in solid geometry class. His versatile doings at the High included: daily intramurals, weekly Sodality, and quarterly honors.

Henry P. Meloche

rated a star billing for his role in the Glee Club "Pirates" production. Paul led his crew of costumed policemen in such unique make-up that his own Mother didn't recognize him until he sang. He also was section leader of the second tenors and a member of the Sodality.

Frank J. Messing

president of his class, famed intramuralist, quarterly honorman, exemplifies the "U. of D. man." Each season saw Frank on the football field, basketball floor, or baseball diamond displaying an envied skill. As class treasurer in third year he showed his leading spirit.



Leland G. Metevia

captured honors and was a member of the Cub newspaper and Debating Society in his Freshman year. He was a Sodalist and a Glee Clubber and spent many pleasant moments with the French Club. After his graduation Lee plans to continue his education at the University of Detroit.

John H. Meyer pitched his way onto the Varsity baseball squad and stayed up on the top there for three years. John held a position on the Varsity football team also, and filled out his sports life playing basketball intramurals. The Sodality, French Club, and the Monogram Club called him their own.

James I. Miller

was a member of the Sodality for four years. Jim was well-liked by his classmates and so was elected vice-president of his Freshman class and president of his Sophomore year. He joined the short-lived hockey team, but an injury in the first game kept him out of other sports.

. . . Class of 1947

James R. Mog

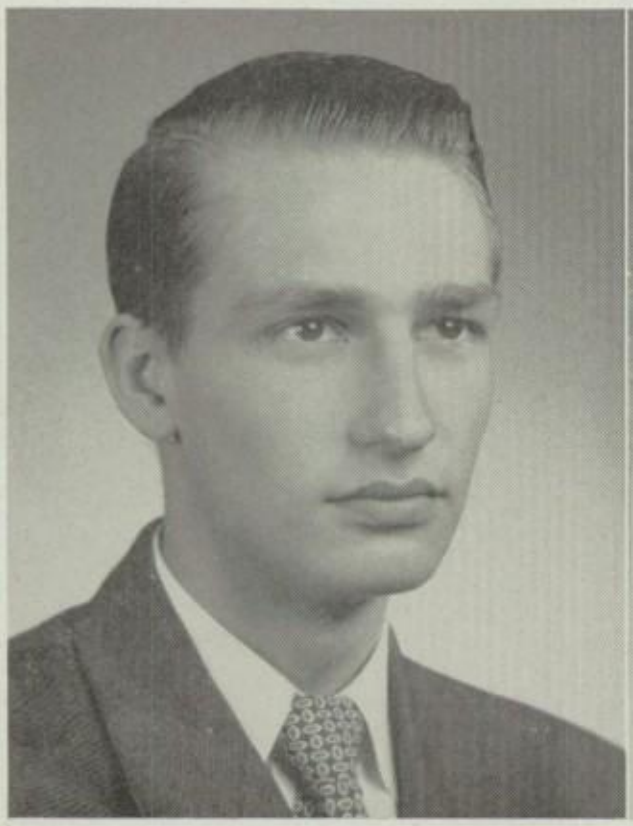
played a very fine "slip horn" for the school orchestra and for three years was a second tenor in the Glee Club. Jim played intramural football and baseball during his first two years here, and was an active supporter of the Spanish Club as a Junior.

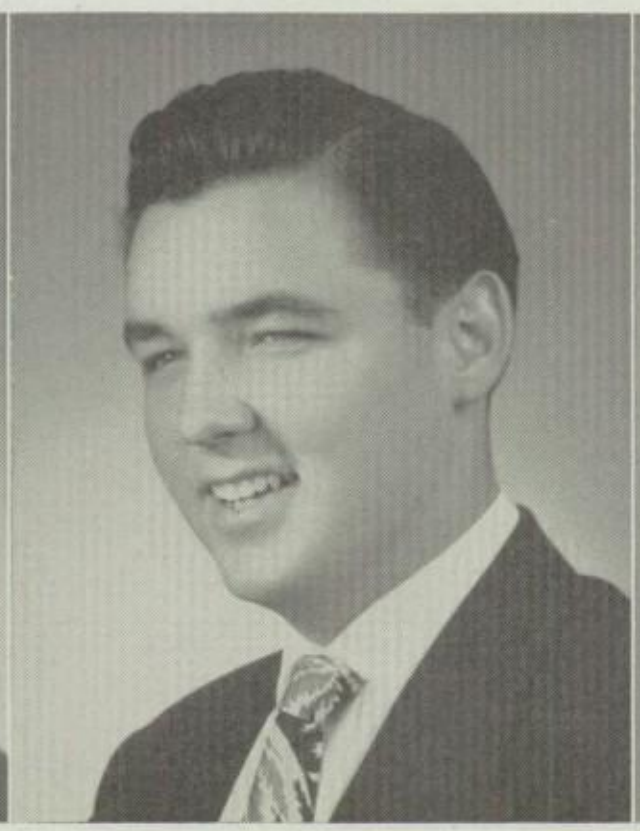
Richard H. Moore

a busy and efficient veteran of the Cub newspaper, was the editor-in-chief in his Senior year and was sports editor of the Yearbook. His other activities included the Sodality for four year, the Spanish Club, acolytes, intramural football, and boxing.

Paul G. Moore

was a member of the Glee Club and Sodality in third year and was elected treasurer of his Sophomore class. Paul played intramural baseball as a Freshman. He plans to attend the University of Detroit and take up aeronautical engineering for his life work.





Thomas F. Moormann

gained much popularity since he arrived here two years ago. He has been elected an officer of the Sodality and president of 4B. An All-City fullback, and football plaque winner, he even starred in Varsity basketball. In his studies Tom has never failed to merit honors.

Clarence E. Mularoni

the smallest of the Mularoni clan which invaded U. of D. High in the fall of 1943, was one of the best liked fellows on the campus. He concentrated his interests in the Spanish and Chess Clubs and in his third year played on the Bantam football team.

Jerry L. Mularoni

tooted a clarinet in the orchestras and tried his hand at intramural games. He supplied the Bantam football team with his capacities as a guard, and took in a little varsity sport on the gridiron. Jerry managed to get away with murder without being jugged in Fr. Eckman's trig class.

Seniors . . .

Humbert A. Mularoni

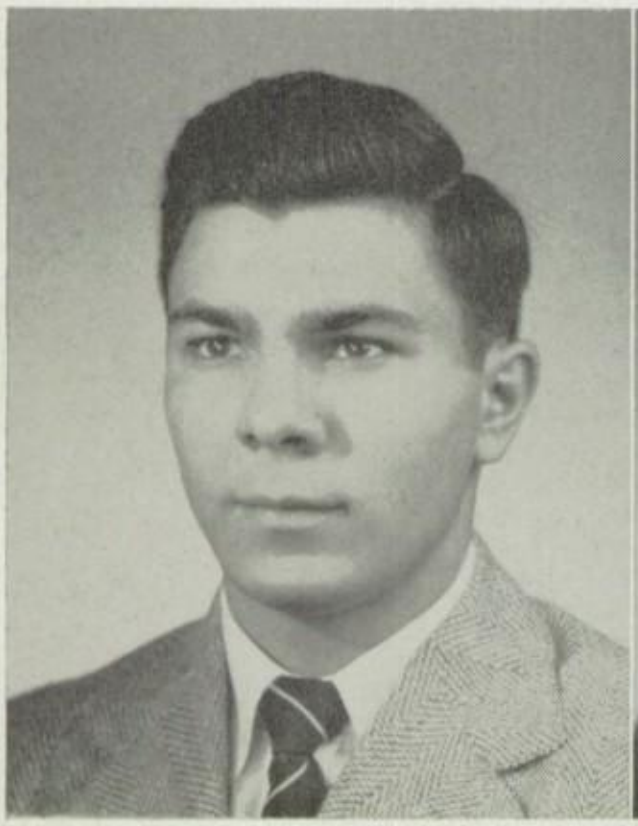
had an unquenchable thirst for sports, he played Freshman, Bantam, and Varsity football and also fought hard for his classmates intramural sports. Humbert took quite a liking to the Spanish and Chess Clubs in his Senior year and was ever a devout Sodalist.

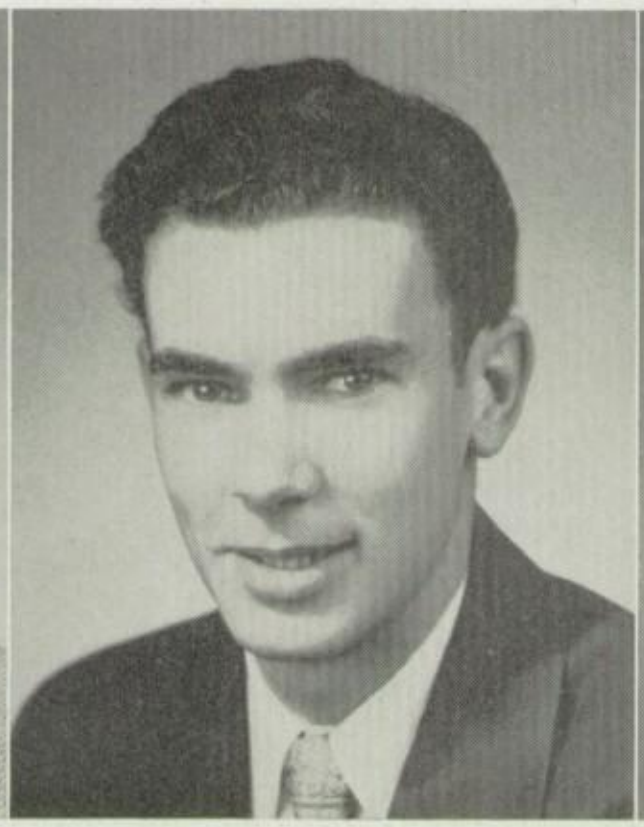
James L. Mulcrone

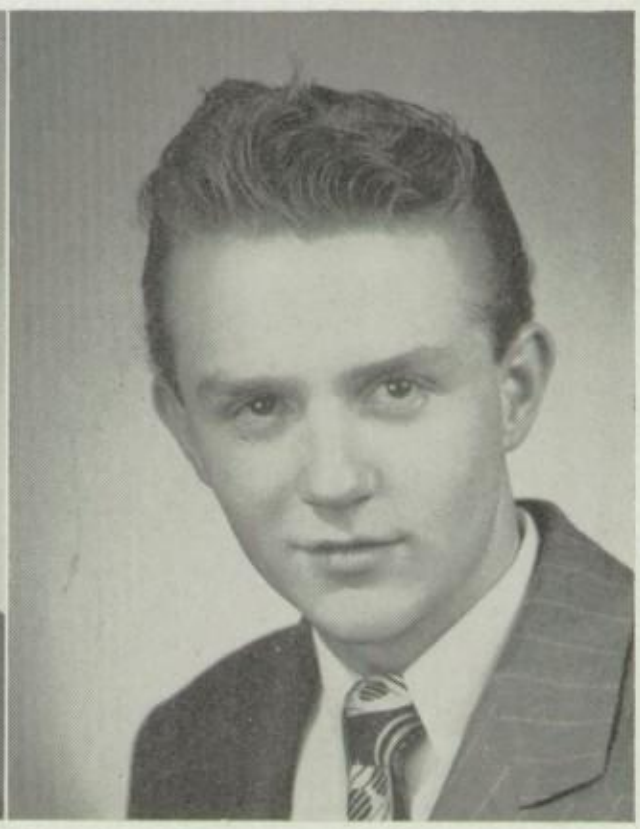
as a Freshman, was elected President of his class and made the football squad. Besides taking part in all Intramural sports, Jim played on the Bantam football team for two years and on the Reserve baseball team in his second year. He was also a member of the Sodality for four years.

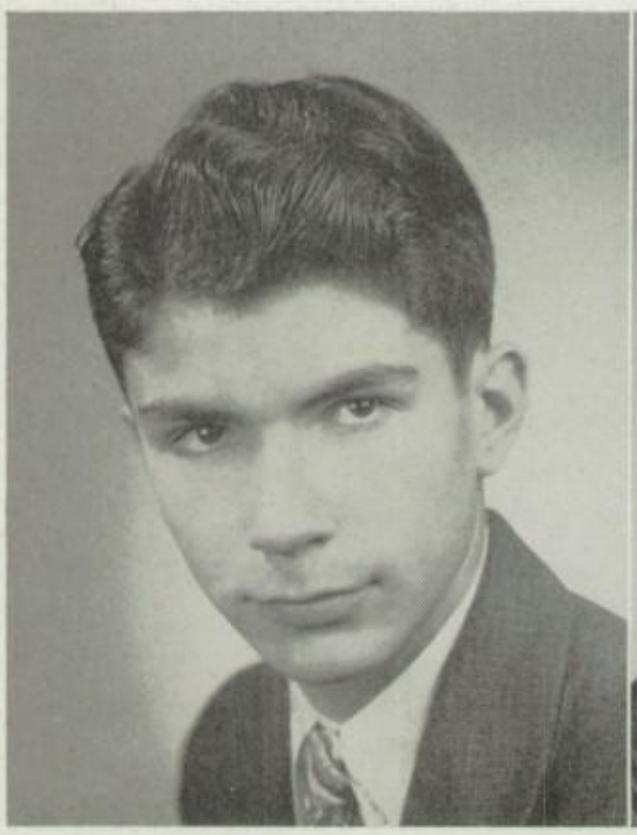
James E. Myles

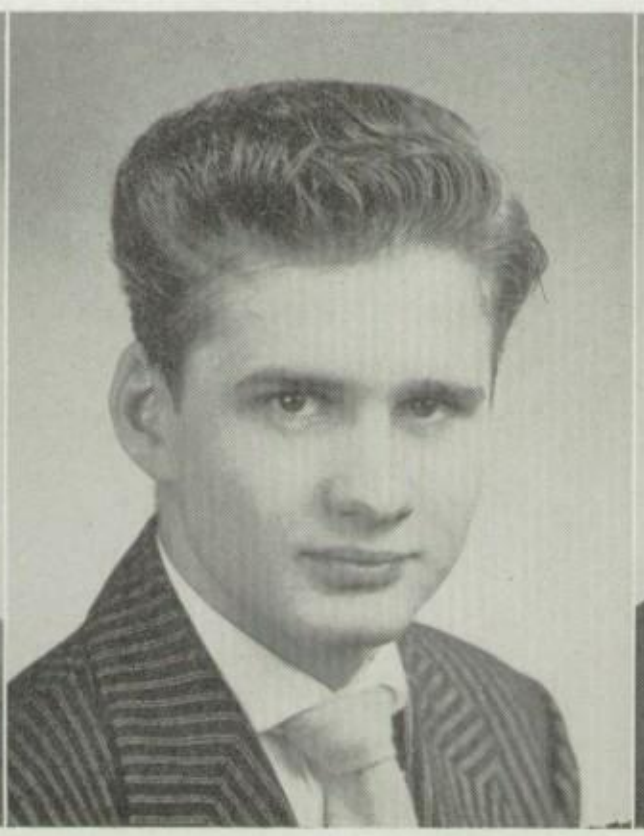
plans to be either a dentist or a business administrator after he leaves the portals of U. of D. High. In extracurricular preparation he completed one season with the freshman basketball team, and played basketball in intramurals the next. Over and above this he was an acolyte.











Donald A. Nelson

will matriculate at Notre Dame, after which he plans to be a newspaper writer or a radio commentator. As a freshman, Don was a debater, a member of the Cub newspaper staff, and a Sodalist. He received honors for four years and played in the school band.

Joseph G. Nelson

the Czar of 4A, was an ornament in practically all classes. At times he annoyed his teachers but he managed to earn at least a First Honor ribbon at every quarter. Joe was a member of the Sodality, the Glee Club, and was twice an elocution finalist.

Thomas A. Nelson

spent his first two years at another school. As a Junior he was a member of the French Club and this last year he joined the happy ranks of the Glee Club. Tom intends to reap the benefits of a higher education in the field of engineering.

. . . Class of 1947

John J. O'Brien

was an all-round activity man. He played Freshman and Bantam football, was an intramuralist, and a willing worker for the Debating, Chess, and Glee Clubs. John will be remembered as a fine Catholic leader, for he was an acolyte and served as President of the Catholic Action Club.

John R. O'Brien

stepped forward many a time during his four years to receive well-earned honors. He also looks back fondly to two years in the Sodality and four years in intramurals in football and baseball. John would like to spend his life as a chemical engineer.

Robert W. O'Brien

is a boy with wander-lust. He came to U. of D. for his third year and played Bantam football. Enlisted in the Marine Corps, and served for 25 months, 18 of which he spent in the South Pacific. He returned as a Seniior, bearing an honorable discharge.

Terrence J. O'Connor

came to U. of D. in his Junior year and he immediately gained friends, and influenced people. He got entangled in the classical course, but emerged victorious. Terry played Bantam football, was active in the Sodality and was a supporter of anything that came along.

James J. O'Day

was an honor man throughout his period at U. of D. High, receiving Class Honors as a Freshman. Jim served as an acolyte and played a very sweet trumpet in the High School Band. Like many another U. of D. man he plans to study medicine.

Joseph J. O'Hara

did fine work on the track team in his Junior and Senior years at school. Joe played intramural football every year, and made the Bantam squad as a Sophomore. He belonged to the Camera and Chess Clubs. His ambition? We quote Joe's own words: "I would like to be a veterinary."

Seniors . . .

Brian F. Oliver

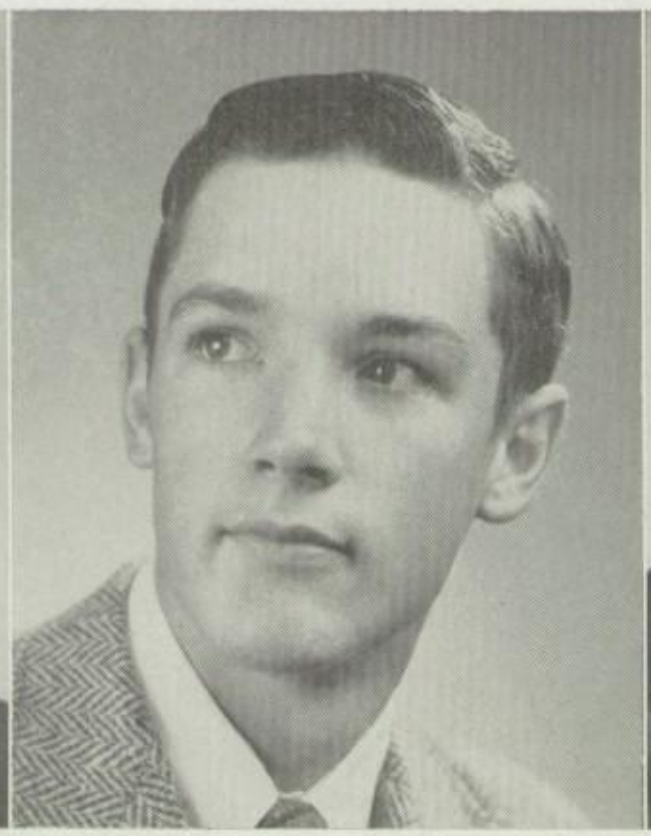
wants to be a Radio Engineer. While at U. of D. he played intramural football, basketball, and baseball. He received Honors in his first year, and participated in the activities of the Spanish Club in his senior year. Much of his time was spent mastering the art of playing ping-pong.

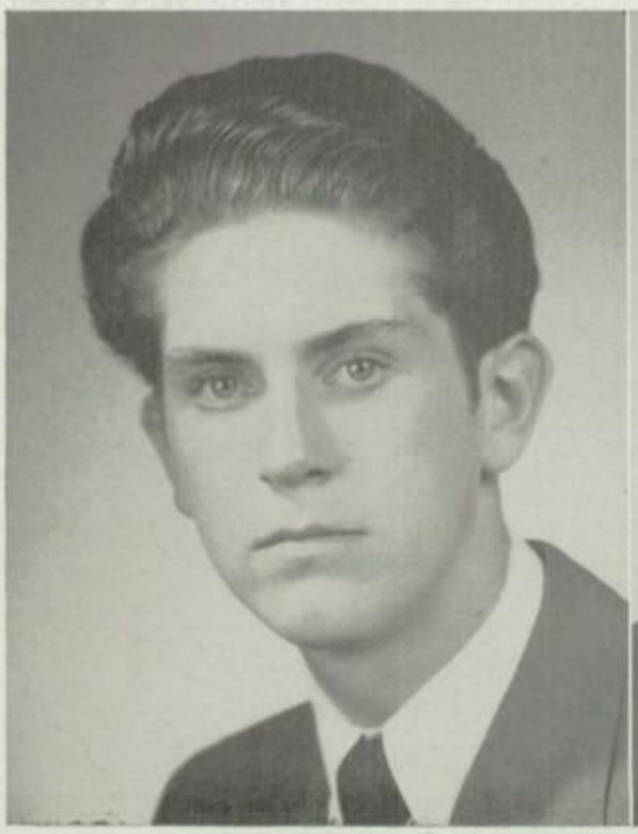
John D. O'Neill

a consistent first honor man, has a scholastic average few can match. As a member of the Debating Society for four years, he has greatly advanced his speaking ability. The Sodality, Glee Club, Orchestra and Acolyte Society all claim the membership of this ambitious student.

James F. Ortman

early during his career at U. of D. decided to study medicine, and showed an especial interest in science. Jim played intramural football and basketball during his first and second years; and participated in the Spainsh Club as a Junior and Senior.





Thomas W. Payne

was always a triple-threat man on the U. of D. campus; in studies, in sports, and in sociability, he was outstanding. Tom graduated with the enviable record of having received first honors for four straight years. He was an active member of Our Lady's Sodality and of the Chess Club. He ambitions to be a lawyer.

Philip R. Penberthy was one of the eight lucky men elected by his classmates to take the Pepsi-Cola scholarship test. No doubt his voters had in mind his enviable scholastic record, since he never failed to get First honors. Phil has informed us that he will probably study medicine.

John M. Plante spent a very busy four years among us. Besides getting honors he was Feature Editor of the Cub newspaper, a Sodalist, an intramuralist and a member of the Monogram and French Clubs. "Moose" was a guard on the Varsity football team for two years, and received an All-City stripe.

. . . Class of 1947

James E. Poirier

was frequently present at the meetings of Our Lady's Sodality through his high school life. He was at one time associated with the Catholic Action Club and was one of the first members to join the now defunct German Club. Jim leaves behind a creditable record.

Richard G. Porter

climaxed his sports life here by playing on the Varsity cage team in his last year. He often held class offices and has many First Honor ribbons to his credit. Dick has also rendered competent services to the Glee Club, to the school publications, and to the Sodality.

Thomas H. Porter

has played football and basketball on various school teams. He helped edit the Sodality paper and held the office of secretary in his class. Honors always came his way and he sang well for the Glee Club. Tom intends to study Chemical Engineering in college.

merited honors in his first year, was very active in the French Club, belonged to the Sodality for four years and served as an acolyte. Dale was a consistent intramural athlete and played on the Sophomore and Junior basketball teams. His life ambition is to be a success as a mechanical engineer.

John K. Priest

spent many hours working for the High School Band and Orchestra as a clarinet player. He also took his place in line for those well-earned honors at every quarter. John was a member of the Catholic Action Club and served as an acolyte for all four years.

Edwin J. Ratterman

eked out honors successfully, populated the lounge and enlivened Sodality meetings. Big Ed scratched his mark deeper, however, as a fearless football manager, acolyte, bloody-fendered chauffeur, intramuralist, yearbook helper, and as chief bottle-warmer and Sports Editor of the Cub.

Seniors . . .

Willard M. Reagan

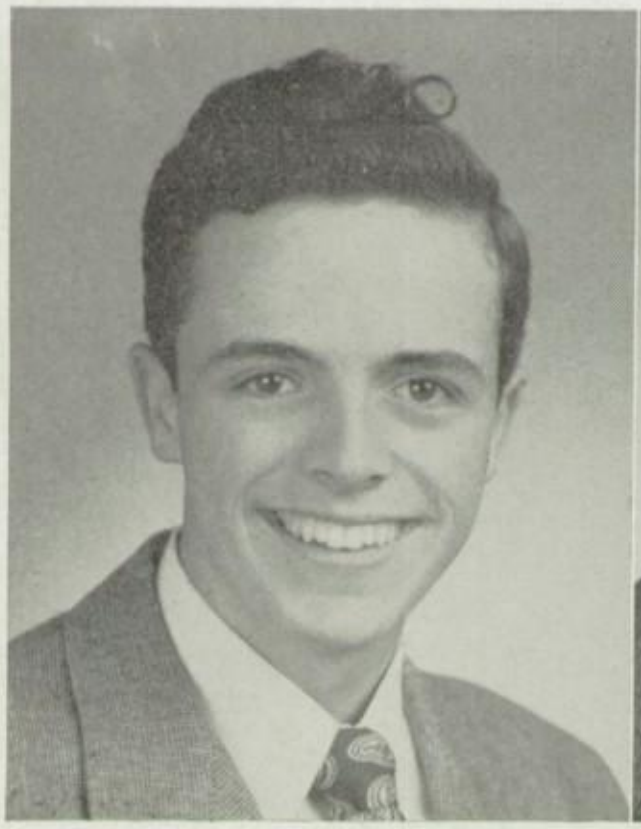
has never failed to merit first honors. As Literary Editor of the school newspaper, he became well-known for his book reviews. Although this took much of his time, Bill also took part in the activities of the Sodality. The legal profession will some day claim this hard-working student.

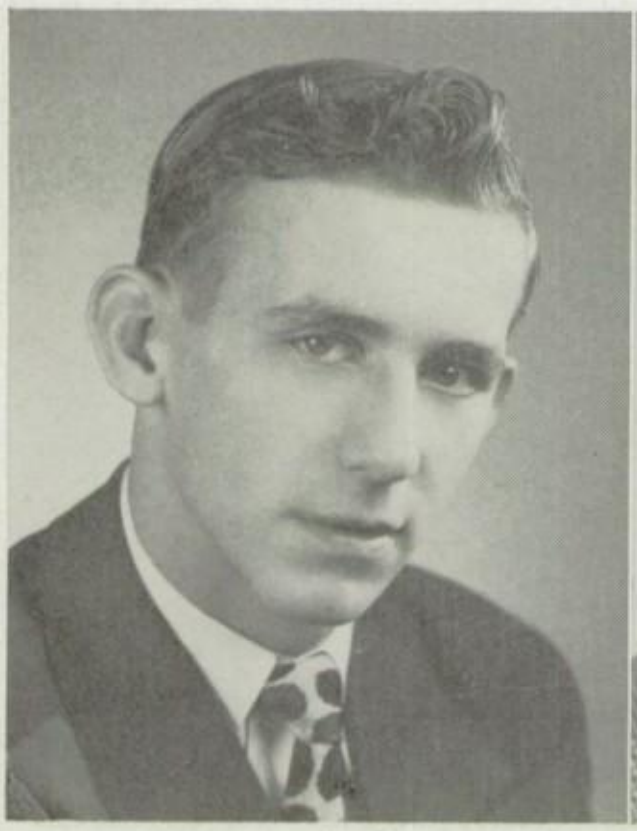
Gilbert L. Rebar

served Our Lady well in the Freshman Sodality and later in the Sophomore Sodality. He left U. of D. High in his Junior year, but soon succumbed to a nostalgic urge and returned to finish his Senior year and graduate. His wanderlust hindered his participation in any other school activities.

William G. Reefer

will not be satsified with just being a mechanical engineer. He wants to be a noted one. Bill's activities, with the exception of a year in the Spanish Club, run mainly to athlectics. He played intramural football, basketball, and baseball, and was a member of the Reserve Basketball team.





James E. Riehl

practiced every night with Fr. Connery's Bantam football team and was awarded a letter at the end of the season for the effort he expended in the games. He won a varsity letter or two also. High point in his active Sodality life occurred when he was elected an officer during his Sophomore year.

John J. Roach

has taken part in practically all the school offers in the line of sports. He merited honors occasionally, and wrote for the Cub newspaper in his second and third years. Jack was also an acolyte and a member of the Sodality and the Monogram Club.

John W. Robbins

as third baseman on the Varsity Baseball team he gained All-City recognition. He called signals on the gridiron, and piloted the Varsity Basketball team through one of the its most successful seasons. Jack was awarded the basketball plaque at the end of the season.

. . . Class of 1947

Jerome R. Rochon

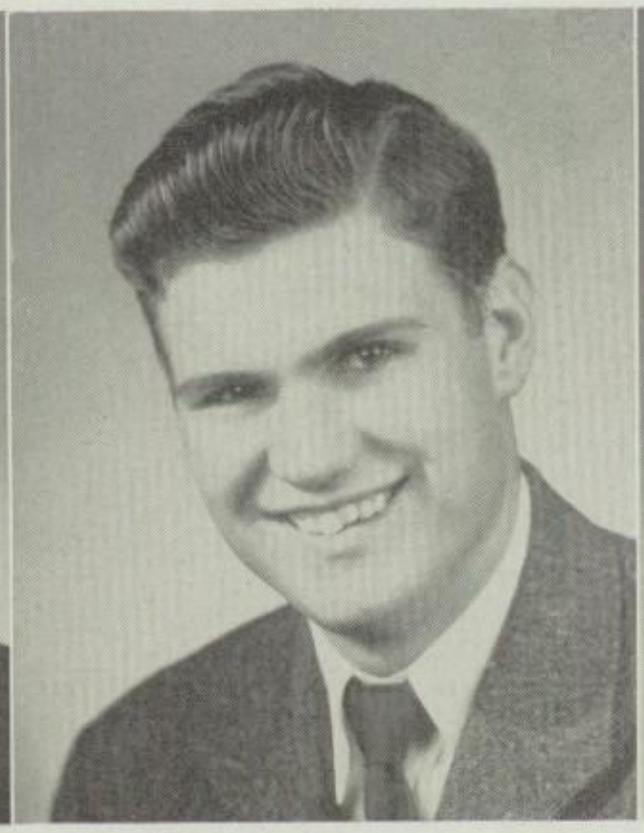
had the energy to participate in intramural sports for three years at U. of D., despite the fact that he rode to school on the infamous Grosse Pointe Special. Jerry joined the Spanish Club in his third year and the Sodality was a Senior. He was noted for his wise cracks in Spanish class.

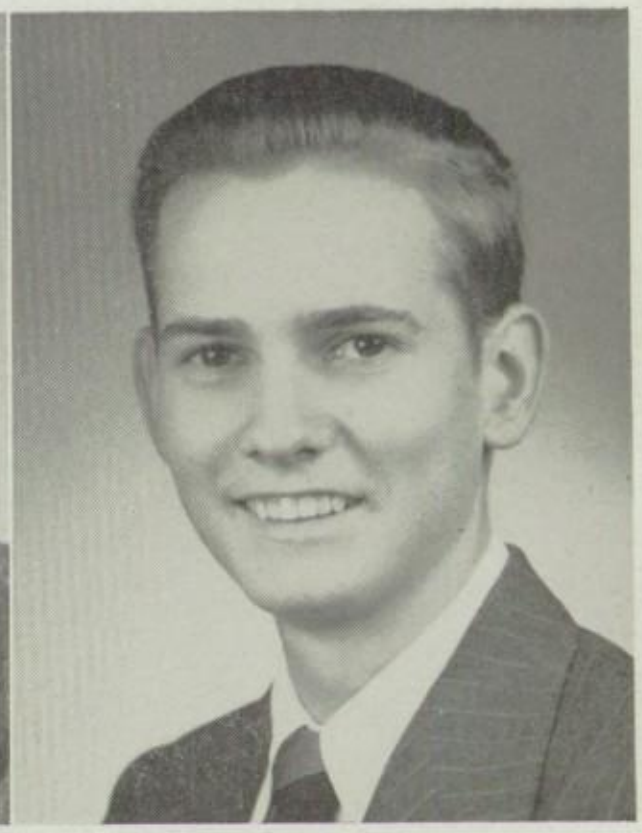
Robert H. Rogez

thrilled the audience of the musical production, "The Pirates of Penzance", with his fine baritone renditions as Pirate King. He played Varsity Basketball and is a pugilist of no small merit. Bob was a member of the Chess Club, Sodality and French Club. Architectural Engineering is his field.

Richard F. Rohr

strongly desires to become an engineer. He spent most of his time in and out of school trying to decide where to go to college. Only the former German Club claimed his membership. Dick has finally narrowed down his choice so that he will go either to M. I. T. or G. M. Tech.





Richard A. Romer

came to be known to his fellow-students as a cheerleader, acolyte, sodalist and member of the Chess Club. Dick appreciated the values of his Spanish course well enough to join the Spanish Club. Besides being interested in the Catholic Action Club, he also helped the Art Club.

John J. Roney

an active member of our Senior class, belonged to many school organizations. He was a first Honor man and at one time received a Class Honor Medal. He also participated in all intramural sports, was a reporter on the Cub newspaper, an acolyte, and an ardent sodalist.

John F. Rosenquist

fought hard for his classmates on the intramural football and baseball teams during his four years here. He was a member of Our Lady's Sodality, the Art Club in his first year; and the Spanish Club claimed his membership during his last two years.

Seniors . . .

George J. Roskopp

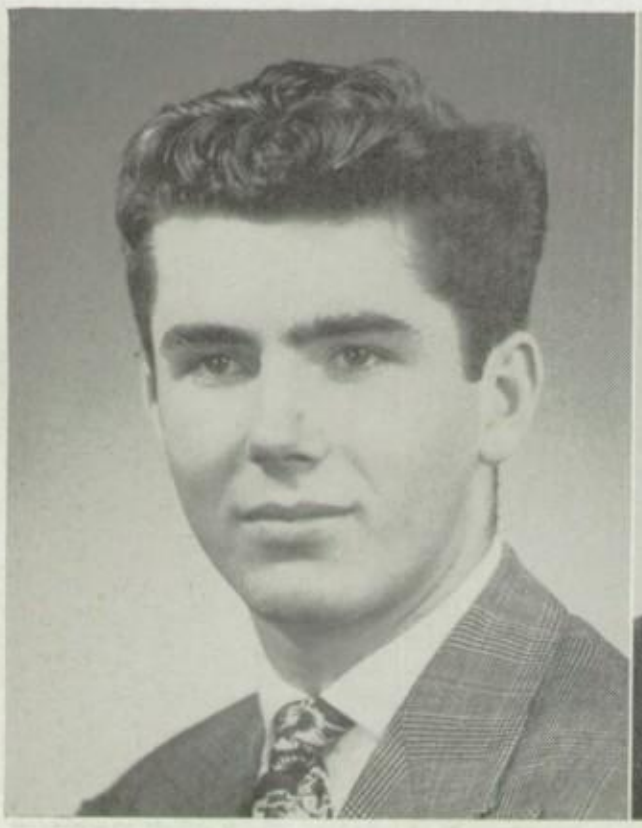
built an all-round reputation for himself at U. of D. He played Varsity football for two years, Varsity baseball for four and was a member of the Monogram Club. George also received honors, was a class officer and prefected the Sodality in his last two years.

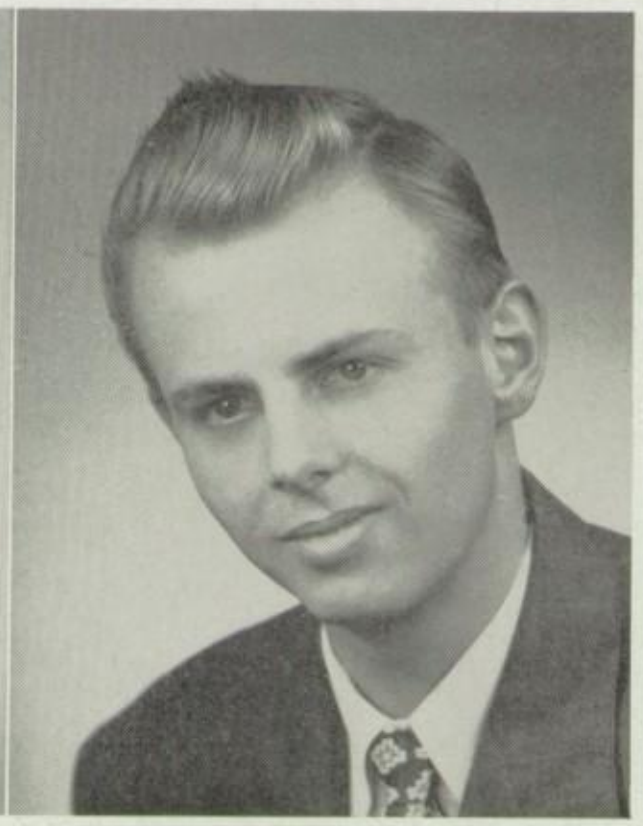
Thomas E. Rothermel

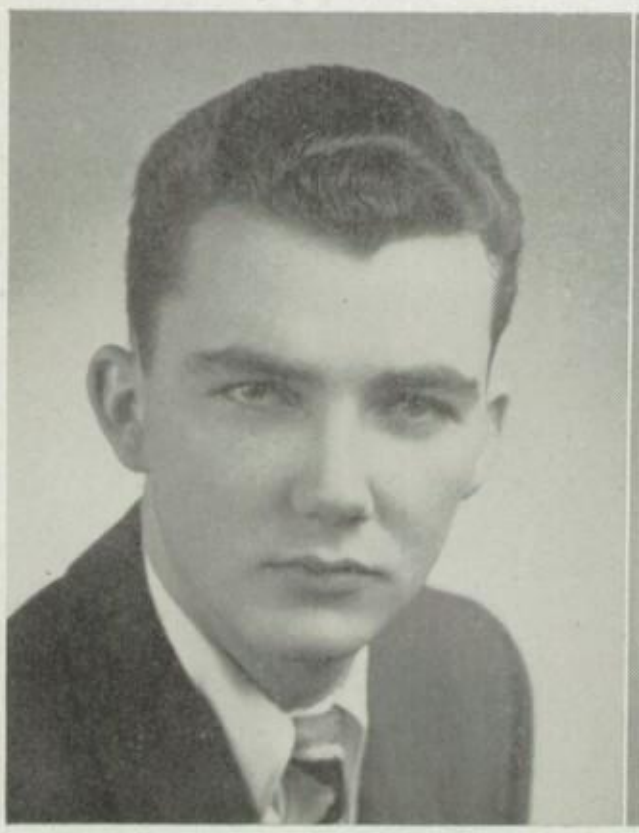
joined the Sodality in his second year and attended meetings faithfully thereafter. During his four years, Tom made a daily practice of going to the 8:30 Communion Mass. No doubt this has helped him to decide his career in life. He intends to study aeronautical engineering in college.

Albert P. Roussey

spent his waking hours well as he merited honors at each quarterly reading of marks. Otherwise Al set a record for dozing through more classes than his rivals dreamed possible. In addition, Al swelled the ranks of the Art Club, the Sodality, and the Acolytes.







Paul F. Scallen

gained much from his long years of classwork, intramural football, basketball and the Spanish Club. He remembers faintly life as a freshman, when he played on the football and basketball teams. Other thoughts, about later years, tell of his offices, such as sophomore treasurer and junior vice-president.

Robert F. Schott

confused his cage opponents with his accurate left-handed pivot shots and long lightning-fast passes. Bob was a great center on our near-championship basketball team. Although he entered school just last October, Bob was a familiar figure, both in sports and at the Sodality and Spanish Club meetings.

Thomas J. Schramm

acquired honor ribbons to take home when he was a Junior, and joined the Spanish Club to increase his knowledge of the language. When Mr. Rutli formed the Chess Club last September, Tom was one of the first men to join, and proved to be a valuable member.

. . . Class of 1947

Donald T. Shankin

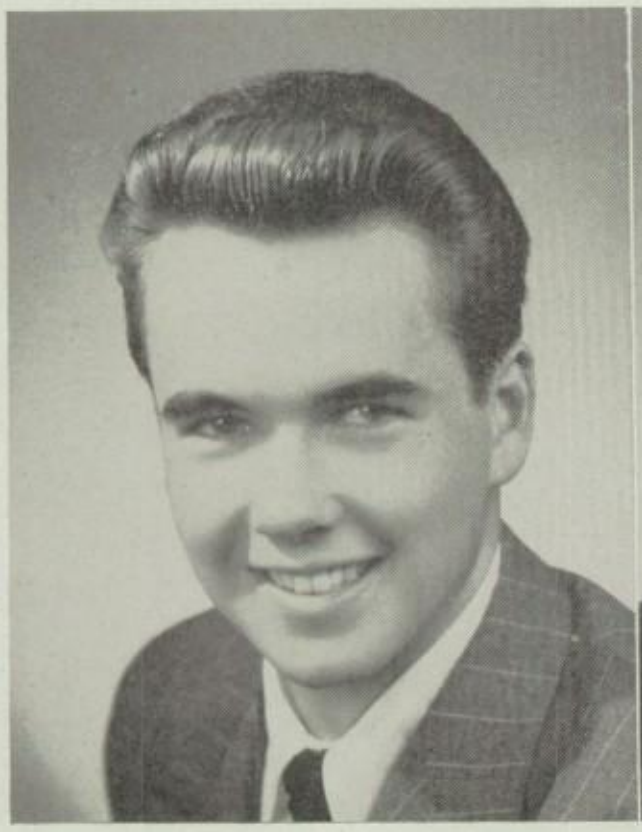
for some inexplicable reason has decided that his niche in the wall of posterity will be carved by becoming a millionaire fisherman. In preparation Don played four years of intramural baseball and, during his last two years, was a member of the French Club.

Robert D. Simmons

can best be commended for the faithful services he rendered as an acolyte. Bob took Spanish his last two years and further developed his facility with the language by joining the Spanish Club. Many will also remember him for the fair play in intramural sports.

Robert J. Smith

spent a very busy four years among us as a member of the Sodality, an honor man, and an intramuralist. He was also a member of the tennis team and a Freshman and Reserve football player. Bob's ambition is to make a quick million and spend the rest of his life bowling.



Walker J. Smith

reputed to be the best Trig expert in the school was one of the many casual dressers. While not explaining the math to Hudak he was an active participant in the intramurals and an ardent Sodalist. His sense of angles was indispensable to his work in Tony's poolroom.

Jerome L. Smuck

can be blamed for a few write-ups in this yearbook, for he aided the staff to assemble much of the information. He worked on the Cub newspaper as photographer and joined the camera club. Intramural baseball attracted him in his third year. He also belonged to the Sodality.

Joseph H. Sobieski

never missed receiving honors, but, since he won a four year scholarship, that was to be expected. How he did it without studying is a real wonder, however. Joe played intramurals, and was secretary of his senior class. Working after school filled up all his extra time.

Seniors . . .

Richard J. Socin

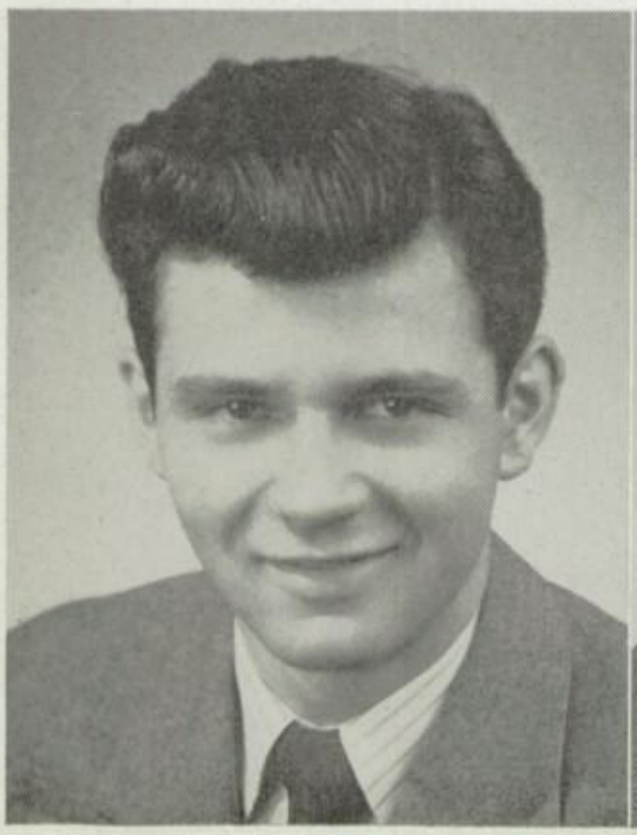
was a member of the Sodality, was an acolyte, and received honors in every quarter of his four years here besides playing intramural football and baseball. Dick was also president of the Northwoodman's Association, an "exclusive" club in the 4 C. class room.

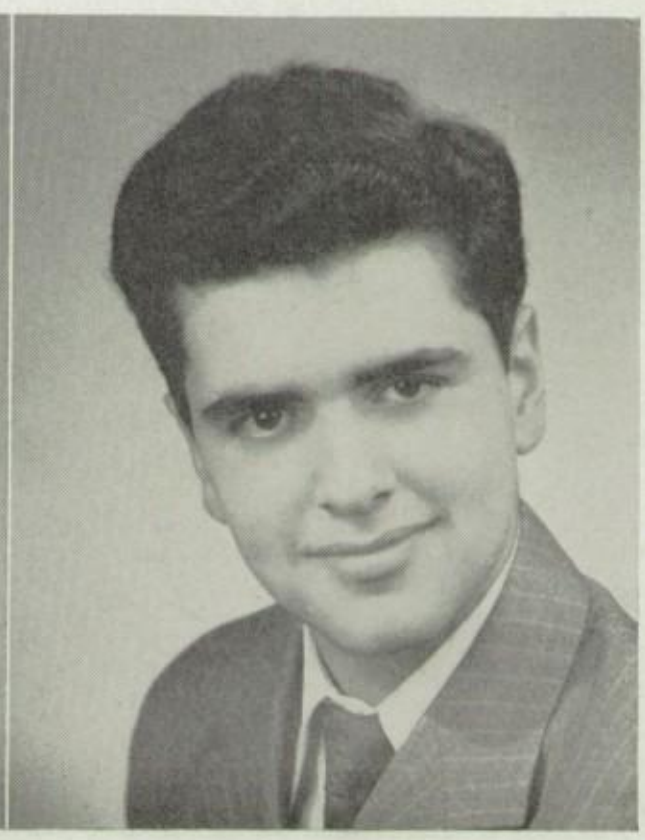
Donald E. Staples

was a member of the Varsity football team and the Monogram Club. He played Bantam football in second and third year, and was a tireless intramuralist. Don was an Acolyte in Junior and Senior years and was active in the Marian Committee of the Society.

John F. Staub

has plans only for the near future—he has an impatient ambition to graduate. Although he did not take part in extra-curricular activities during his first three years of school, he played Intramural baseball, and was member of both the Spanish Club, and the Sodality.





Howard J. Stock

has spent many sleepless nights wondering whose statue rests at the epistle side of altar in the chapel. The answer will be found on page 150 of this book. Seriously, Howard, who aspires to be a writer and rancher, was a hard working member of the Sodality.

James J. Stone

did his homework in the first period in the morning, but still received honors at every quarter. He was a four year Sodality member and one of the first to join Father Linz's Glee Club. The French Club, the Cub newspaper, and the yearbook also claimed his services.

William G. Tenerowicz

accompanied the policeman's chorus on the piano in the Glee Club Gilbert and Sullivan musical, "Pirates of Penzance." Without his skill the Glee Club would have been lost. "Ubi" also was a member of the Catholic Action Club. He plans to make a fortune in the show business.

. . . Class of 1947

Richard S. Teranes

a former St. Ignatius high student, came to U. of D. in his junior year. In his two years Dick has devoted time to the Sodality and to intramural basketball and baseball. His attraction for languages made him a faithful protege for the French Club.

James F. Thorne

took a membership in Fr. Linz's Glee Club, reported the news for the Cub for two years, and was active in the Sodality of Our Lady. He was a sparkplug on the ailing 4F intramural basketball teams. In fact he was their only player who knew anything about basketball and could make his long shots.

John E. Tomalis

was the quiet type of fellow who pursued his classical studies earnestly. John was an acolyte and was usually on hand when honors were passed out. During his years at U. of D. he always kept a sort of relation with the Varsity Theater.

Robert C. Velgos

waited until his last year to join our ranks. He arrived with a brush cut, a quiet personality, and a distinctly different pronunication of the Latin language. By capturing first honors Bob exhibited the mental prowess he will someday use as an electrical engineer.

Roland M. Villeneuve

was always telling us about good times he had had at certain parties. In school he performed many tasks for the Sodality and served faithfully on the altar in his four years here. Eventually Roland hopes to follow some line in the medical profession.

Edmund T. Wasinski

for the last two years has been a star varsity player in both basketball and baseball. He was always popular with his fellow students, having held several high offices in the Sodality. Ed also served faithfully on the altar for his entire high school life.

Seniors . . .

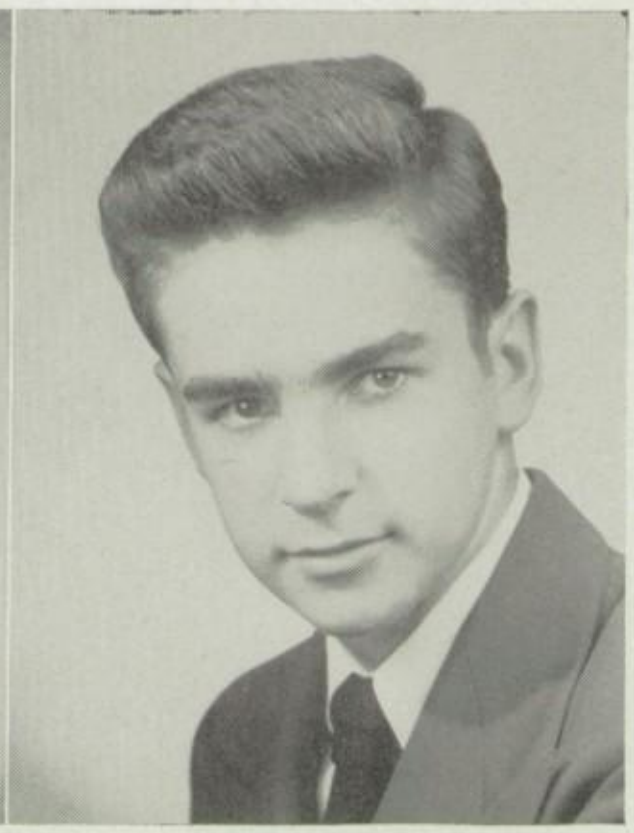
Albert J. Wettlaufer was a very active intramuralist during his earlier days of school. However, riding the Grosse Pointe bus must have tired him, for he confined his interests in his later years to the Sodality. "Al" also busied himself by studying earnestly and meriting honors.

James F. Wickham

holds the honor of being elected president of his senior class. As such he led his classmates in many a grueling intramural contest of football and baseball prowess. In his earlier years here, Jim played Freshman and Bantam football and was a hockey enthusiast.

Richard A. Wierzbicki

beat a fast tempo for the school band with his drums besides doubling at the bass fiddle occasionally. Dick played basketball and was a member of the Sodality for four years. Once he even casually walked up to receive honors. Dick has a great future in store for himself.



William E. Wise

was secretary of the Sodality in his senior and junior years. A four year honor man and acolyte, he also spent two years with the Glee Club. In Metropolitan athletic competition, Bill has proved himself to be a reliable basketball player and an All-City Champion in golf.

Marvin A. Yagley

hopes to be able to someday say that he, too, has a U. of D. High diploma. He participated in intramural sports, especially in the spring baseball games. The Junior Sodality was another outlet for Marvin's closely guarded talents. He is one of Fr. Nash's former students.

Norbert J. Zdral

backboned the varsity football team for four years as All-City tackle two years and captain last year. Needless to say, he met with equal success in studies, and he was an all-star basketball intramuralist. A class officer and Sodality, Norm is pursuing an engineering course.

. . . Class of 1947

Pierre H. Gagnier

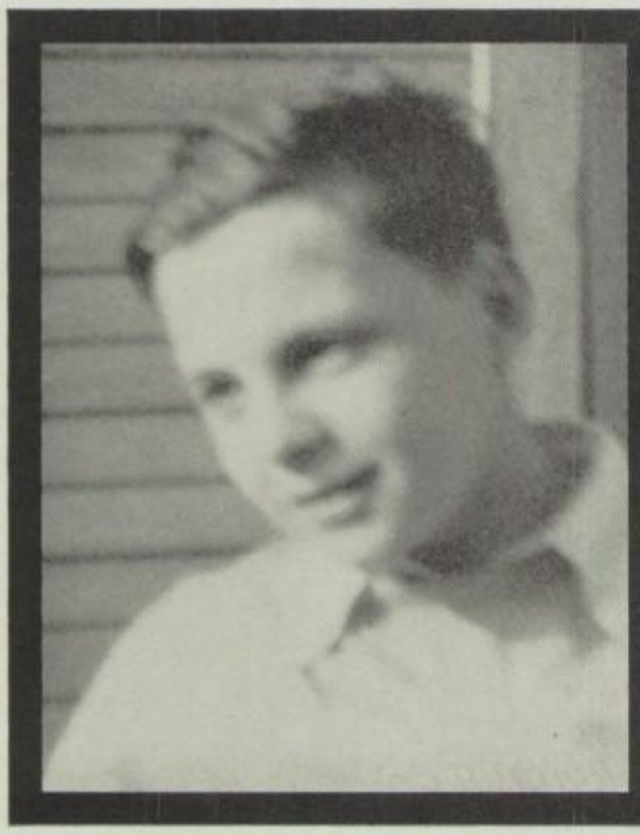
was a member of the Sodality of Our Lady for four years and at the same time never missed getting honors, he was a member in good standing of the track team in his third year. Pierre has aspirations to be an artists in the field of advertising.

Ronald E. Gallagher,

president of the Glee Club, enthralled many an audience with his fine tenor voice and especially proved his mettle as "Frederick" in the "Pirates of Penzance." Ronnie was also a sodalist, French Clubber, intramuralist, and even managed to receive honors.

Cleo J. Teasdale

has already sped away from the troubles encountered at the High and apparently has found his utopia. It may be said for him that he was an early riser, because he peddled morning papers before coming to classes, when and if he came to classes.



James Corcoran

answered the bidding of his Creator in his freshman year, March 13, 1944. Death found him well prepared, for he was a daily Communicant and a model student. Though not present, he indeed is a member of the graduating class of 1947.

Harry Gorsuch

had been a popular class president, a loyal sodalist, and an ever present member of the Glee Club. His high school life suddenly came to end in his third year. A member of the Class of '47, he received his final diploma on March 4, 1946.

Francis Halderman

spent only two years here when in the summer following his Sophomore year he met with a fatal accident. Since then his absence has been deeply felt by all of his fellow classmates. However, he remains with us in spirit as we Seniors graduate.

Courage

"Sport, properly directed, develops character and makes a man courageous, a generous loser and a gracious victor . . ."—Pope Pius XII. Courage, derived from participation in athletics, prepares us for the hardships entailed in the attainment of a lasting peace.

We can look back on the 1946 football season and honestly say it was a success. Perhaps the Cub eleven didn't win the City Championship but, judging from the 166 points chalked up by the team against their opponents' 48, the season was still successful. In addition, Tom Moorman, Norb Zdral, Marcel, George Kramer, and Pat Brennan were honored by being placed on various all-city teams.

Highlights of

The Cubs' schedule started with a preseason game with Mackenzie which the Maroon and White won 26-6 under the lights of U. of D. Stadium . . . The team shifted to their own field to slash Wilbur Wright 37-0 . . . The Cooley's fullback stopped by mudsoaked Cubs.

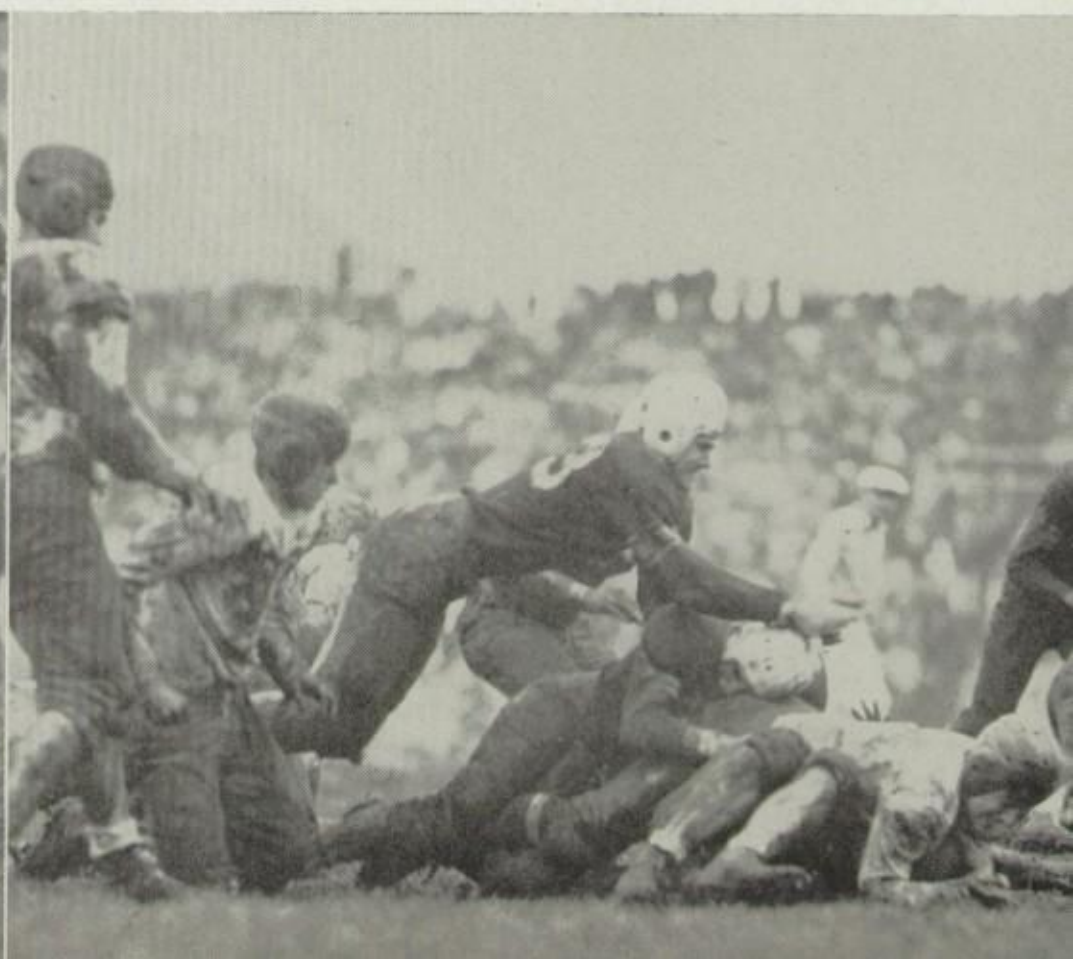
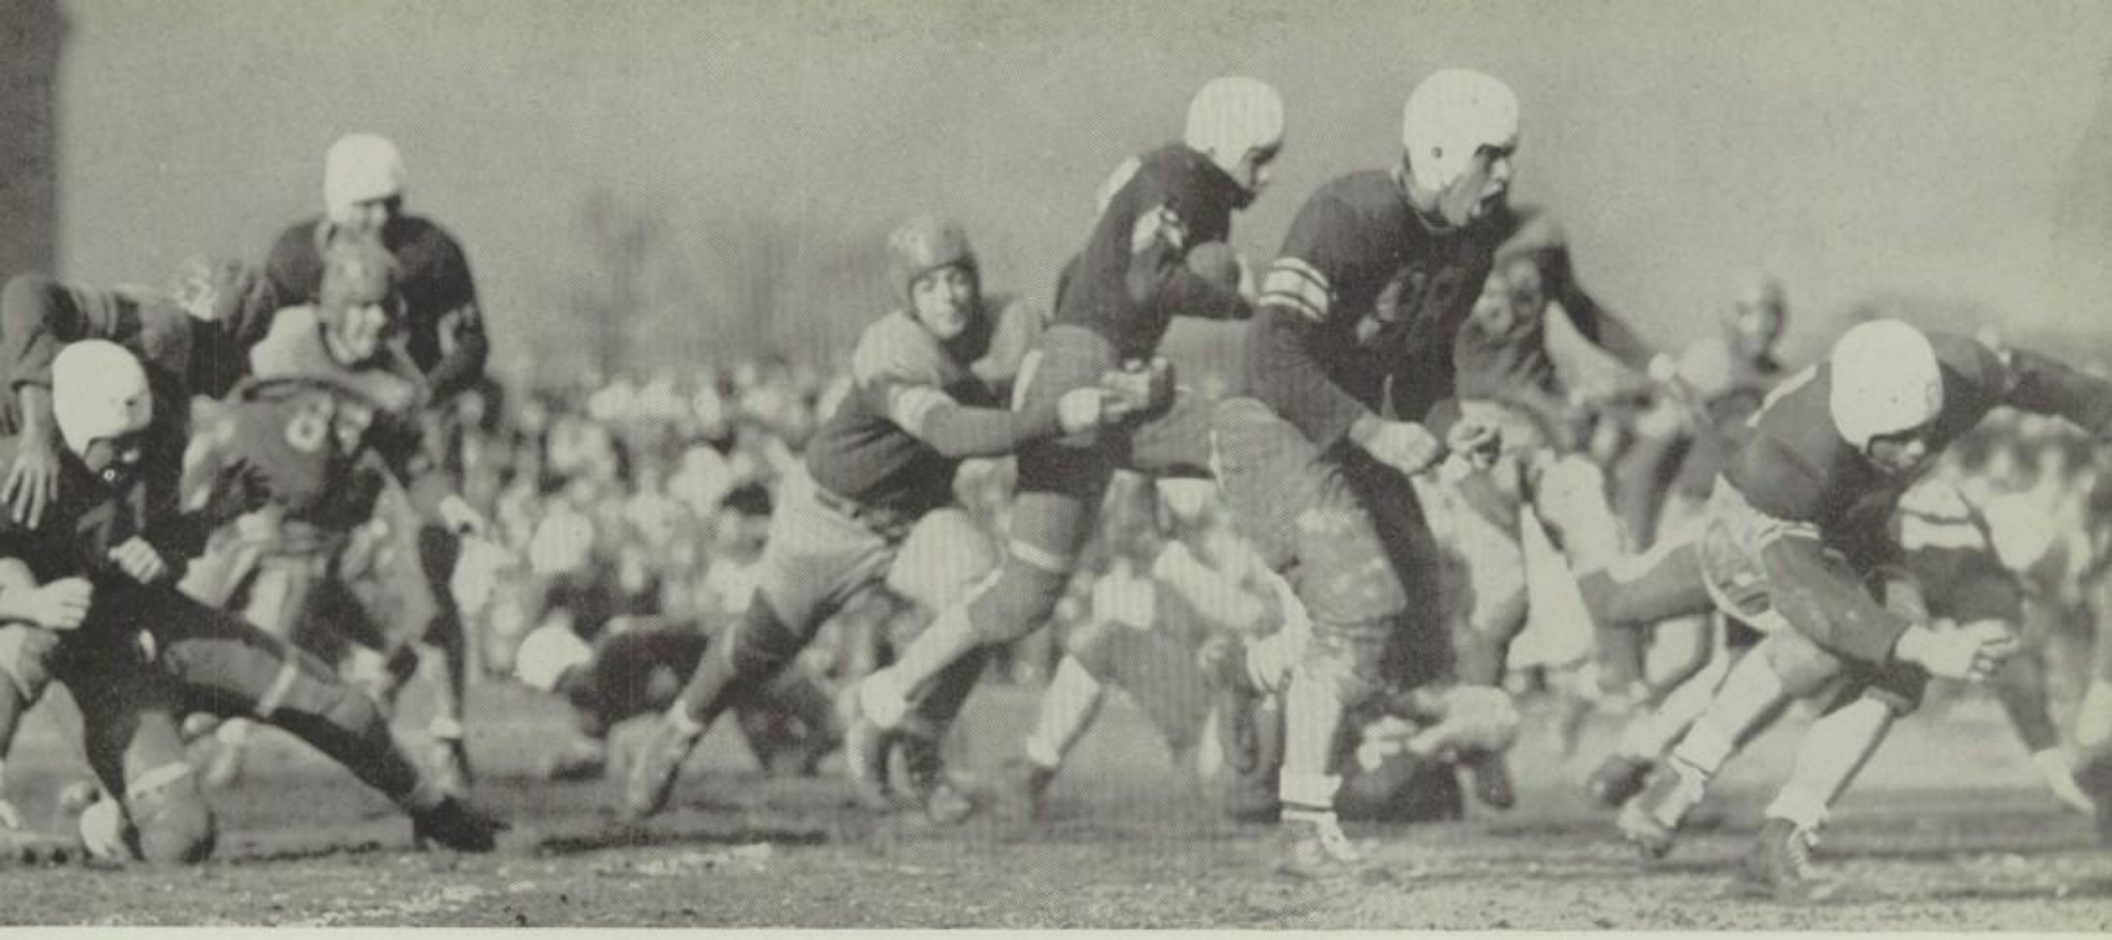
Norm Zdral (93) makes sure this Cooley player stays down.





A Northwestern tackler pulls down Brennan from behind, as Pat Kelly (98) blows off steam.

the Season

Cubs were victorious again as they came from behind to break a five year jinx and beat Western, 38-7 . . . Next the team broke Northwestern's Colts with a 25-0 score . . . On the following Saturday Tom Moorman made his twelfth touchdown of the season as the Cubs defeated Southwestern 27-0 . . . Then came our first defeat when Redford upset us by a score of 21-13 . . . There was still a chance to stay in the race for the Championship but in the final game of the season the Cubs lost to Cooley 14-0 . . . Having won five games as against two defeats, the squad put away their gridiron equipment and began thinking of another year . . .

Bob Tata (65), right halfback, meets up with a Redford tackler.

Cooley back halted after short line buck.

Reserve and Freshman

The Reserves came through a tough schedule with a final total of 4 wins, 5 ties and 2 losses. Most of the teams played were quite a bit larger than the Reserves, and although sometimes the Cubs were outplayed, they always were a "fighting team," and that is what ultimately counts.

In regard to the Freshman football team's performance this year, the team was better as a whole than last year. Their record this year was 4 wins, 4 losses and 1 tie. The T formation was used by the freshmen for the first time since 1937.

RESERVE FOOTBALL TEAM

THE VARSITY BASKETBALL SQUAD

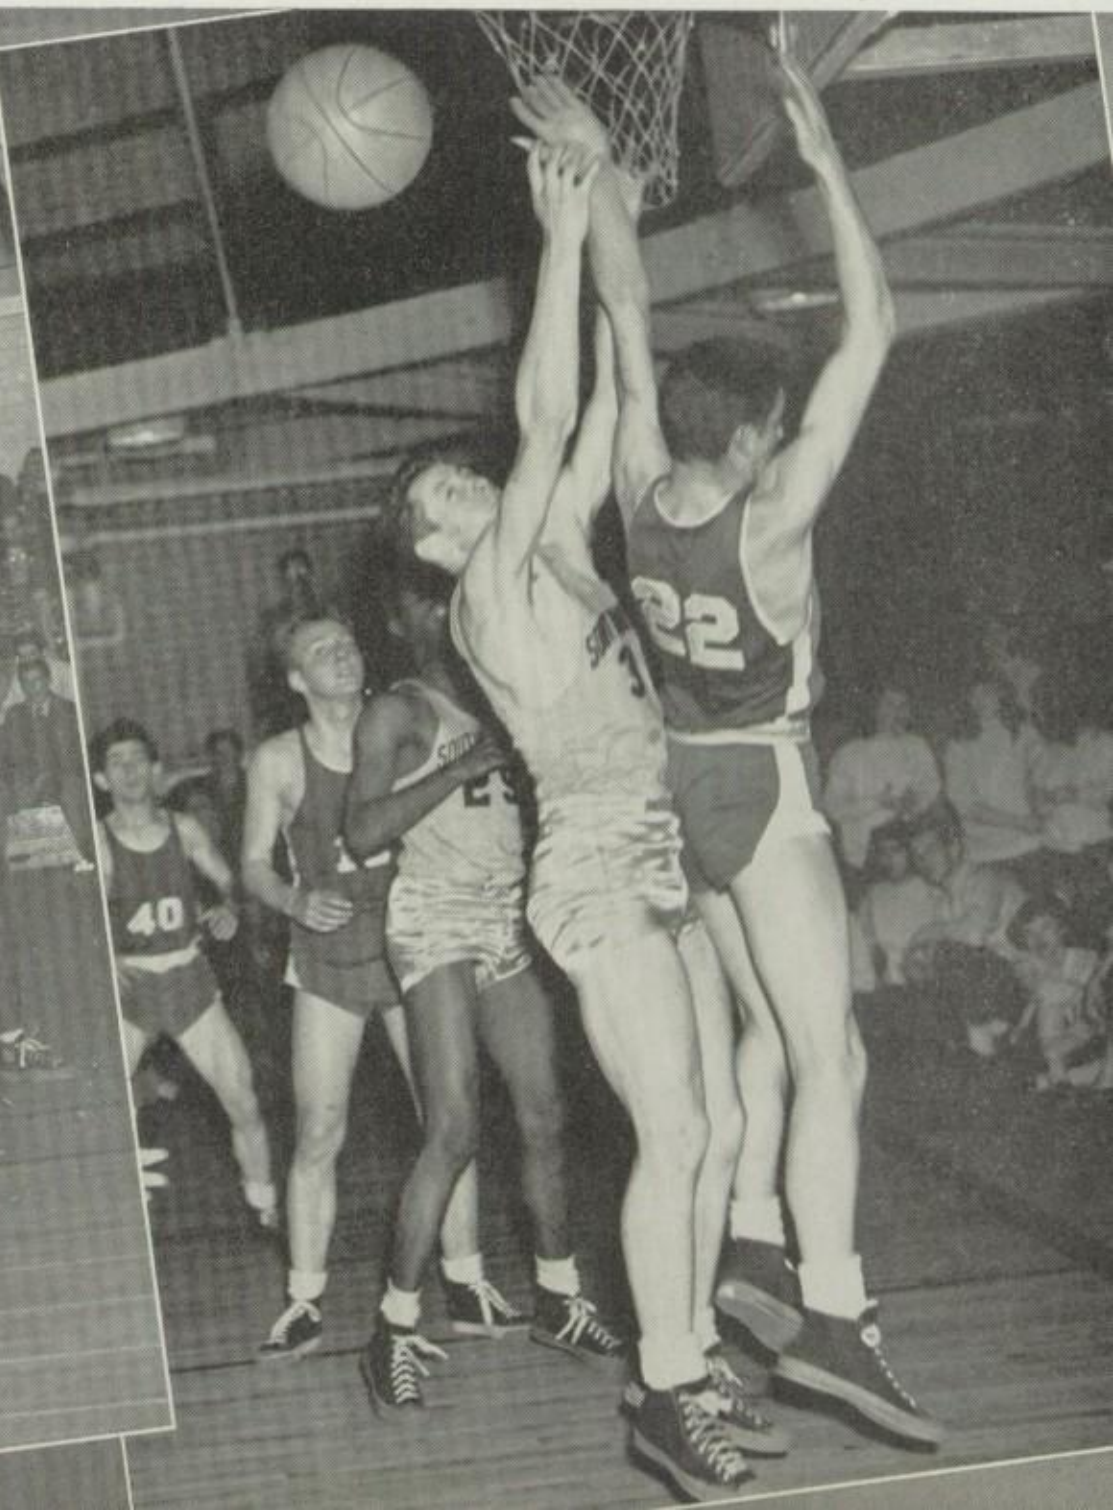
Jack Robbins works himself into a frenzy during a high point.

Carew knocks the ball out of the hands of a tall Southwestern player.



The Season

John L. Lewis and his striking coal miners may have delayed the start of the '46-'47 cage season but they didnt cool the Cub Basketeers' desire to win. The season's headlines told the story in this manner.

"Central Caught Short by Cubs" — the Cub "underdogs" won this one 27-23 . . . "Redford Boys Thoroughly Beaten" — final score was 35-20 . . . "Prospectors Find Gold in Cubs, 51-27" — as Southwestern successfully defended its City Championship . . . "Cooley Cardinals Stopped Cold as Cubs Set Rapid Pace" — the Cubs held the desirable end of a 33-29 score . . . "Cubs Win Tight One from Wright" — Wilbur Wright fought hard but proved no match for determined Cubs who won, 25-19 . . . "Western Proves Easy Conquest" — as the Cub quintet rode the Cowboys to a 28-24 victory . . . "Northwestern Takes Hard Fought Battle 41-29"—putting the second check in the Cubs' "lost" column . . . "Cubs Run Away With 60 Points Against Chadsey" — Chadsey scored 36 points . . . "Cubs Trounce Mackenzie for Coveted Playoff Berth" — the Cubs reaped the profits of their successful season as they won a crack at the City Championship by a score of 35-31 . . . But then, "Miller Saves Game in Last Minute Spree"—the Miller five managed to run up a three point lead in the last few minutes of play to make the final score 35-32.

Thus ended the season in which the Cubs won seven and lost three.

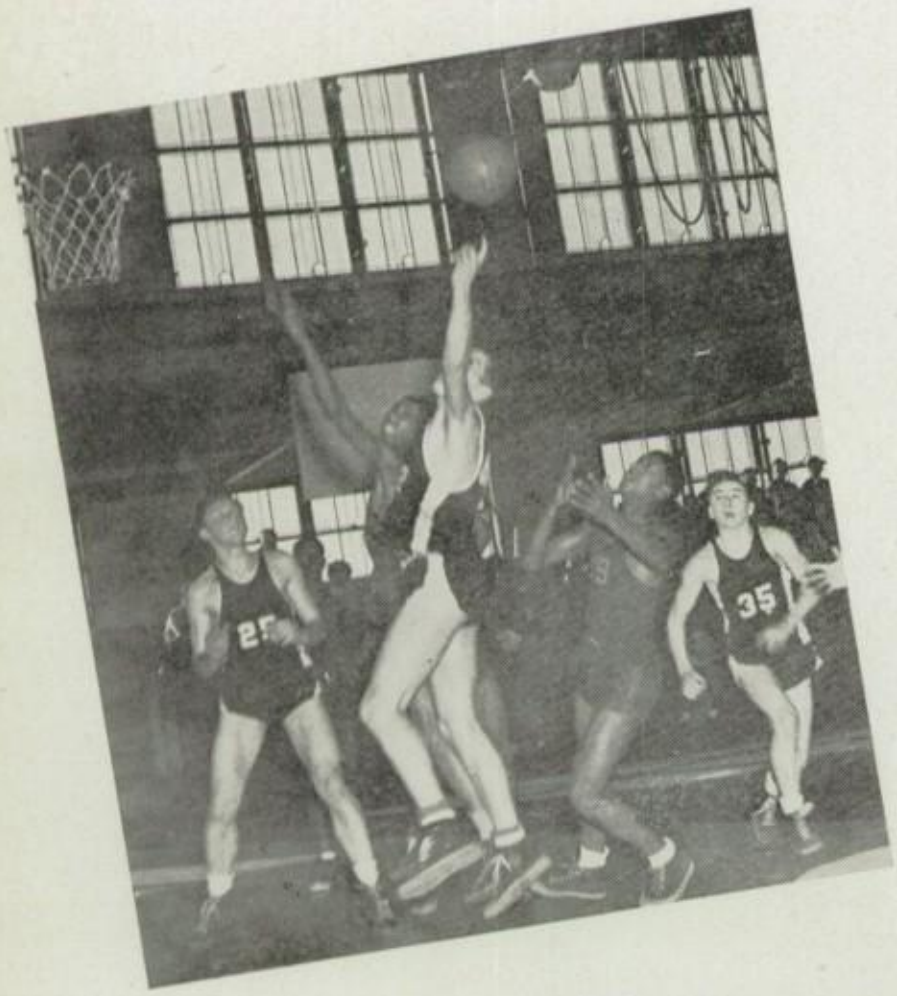
Bob Schott, Harry Manuel and Ed Carew watch a foul shot swish.

Big Ed Carew reached in among many hands and grabbed this one.

RESERVE TEAM. kneeling: Kennedy, Thompson, Robinson, Scanlon, Ellis, Costello, Novitsky, Korte, Czarnecki. standing: Mr. Holland, S.J., West, Fogarty, Mikula, Look, Basso, Baker, Cotter, Prekel, Evans.

Reserve Basketball

Sparked by Mr. Holland S.J., coach, and Jack Ellis, captain, the Reserve Basketball team fought its way into the Metropolitan League Reserve Basketball finals, held for the first time this year. Known as the "second-half team" because most of its victories were won in the closing minutes, the Reserves vanquished eleven opponents before bowing to Southeastern in the championship game by a score of 29-23. Because of the outstanding play of the Juniors and Sophomores on this team, an exceptional Varsity Basketball Squad can be expected next season.



IN THE MILLER GAME: Bill Thompson, jumping, fights for the ball as Stonish (25) and Costello (35) look on.

And More Sports

THE GOLF TEAM: (standing) Fr. Schumacher, S. J., Charles Wheeler, Charles Houff, Leo Linsenmeyer, Carlin Connors.

(kneeling): David Corbett, William Wise, Jack Engel.

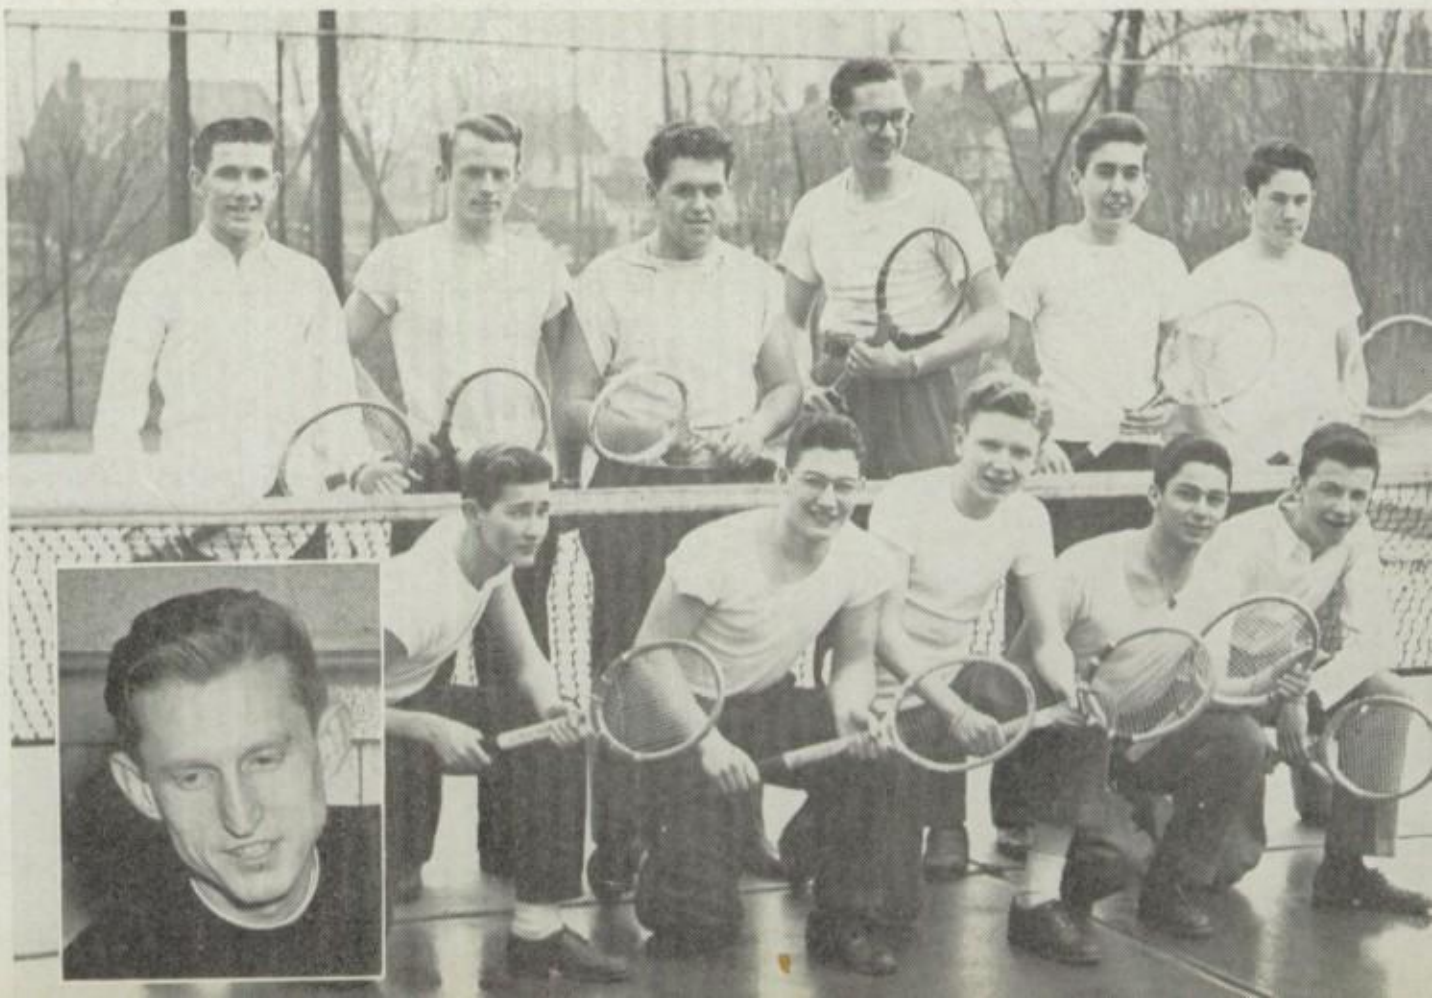
(missing): Tony Novitsky, Bob Schreiner, Michael O'Donnell.

Spring Sports

The Golf team, coached by Fr. Schumacher, S.J., deserves first mention here because of their past successes. Last year the team won the Metropolitan League Match Play title while Bill Wise won the individual championship. This year the return of Wise and Tony Novitsky heralds another successful season.

The 1947 baseball team, with the experience of some capable veterans and with some promising rookies, should finally fight its way to the championship. Returning to Coach Tiernan's team are: Jack Robbins, Johnny Meyer, George Roskopp, Jim Kennary, Ed Wasinski, Charley Gehringer, Al Walker, Hank Motyka, and Bob Heinlein.

The tennis team, coached by Mr. Smith, S.J., will be aided by the return of several veterans. Such players as Pat Kelly, Gil Klein, Pat Finney, and Bill Thompson should lead the team to greater recognition.



THE TENNIS TEAM: (Standing) Walt Cliff, Pat Finney, Pat Kelly, Bill Thompson, Gil Klein, Bob Smith.

Intramurals

Class competition in athletics offers every student an opportunity to develop himself physically, since only a minority of students play in out-of-school competition. These intramural games are played during the lunch period and consequently they serve as an outlet for the pent up physical energy of the students. This year as in the past, rivalry between classes was at its peak.

BASKETBALL ACTION was plentiful during the finals. Above, Jack Brinkman, of 4A and Bob Rogez of 4D, make an important jump in the game which 4A won, 29-28.

THE ALL STARS of the Senior intramural league were: Zdral, Brennan, Messing, Codde, Wasinski.

BASEBALL AND HANDBALL (below) were popular sports among the intramuralists. Baseball in particular is well organized since definite schedules are set up and student umpires are appointed for all games.
